U.S. EMBARGO

Still Hope for Island

(Canadian Press.)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—The official decision in potato embargo puts exacting restrictions on importation forms requiring importers to notify the department of all shipments from countries not at present under absolute quarantine ban, and enforcement of rigid inspection upon entry are contained in the order. Upon presentation of satisfactory evidence that a country is free from injurious potato diseases and insect pests, potatoes will be admitted from that country.
The Department warns American potato growers against use of second hand British or European sacks, unless thoroughly sterilized.

CZAREVITCH HAS A RELAPSE

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 2.—(Special).—The Czarevitch's health, according to trustworthy reports, is again given cause for anxiety. For the last two or three days he has not been well, the cause probably being an effusion of blood brought on by over-exertion. The news is all the more deplorable as his health at Livadia had previously been excellent, and had inspired hopes that his recovery would be complete.

ANGLICANISM

Serious Outlook

LONDON, Jan. 2.—A religious controversy, which Lord Halifax, President of English Church Union, says, "threatens schism which will rend the church of England in two" has arisen out of a conference held in Kikuyu, East Africa, in June which sought to unite all protestants against the increasing power of the Catholic propaganda in East Africa. Trouble arose because the Bishop of Zanzibar sought to impede the Bishop of Uganda and Mombanza for hereby administering communion to missionaries of various sects comprising the conference, who, of course, were not members of the Church of England.

SHOOTING

Several members of the Civilian Rifle Club, welcomed the New Year with a match at Kensington Range on Thursday morning. With the thermometer hovering around zero, and four degrees of north west wind, it must be confessed these were not ideal conditions for high scores. For example it took three young men to pull down and raise one target in the marking trench, and the marksman had to pull the trigger several times before the cartridge ignited. In other words the oil in the rifles, and frames of targets owing to the cold was frozen.

However everything, has its compensations in this life. The atmosphere was beautifully clear, and exhilarating and then there were no mosquitos or black flies, nor foul odors from the marsh; no bon fires of rubbish whose smoke hid from view the range of targets; no strikes of markers for more pay, no telephone wire out of business, and no delay.

Shortly after 10 o'clock on New Year's morning veteran E. G. Love opened up the season 1914, with the first bull's eye at 200 yards. He received a cheer and a leather medal

SWISS AVIATOR DEFIES HEAVY FOG

BERNE, Switzerland, Jan. 2.—(Special).—Oscar Bider, a Swiss aviator, made a successful flight across the Alps yesterday, though for several hours he was unable to see his way because of the heavy fog which hung over the mountains. The aviator arrived here at a quarter past two o'clock in the afternoon after a journey from Buc, which place he left at nine o'clock.
Bider said that after leaving the French aerodrome he was forced to maintain an altitude of 6,500 feet almost constantly in order to avoid the fog. He passed over the Jura, the chain of mountains separating France from Switzerland, without being able to see any landmarks, but recovered his bearings on sighting the famous mountains of the Swiss Alps, about half an hour before he reached Berne.

one wants to say right here and now, every lover of clean sport loves the Love. He made recently 98 points out of a possible of 105 at 200, 500 and 600 yards and did much last year to keep up the interest of shooting. When Lieut. W. K. Rogers came out to the range with his motor car and saw his comrade shooting his face beamed with approval, for W. K. is no "quitter," and last year shoot on New Year's Day under milder conditions, with some other sports. It was a happy day last summer for Mr. Rogers when the Island marksmen won the Maritime Championship. This year ought to be a banner year for Rifle shooting in this province.

The following score were made at 200 yds. Thursday morning. Seven shots—W. L. Louison, 32; G. R. Beer, 30; Lieut. W. K. Rogers, 29; E. G. Love, 25.
After the match Mr. Rogers very kindly drove each of the marksmen home in his motor car. The members of the Civilian Rifle Club extend best wishes to all provincial riflemen and say, "Here't for the best year yet."

LONDON SUPPORTS

100,000 PAUPERS

LONDON, Jan. 2.—(Special).—London is studying the problem of pauperism. It now supports over one hundred thousand paupers, excluding lunatics. Of these, 72,000 are wholly maintained in institutions.

The Times Annual Review, which is a classic on the question, shows the total is steadily diminishing. Five years ago it reached the high water mark of 130,000. Last year it was 110,000. The reduction is mainly due to old age pensions.

Pauperism costs London nearly twenty millions yearly. The Times pleads for a greater simplicity in administration, the paupers now being relieved by 29 separate Boards of Guardians. It also asks for revision of our educational system which will secure for children leaving school an equipment which will prevent them later on from stepping over the boundary line of pauperism. Voluntary agencies for dealing with paupers have greatly increased.

Usually the reformers, while admitting that London must always have a large army of dependent poor, sick, orphans, and the like, believe the present total will be greatly reduced through the working of the Insurance Act and through land reforms which now drive the country laborers to the towns.

EXPLOSION BURNS ITALIAN COBBLER

CORNWALL, Ont., Jan. 2, (Special).—Ross Cutri, an Italian cobbler of Massena, was seriously burned yesterday by an explosion of gasoline. Cutri attempted to start a fire in a small coal stove. He put wood in the stove and then poured gasoline in. There was an explosion, probably caused by some fire remaining in the stove over night. The burning fluid enveloped the man and he ran into the street with his clothing in flames. John O'Neil, a driver, wrapped a blanket around the unfortunate man and extinguished the flames. Cutri's face and hands were badly burned, but his heavy clothing had protected his body. The force of the explosion blew out the windows of the shop and the interior was set on fire, but quick action on the part of men attracted by the explosion resulted in the fire being extinguished before much damage was done.

IN MEMORIAM

MR. ALLAN MCINNIS

The Belfast congregation has been called upon once again to part with one of its splendid men in the death of Allan McInnis who entered upon his eternal rest on the 15th inst. in the 73rd year of his age. The deceased was an outstanding figure in the congregation of Belfast for over fifty years. For that length of time he was identified with the life of the congregation as choir master, elder, S. S. Supt. or any other capacity in which he could help on the good cause. He was a cheerful and willing worker, and the community looked up to him with the greatest respect. His last public work he did was collecting for missions, when the end drew near he quietly submitted to his Master's will, and left this word of testimony for his dear ones and friends: "I am now going to my Heavenly home." It will take us a long time to get used to the thought that he is gone, but if at any time it is a duty to forget sorrow it is when God is calling his ser-

REIGN OF TERROR IN MID OCEAN

DUNKIRK, Eng., Jan. 2.—(Special).—Wild scenes on board a sailing ship in mid-ocean were described on the arrival of the three-masted ship Gers with two of her crew in irons on a charge of mutiny and attempting murder.

The Gers was two days out from Iquique when two South American sailors, named Gregorio and Letuisan, refused to do any work. They produced daggers and revolvers and retired to the stern of the ship, declaring that they would kill any one who would approach them. The Captain, Samuel Merlin, fearing that there would be bloodshed if they tried to capture them, let them alone and supplied them with food.

Towards the end of October the mutineers invited other sailors to join them. The captain therefore ordered them to give up their arms, and, as they refused, he said they would be given no more food.

The two South Americans threatened to murder the captain if he dared to give such an order, and from that moment they declared open war. A veritable reign of terror began on board.

The two men never slept at the same time, one of them always remaining on the watch. They erected a substantial barricade of barrels and other materials collected a store of food, and for a time stood a siege, occasionally firing their revolvers in the direction of the captain's cabin.

After consultation with his officers the captain decided to make a determined effort to capture the mutineers. The crew were assembled and told to creep up to the decks swept by the mutineers' pistols, and whilst some of them crawled along on their breasts and got under cover of the barricade others were to cover them with their firearms.

One of the mutineers was on the watch, and, calling to his companion, fired his revolver. At the same time he shouted that if the sailors advanced to attack they would set fire to the ship, and to show they meant what they said he set a light to some straw.

After approaching near enough the crew made a simultaneous rush and sprang upon the barricade. The two mutineers, dodging, the sailors rushed after them, and just when they were about to lay hold of the two fugitives they jumped overboard. Boats were lowered, and the two South Americans were captured and put into irons.

NOW, ON THE LEVEL, DID ANYTHING LIKE THIS EVER HAPPEN TO YOU ?
