OUR FARMER FRIEND MAKES ANOTHER CALL

By the Patriot's Office Cat

"Aha, my friend, I'm glad to see you. I heard the boss call out from my position under the desk. I could not think who it was that he was so pleased to see, but I found out before very long. I have heard the voice so often that I would recognise it among a million. It was Our Farmer Friend.

"I'm glad to see you too," said the caller. "But I'm at a loss to understand the warmth of the greeting. I thought that maybe you wouldn't be so anxious to see me again, at least not so soon."

"That's where you're mistaken," was the retort of the boss. "I am glad to see you. How are you? How is your good wife? How is Benjamin?"

"All are well, thank you," said Our Farmer Friend, "and they will be more than pleased to hear that you asked about them."

The editor expressed his pleasure at this news with a twinkle in those smiling eyes of his. But he was as anxious about the health of everyone who comes into the office these days, and about their wives health and their children's health. He took this kink for Belfast. He got the nomination for Belfast. He honestly believe he's just practicing on the editor. He's from other sections so that he will have a salutation down pat when he goes to Belfast. These politicians are a queer lot. They're tickled to death to see the people when an election is on, but when it's over they'll—

There I go again. It's soon be giving all the office secrets away. I'm giving altogether too garrulous. "How are things going in Belfast?" asked Our Farmer Friend as he took the seat the editor motioned him to. "I don't know. I'm getting substantial encouragement."

"Well, the fight is going along about as I expected. I'm not rushing things, however. The people of Belfast turned me down before although I worked hard. So far I am giving them the absent treatment. I don't know how they like it, and between you and me the door poster I don't care. I'm sick of being sacrificed politically," and the look that came over the editor's face as he spoke told a whole lot.

"I don't blame you a bit," was the sympathetic remark of Our Farmer Friend. "I don't know what the party has called on me to make the sacrifice and I cannot say they nay. Let's change the subject."

Our farmer friend accepted the suggestion and asked: "Why doesn't the party give us farmers a chance? The farmers are the backbone of the country. Why are the lawyers getting all the nominations? In at least one case that I know about all the members of the firm are in the field. Prince County has another batch of lawyers out there that a young Charlotetown disciple of mine is sparring for an opening in George Town. What's going to become of us farmers if all these chaps get elected."

"Don't fear, they won't be elected. Most of them have been weighed in the balance before and found wanting. They're in politics just now for the advertising."

"I don't think anyone will be elected unless the party gets together and forms a policy and selects a leader. By the way, I hear J. H. Bell's name mentioned as a leader. He is a great talker, quite a contrast to Mr. Richards. But do you think he will prove a drawing card?"

"Personally I think it would be a good thing to get together and map out a policy, but there are others who think it the part of wisdom to leave the sound of their own voices to the discordant elements in the party, and doubt is expressed as to the welding of these. As to Bell as a leader, I hardly know what to say. Many people look upon him as impossible. He is a great talker, it is true, but that is not the whole thing these days. What is wanted in a leader is discretion, and the great talker is not always discreet. Bell likes to hear of us who have our own voice, and those of us who also have some ability in a talking sense would have very little to show were he in command. But what's the use of borrowing trouble. I don't see much chance for Bell in the Bedoué district."

"I gather from the general tenor of your remarks that Mr. Bell's leadership does not appeal to you. You seem to look upon him as a joke," said Our Farmer Friend as a smile illumined his countenance.

"I'm a bit of a joker myself," replied the boss, "but I don't like the Liberal party as well as Bell myself. I can talk as long and say as little as he can, and I can tell just as funny a story. I get up a new story for my lectures every now and then, but Bell never does. He has a story about Mike and Pat and a whisky bottle, for instance, that is so ancient it has become the property of Capt. Read was another of Prince County's alleged statesmen who used to tell stories at election times. He had one stock story, just like Bell. It was about kittens, and he varied it to suit the locality he was speaking in. Perhaps you would like to hear me tell the story?"

"For mercy's sake don't. I have heard it several times already. If that kitten story killed Capt. Read I can see where that Irish jargon will land Bell."

Just then the telephone rung and the boss answered it. The conversation was short, but when it was over the boss expressed regret at the fact that he must leave.

"I have enjoyed to-day visit very much," he said as the two shook hands, "and I hope it will not be long before we meet again."

"It won't be long," was the reply, "for I am keenly interested in the political fight, especially the contest things I wanted to talk to you about, but they have gone clean out of my head to-day."

As Our Farmer Friend said this he took his departure. I suppose, however, he will be back in a few days with a lot of questions to make the boss feel badly. If I had my way I know what I would do with fellows like that.

IN MEMORIAM

MR. GEORGE PROFITT.

The angel of death has again visited the town of Kensington and claimed as its victim, Mr. Geo. Profitt, a well known and respected citizen. Mr. Profitt has been in bad health for some time and his death was not altogether unexpected. Mr. Profitt was a highly respected member of the "Caldwell" Loyal Orange Lodge in which order he displayed much interest. His many friends join in extending to his sorrowing wife their heartfelt sympathy.—K.

MR. DANIEL MCKINNON.

It is with the deepest regret that the Guardian records the death of Mr. Daniel McKinnon. Mr. McKinnon, who has been in ill health for some time past was a well known and respected citizen of Kensington and the heartfelt sympathy of all who knew him goes out to his bereaved and sorrowing family. He leaves to mourn besides a loving wife, five daughters, namely, Mrs. John Haggard, Clermont; Mrs. Joseph McDonald, Clermont; Mrs. John Coady, Sea View; Mrs. Alex Stewart, Kensington; and Miss Ethel at home; also four sons.—Thomas, who now resides in Boston, James who is now on his way to the front, to fight for his King and Country, and Donald and Calvin at home, employees of Reuben Tuplin & Co.—K.

MRS. PHILIP S. FRANCIS.

The death occurred at an early hour on Sunday morning July 11th of Marjorie S. Francis, beloved wife of Philip S. Francis of Moncton, N. B., after a severe illness of several weeks, borne with Christian resignation to the divine will. All that a loving family and medical skill could do was done, but nothing could retard the grim messenger of death. She was a quiet unassuming woman, and was loved by all her friends and neighbors and will be greatly missed both in the home and community. The remains were brought home from Moncton on the 13, being accompanied by her husband and three children to the home from which place the funeral took place on the 14th to the Presbyterian Cemetery where the remains were laid to rest. Rev. Wm. McLeod conducted the service at the house and grave. She was in her 45th year and leaves to mourn a sorrowing husband, three sons, Philip S., and William H., all at home in Moncton and Edward Earl, of Bay Fortune, an aged mother, Mrs. Joseph H. Dingwell of Little River and three brothers, Albert of Cambridge, Mass., Warren in Little River and Harvey, Little Pond and besides a number of sorrowing friends. The pallbearers were—E. G. McKie, E. McFarlane, Joseph Chazy, William Jenkins, Joseph Brown, James Mills. Boston papers please copy.

MR. RONALD MACDONALD.

The old order ever changeth yielding place to the new, and so the old generations vanish to be replaced by new ones. During the present year Ver non and adjacent districts have witnessed the exit from earth's concerns and cares of most of those good and revered residents whose earthly careers carry one mind back to a time when those who are no longer young, were yet unborn. Worthy men and women were they, whose honest toil and industry made their hardships now unknown made their lives a success and a blessing to others and their deaths full of peace in the consciousness of having been good and faithful servants of their Master.

On July the 8th at Cherry Valley death called to eternal rest and reward, Ronald Macdonald at the age of ninety-two. For a great part of a century he had been a prominent citizen of the place, and one of its pioneers. During his long span of years his life had been an exemplary one. Industrious, charitable, a perfect Christian gentleman of the old school, the community respected him, and God favoured him with prosperity, peace and length of days. Scarcely was touched by sickness, the illness which terminated in his death was of only a few days duration. Fortified by all the rites of the church of which in life he had been a most devout and faithful member, his death was calm and peaceful. The father of a large family, two sons only survive him. John in British Columbia and Alexander at home. His funeral was very largely attended, friends, and acquaintances who esteemed him in life coming from far away to pay the last tribute of honor. His remains were laid in St. Joachim's Cemetery beside those of his wife, who predeceased him several years. May perpetual light shine upon him.

GERMAN PEOPLE ARE LOUD IN CONDEMNATION OF LATEST NOTE FROM UNITED STATES

BERLIN, via The Hague, July 26.—The German people are practically unanimous in approval of the editorial utterances of the press in condemning the latest American note. I have heard this through extensive conversations with representative men in all walks of life.

The German people will not sanction any abridgement of the submarine policy, however, much they desire the friendship of America. In official circles the possibility that Americans aboard British war munitions carriers may again be imperiled by submarine attacks is recognized, but is not commented upon.

The first feeling among the Germans was one of surprise that America had failed to grasp the German view-point, and surprise at the phrasing of the American note. This feeling even overshadows the indignation felt in some quarters over the statement that any further submarine attacks, resulting in the loss of American lives, would be considered "deliberately unfriendly."

Despite the air of finality about the latest communication from Washington, political circles here profess to believe the negotiations are not at an end. Sentiment generally favors a reply to America, very friendly phrased, but re-asserting the German view-points.

There is every indication that considerable time will elapse however, before the German Government makes any attempt to answer the note.

Should the United States protest to Great Britain in regard to restrictions placed upon shipping, which it is reported here is now being formulated, be couched in firm terms, it is considered possible the German reply would not be brusque. Hope has not been abandoned that the United States may intend to assail vigorously Great Britain's methods of controlling the sea. Until this point becomes clear the Berlin foreign office probably will mark time.
