THRILLING SONG ROMANCE OF THE GREAT NORTHWEST with Lois Moran, J. M. Kerrigan, J. Harold Murray

What Thrills as this daring "Mounties" rescues his woman from the raging rapids, saves his superior from the fiery forest and gets his man in the mountainous snows.

UNDER SUSPICION

TO-DAY THRILLING OUTDOOR WESTERN TALKIE

GIBSON SPURS

Hoot at his ridingest, fightingest, laughingest best in a story that plunges you into the fastnesses of wild country, brings you face to face with a band of fierce rustlers and swings you back again to the fastest rodeo you ever saw.

ALSO ANOTHER CHAPTER "Indians Are Coming" AND COMIC SHORTS

"Under Suspicion" Enthralls Patrons

Clothed in a wealth of romance, beautiful daughter of his commanding officer and how he wins her in the face of danger, intrigue and the jealousy of a designing rival, forms the basis of one of the most enthralling and, at the same time, tensely stirring romances ever transferred to the silver screen.

One of the most thrilling features is the great forest fire, during which the hero rescues, by airplane, the father of the girl with whom he is in love. Another striking episode is the rescue of the girl by her lover when she falls into the surging rapids from her capsize canoe.

During the action of the picture, Murray sings three songs that were composed for the production by James F. Hanley and Joseph McCarthy, two of the most popular composers now writing for the screen. The songs, already in the "hit" class are "Whispering Pines," "My Kingdom Door" and "Saskatchewan." A male chorus of 70 trained voices sings the chorus refrain in the last named ballad.

The pallbearers were as follows:—Dr. John McIsaac, Dr. Wm. McLeod, Dr. Murdoch Douglas McLeod, Mr. Harry Tabbot, Mr. Alfred W. Meldon Judge Max S. Levin.

Yesterday is gone, like magic movie reels;
Tomorrow never comes, though we're close upon its heels;
But today's a steed, a foaming steed,
Champing at the bit;
Today is saddled, bridled,
Tugging, pulling at our wit.
Whether we will—no matter—each one of us must ride
And work and play, or smile and frown;
today is our one stride!

Our judges refuse to be influenced by public opinion, says a writer. They have the courage of their convictions.

Presentation To Lt. Col. Full

The officers of the P. E. I. Light Horse held a very enjoyable dinner in the Drill Shed in honor of their retiring Commanding Officer, Lieut. Col. G. Elliott Full, V.D., A.D.C., who is soon to be one of the principals in an important and interesting event. After the toast to "The King" had been disposed of, Col. Full's health was proposed amid acclamations and Major F. I. Andrew then made the presentation as follows:—

Col. Full: It makes me very happy to present this gift from the Officers Mess as a token of our heartfelt best wishes for your future happiness. While we regret the severing of the close ties which have bound us together during the past years, yet we realize that you are so happy in the approaching ties which you are about to assume, that regrets are idle. We all join in wishing that you may have as much success as O. C. your own household as you have had in your marked degree as O. C. the P.E.I.L.H. and we hope that your new command may prove as amenable to discipline as your comrades of the Light Horse.

While Major Andrew was speaking a table on which was displayed a beautiful Chippendale Silver Service was brought in and placed in front of the gallant Colonel, who, though almost unharmed, made a very graceful acknowledgement. Col. Full was then requested to adjourn to an adjoining room where he was made the recipient of two fine silver dishes of the same pattern from the Sergeants' Mess of the Light Horse. Following this Major Thompson of the P.E.I. Highlanders announced that the officers of his unit were planning on adding to the set as
