IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Margaret L. Weatherbie, who died May 19th, 1914.

We watched her breathing through the night, Her breathing, soft and low, As in her breast the wave of life Kept heaving too and fro.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. John Stewart, Bay View, who departed this life May 29th, 1914.

One sad long year today has passed, Yes, we remember well, We watched beside your dying bed, To take our last farewell.

As your spirit took its flight, Away to that home beyond the skies Where there is never any night.

Our thoughts will ever linger In the churchyard where you lay, Oh, mother dear, we miss you, There is a vacant chair.

But we hope to meet in Heaven, There'll be no parting there, Precious darling she has left us, Left us, yes, for evermore.

But we hope to meet our loved one On that bright and happy shore.

MORELL PATRIOTIC MEETING

Sir.—Seeing a paragraph in this morning's Guardian "that for some reason the two men from Charlottetown who speak were unable to be present," and also hearing from other sources that those who attended the meeting were disappointed and blamed those in charge of the recruiting campaign, I feel, as secretary of the committee, that I must, in fairness to the speakers who consented to attend make an explanation.

Lieutenant Rogers of the 55th Battalion informed me that he had arranged a meeting at Morell for Wednesday night, and asked me to secure speakers from the City to attend. I asked His Honor Judge Stewart and Mr. Eneas McDonald, M. L. A. to go, and they both kindly consented, when I at once published their names as speakers.

On Tuesday I asked central to find out who was in charge of the meeting at Morell, and after enquiry she informed me that it was Mr. N. Cox and that he was in Charlottetown. I then phoned him and informed him of what I had done, and he told me that there were plenty of speakers at Morell, and none were wanted from Charlottetown. I then phoned Judge Stewart and Mr. McDonald and told them not to attend the meeting.

I am very sorry, indeed, to find that the good people of Morell should think, as I am informed they do, that either the speakers or committee in charge would try to steal them in any way. I trust that any of the young men who intended to enlist in defence of King, Empire and Home will report to me in Charlottetown within the next few days.

I am, Sir, Etc., T. EDGAR MACNUTT, Captain 82nd Regiment.

A FLAG IN EVERY HOME

Sir.—"A flag in every home." Would that every man and woman in Canada would realize that this is not a matter of small importance, but a matter of vital necessity to the future life and honour of our country. The majority of Canadian young people, and older ones too, think far too little of what our glorious flag really stands for, and one great reason is because they see that their children, from their infancy should be taught to honour and respect the flag of their country, and how can they learn to do this if their parents do not set the example? The United States seems to be more loyal in this respect than Canada, where the flag is an every schoolroom and must be saluted by the children every morning. It is in Sunday Schools also, and every public place where it will attract attention.

We, of all people in the world, have reason to be proud of our flag, so why should we not display it in the best place of all to start in the home. Let every one that comes into our homes know that we are Canadians and thus a part of the great British Empire. Every man and woman in Canada to-day feels a thrill of pride as they read the heroic deeds of the Canadian soldiers in the recent battles of Ypres and Langemarck, but it must be followed by a feeling of shame when they think of the appalling loss of life, because our brave soldiers were pitted against overwhelming numbers and almost annihilated. I think if there had been a law passed about twenty years ago that every home, school, etc., should have a flag, that it would have been a different story. The recruiting officers today would not have the difficulty they have in getting men to enlist for the front, and the Canadians, instead of the Germans, would have the overwhelming numbers.

Men and women of Canada awake to the responsibility that rests upon you. Start on the right track by floating the glorious Union Jack from your windows on June 3rd, the birthday of our noble sovereign George V. Let your children see that you honour and respect the flag, and they will soon learn to do likewise, and when they grow to more mature years they will not forget the good example set them by their parents. Teach them to honour first their God and then their country, and teach them also that the flag is the emblem of their country, an emblem of truth and liberty, that thousands have fought and died for. It is only a small piece of bunting, but it is only an old colored rag; yet thousands have died for its honour and shed their best blood for the flag.

MRS WILFRED WOODSIDE, Kensington, P.E.I. May 27, 1915.

COUNTESS OF CARDIGAN DEAD.

LONDON, May 27.—The Countess of Cardigan and Lancaster, whose first husband, Lieut-General the Earl of Cardigan, led the famous charge at Balaklava, is dead.

AWAKE THOU THAT SLEEPEST!

Nothing is so palpably evident to the casual observer, as the fact that the people of this Province are not awake to the awful state of affairs that prevails in Europe, consequent on this fratricidal war. The apathy of the people is appalling, when we consider what would surely result if the command of the sea should by some unforeseen circumstance be wrested from Great Britain. In a very few days this fair Island would be overrun by these murderous hordes, and we would have a rude awakening, not only to the destruction of our crops and buildings, but to the worse contemplation of the certain violation of our women, the slaughter of our little ones, and the indiscriminate destruction of our men. This is no fairy tale, for if the Germans carried their fire and sword through the forests of Belgium, and made of the place a wilderness, if they treated the people of that splendid country, who were their next door neighbours, who were allied to them in blood, as we have seen they did treat the Jews of Poland, and as they did to the Armenians of Asia Minor, would they not do the same to us?

Now let us get down to business and see just where we stand. Last autumn the farmers of this Island were asked to contribute 100,000 bushels of oats towards the feeding of the horses that had gone from Canada, and it was calculated that this would last the Canadian horses for approximately twenty-one days. It is estimated that the crop of oats on this Island last year was an million bushels (some people say six millions and some say ten); the latter estimate was got from the Agricultural Department by the writer, but suppose we say six millions, so as to be within the safety line, the farmers barely contributed one bushel in every one hundred bushels, that a nation's harvest had given them. And it must be remembered that the remaining ninety-nine bushels were bound to be worth a great deal more per bushel, an account of the very object for which the oats were asked. This is a sure sign that all the farmers do realize the awful position in which the whole Empire stands at the present moment, and they certainly do not realize that if the Germans were in occupation of the Island, then the whole crop of oats would be confiscated, and they would have nothing left, not even their lives, or their homes, or families. Some people will ask, why write such a scare article; this is no scare article at all, nor is it as happened in Poland and in Eastern France; it is the cry in the wilderness, and the sooner we heed it the better.

We had a wonderful exhibition of loyalty in Charlottetown the other evening, and a procession that indicated patriotic devotion to the Crown; we had the Drill Shed packed to the doors that it was only with difficulty that people could find standing room within this enormous building; we had addresses from several of our leading men, intended to stir up the feelings of devotion to the Crown that we know our people are rich with, and look at the paucity of the result, where are the recruits that were asked for? Echo answers where? Is there something wrong somewhere and the sooner we get down to business, and find out where it is, the better for us all.

Ever since we were in leading strings, now quite over a century ago the fleet of Great Britain has been the pride of which we have gone on so proudly, and we have had the air patrol which we have long boasted of; one man from a foreign country, or by a foreign people, and if due reparation were not instantly forthcoming, we knew for a surety the Mother Country would immediately proceed to demand satisfaction; has this been worth nothing to us? Are we not under debt for all this? And now at the extremity of her cry long befriended, what history say of us, if we turn a deaf ear? What will we say of ourselves, if in the time to come the die is cast against us, and we find that where we should have given the bread that was asked for we have given nothing? Let us think of all these things while yet there is time. Do you think that the fathers and mothers of those two boys Alfred Riggs and Roland Taylor, who gave their lives at that important time in the history of our Empire when the days were so dark, regret that their boys are not now with them? There is no possible better way in which a man can pass from our activities than when he emulates the death of the Cross, and dies that others may live.

"O blest who in the battle dies," God will reward him in the skies." That beautiful monument that graces our public gardens, standing in the shadow of those two buildings, where our laws are made and where they are administered, keeps for ever the memory of two boys who went from an island who did not come back, whose blood watered the South African veldt, from which grew the tree of liberty of South African independence, and who would now have it otherwise? Our flesh and blood are now spilling their life stream on the fields of Flanders, and many homes on this Island will be saddened, in addition to those already stricken, and yet it cannot be prevented if we would live as free men.

Unless these conditions, is there not something for all to do, is there any time for junketings, for social gatherings? Should not the men who cannot go to the front have their hands as often as possible in their pockets to assist financially, should not the deft fingers of the women be perpetually knitting the several things so indispensable to the men at the front, and not employed in any other occupation? There will be plenty of time after the war is over to take up our little social amenities, but now let us one and all realize that "life is real; life is earnest," that we have our backs against the wall, and that the very darkest moment in all our thousand years of splendid history is upon us, and that as we now decide so will it be for ever with us and with our children. If it were the last word that I should ever write I would unhesitatingly write: "Awake thou that sleepest!" B.

HAPPENINGS OF THE WEEK

Victoria Day was generally observed and many delightful family picnics and fishing excursions were gotten up and there was a general relaxation much enjoyed by young and old.

Mrs. C. H. B. Longworth made a delightful hostess on Wednesday afternoon for the closing meeting of the Bridge Club. After a very interesting game many pretty prizes were suitably awarded for the past season to those having the highest, lowest and medium scores. A unanimous hearty vote of thanks was tendered the secretary for his untiring efforts in keeping the scores for the season and in helping to make this Bridge the success it was. After a pleasant afternoon during which dainty refreshments were served, the members disbanded until next fall.

The Daughters of the Empire are deeply interested in the Fifteenth Annual Meeting of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire convening this week in Halifax, having sent as their representative, Mrs. Rogers, of Government House. On Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Charles Archibald entertained the National Officers at a tea at her residence. Included among the guests were Mrs. Rogers and Mrs. Hector McInnes, of Halifax, a sister of Mrs. A. E. Morrison, of this city, and many others. A genuine wealth of flowers, pink and white, gladioli, carnations and tulips, were used in decoration of the rooms and table, the flags of the allied nations also being in evidence. Other entertainments were given the visitors, including a most enjoyable tea in the Council House by the Women's Council, at which everyone had a delightful time.

Mrs. Percy Pope is being welcomed from Ottawa by her numerous friends, having arrived in the city Thursday evening.

Among the welcome visitors this week was Mr. W. A. Tucker, of the Bank of Nova Scotia, Halifax.

Miss Helen Hopkirk entertained a few of her friends at a prettily arranged tea on Thursday afternoon at her home on Longworth Avenue.

The convocations at Mt. Allison and Wolfville took place this week and made a pleasant round of gaiety for those more closely concerned with the work. Several former pupils from this city, with other relatives and friends, were present at Mt. Allison and were exceptionally proud of the high standing made by the young ladies. At the University of Wolfville, Mr. Alden B. Dawson, of Ufgg, an exceptionally clever student, was awarded the Governor General's medal for the highest standing in three years' work, while other Islanders also did well.

Miss Marion Newbury, whose marriage to Mr. George D. DeBlois is announced for June, was the guest at a delightful kitchen shower given in her honour Thursday afternoon by Miss Luth Watson at her home on the Esplanade. The gifts were varied and the verses attached exceedingly funny and a delightful social hour was spent. Refreshments were temptingly served by the hostess before guests dispersed. Miss Newbury is very popular in the younger social circle and her coming marriage is being made the occasion of several very delightful social affairs.

Hon. Charles Dalton is at present in Boston, having gone to join Mrs. Dalton and the Misses Dalton there.

Among the interested visitors here this week was Prince Rospiglioso, who had the pleasure of visiting several of the leading fox ranches, the hon. Mr. Dalton, and Mr. Rospiglioso is deeply concerned in the present crisis in Italy, as he is attached to the staff of one of the celebrated generals and may be notified to join his colours at any moment.

Many of the members enjoyed a round of the golf links on Victoria Day, followed by a daintily served afternoon tea. This afternoon Mrs. Haszard and Miss DeBlois will be the hostesses.

Mrs. McLaggan's friends here were delighted to learn that her husband, Mr. C. E. McLaggan, manager of the Royal Bank of Canada at New Glasgow, N.S., is not to be transferred elsewhere as at first announced. Mr. McLaggan was to be transferred from New Glasgow to Pictou, but the business men of town felt they could ill afford to lose his services and freely signed two petitions asking that Mr. McLaggan be retained here. Replies received by the forwarders of the petition state that Mr. McLaggan will be retained.

Premier Mathieson presided yesterday at the Convocation of Prince of Wales College. The lady graduates looked charming in their dainty light dresses and received very many compliments and congratulations on the good work achieved during the year. The illness of Dr. Robertson, which prevented his being present, was deeply regretted by the faculty and students.

"Miss Prim's Kindergarten" came as a delightfully refreshing bit of fun on Thursday evening. St. James Hall was simply packed to the door and everyone enjoyed the antics of the Kindergarteners, while helping along the ever-popular Island Patriot Fund.
