—Fairland is nightly growing in popularity and last evening's crowded house probably saw the finest program yet offered, which will crowd the hall again this evening. Some idea of the good impression conveyed by the pictures shown may be gained by the fact that from one of the pulpits a pastor expressed an opinion that while such pictures were shown, all parents should send their children. Everything is carefully inspected before leaving St. John, and nothing but the newest, best and educative pictures find their way to Fairland. Look for the great exhibition program tomorrow morning.

Just at this season, when the thoughts of the world feminine, are centred on Millinery in general, and what will suit each individual style in particular, it may not be amiss to give a delineation of the prevailing modes for the season.

The very many ladies who attended our Millinery Opening have been privileged to view the very latest models from the world of Fashion, all the trimmings being the work of Miss Turrill our clever new milliner and her capable assistants.

That there is a decided change in shapes is, at a glance, apparent, the many-fluted drooping brims of the previous season having given place to straight brims, very narrow in front, gradually widening out to be extremely long and drooping in back. Aside there are bell-hat brims which promise to be favorites. These are worn off the face, giving an entirely new and stylish effect.

The extreme high crowns come mostly in male dress hats, smoothly covered in velvet, silk or satin, the felt shapes almost invariably having the lower crown, felt and "hoods" in line soft finished. The milliner has full scope, and she can practically control the shape, manipulating it to suit each individual wearer, while at the same time preserving the prevailing fashionable outline. A shape that promises to take well, has a very short front brim, very broad at the sides, and narrower again at the back. These are shown both in felt and silk-covered and are generally becoming. The Henry VIII is another new type. This shape has a high leaf-crest crown with a narrow stiff mushroom brim.

The shapes generally are most picturesque but are a totally different type from the Louis styles we have so long been accustomed to.

As to trimmings—feathers of all kinds found first place, the long handsome sweeping Ostrich plumes, as well as the fur tail effects, taking the lead. Next to Ostrich is the puma effect in fancy feathers, such as Marabout &c, which are less expensive. Also the Ostrich plumes, wide soft wing effects, long pointed wings and fancy birds' heads, ending in soft waving plumes. Feathers come in every imaginable shading and blending of shades.

Ribbons also are good style, wide Taffetas being most useful in increasing demand for the satin effect.

Velvet is most important, not only for the all-welvet hat, but for trimming purposes as well. Hints plainly covered with Moire-silk are fashionable, white satin covered are ultra.

Ornaments are more in vogue than for many seasons past, and are of many shapes and materials, mostly large and very handsome. The large bill ornaments which have been popular the past season, that more beautiful and more popular than any ever. Persian lanterns are a novelty, also much in vogue.

Flowers—especially in the large blooms are decidedly good, as is also the Puff, which comes in velvet being fully tinted and shaded.

In colors the "evigne" or rich heliotrope and purple shades are the newest. Brown is decidedly strong, and green in the emerald and emerald shades especially fashionable. Burgundy red and garnet as well as Atlantic and peacock blue are all popular.

Our millinery demonstration has been most successful, ladies of fashion declaring our trimmings and untrimmed millinery to be the most up-to-date seen in the City.

A feature which attracted favorable notice and was much commented on, was the very moderate prices asked for beautiful models.

Orders are literally pouring into our work rooms, and each and every one whether they want a hat at $2.50 or $15.00 will be sure of getting most courteous treatment as well as the latest styles ideas at the hands of Miss Turrill our capable head milliner.
