A loving thought dear Mother,
A memory fond and true

Your face, so kind and true
Resting now in peace with Jesus,
Loving hearts still long for you.

One year has passed since that sad day,
When God called one we loved away
The blow was hard, the shock severe,
We little thought the end so near
We loved you here, we love you still,
Forget you, no, we never will.

INTERESTING COMPETITION —Local letter carriers are "all agog" over the rivalry shown in their current smelt catching contest, carried on under unofficial rules. The competition is, divided into three phases it is said, the degree of expertness shown in the actual spearing of the fish, the number caught and size of those caught and the quantity which can be consumed by the fishermen at a "sitting." At present it is believed Mr. Hooper Essery is enjoying a comfortable lead well out in front of the next competitors who are believed about ready to concede his domination in the contest. Messrs. Frank Longaphie, Tom Whelan and Angus Weir and runners up.

MOCK TRIAL AT Y'S MEN'S CLUB—The Y's Men were entertained at their weekly meeting last night by a mock trial of one of their members. Y's Men Doc. MacLauchlin and Harvey Denton acted as judges. Much damaging evidence was produced by Jim MacFadyen, the prosecuting lawyer and torn up by Frank Clarke and Bill Massey, the lawyers for the defence. The judges tried to guide the jury to a decision by quoting poetry. They also emphasized the law of compensation —where many gain, only a few must lose. The accused was pronounced "not guilty" and recommended for a permanent place on one of the club's committees. Fred Andrew presided at the meeting. John Price, Earl Taylor, Ralph Johnstone and Mr. Hawkins of Toronto were present as guests.

PROF. BARLOW TO ASSIST IN YOUTH WORK

Growing Popularity Of Manual Training Courses Sponsored By Y's Men's Club.

For several years Y's Man J. L. Curran has conducted Manual Training Classes at Y. M. C. A. Each year there has been a marked increase in number of boys wishing to attend these classes.

This season the applications were so numerous it has been found necessary to provide for the enlargement of these classes. At the weekly meeting of Y's Men's Club it was decided to provide assistance to Y's Man Curran and arrangements were made to have Mr. Percy Barlow take over some of these classes.

Mr. Barlow needs no introduction to the Citizens of Charlottetown. For many years he taught Manual Training in the city schools, also at P. W. College. There is now greater opportunity for boys to participate in this very important branch of technical training.

Y's man J. L. Curran will continue giving instructions along with Mr. Barlow. The Y's Men's Club are to be commended for the splendid work they are conducting for the youth of this City. This increased activity is in line with the judgment of a number of our community leaders interested in Youth Training.

Veteran Actress Recalls Thrills Of Stage Days

BY MARY ELIZABETH PLUMMER

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 —(AP)— Three decades from the time she first enchanted New York as "Peter Pan" in Sir James Barrie's play, Maude Adams today told an audience — which as children whispered warnings to Peter years ago over the footlights—that "of all my plays, I love 'Peter Pan' best."

Many grown-ups who hoarded pennies in Peter Pan banks back in 1906 in order to see the play eight or 10 times crowded into town hall where the actress, now 66, talked on "phases of the drama."

Appearing on a New York stage for the first time since her retirement more than 20 years ago, Miss Adams took three curtain calls. Finally she blew a kiss to the capacity audience. Nearly 500 were turned away.

Then, in a gentle voice with a trace of sadness, she said, "Chantecler' was my most inspiring play."

"We start out young, thinking like Chantecler that we can make the sun rise. The chief idea of that play is man's acceptance of his work, his task.

"We must sing the song we know, sing the song God gave us—sing it until death."

Miss Adams said "Peter Pan" gave her open sesame to the world of children.

"Oh, the pleasure of that play" she exclaimed. "Oh, the happy, happy life of an actor."

Slain Toronto Man's Sister Is Threatened

TORONTO, Jan. 12—(CP)—Police clung tonight to a theory James Windsor's killing is an American gunman as they increased protection for the family of the bookmaker, slain Saturday night in his north Toronto home.

Shortly after attending Windsor's funeral, his sister, Mrs. Eva McDermott, reported to investigators she had received a threatening letter which said; "If you know what is good for you, keep your mouth shut. You know what happend to J. W. Lay off."

Police took immediate steps to increase the guard on the Windsor house where Mrs. McDermott and her sister, Mrs. Edward Warner, live with their husbands.

The four witnessed the brutal murder of Windsor and told police they were confident they could identify the man who shot Windsor in the stomach as the bookmaker rose from a chair beside his kitchen table.

The letter to Mrs. McDermott, printed in blue ink and blotted in several places, was signed "W. H."

Dismiss Appeal By Crown In Supreme Court

One case an appeal by the Crown from a dismissal in a liquor act charge, was disposed of in Supreme Court yesterday. It was the King, appellant vs. Leonard Cairns, respondent. The appeal was dismissed on the ground that personal service of notice of appeal had not been made. Mr. J. J. Johnston, K. C., was counsel for Cairns. Mr. Justice Arsenault was presiding Judge.

Argument in two other cases of a somewhat similar nature, in which a dispute over notice of appeal had arisen would be argued later, it was decided. They were both cases in which the accused was appealing. When the court adjourned last evening to meet again today at 10.30 a. m. the case of the King, respondent vs. Otis Young, appellant, was before the court. It was an appeal from a conviction for operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated. The sentence was seven days in jail. Witnesses included Police Officers L. A. McInnis and Gordon Storey of the City Police for the Crown and the accused, Otis Young. The case was adjourned until later in the session to permit the defense to obtain another witness.

Mr. R. R. Bell was Attorney for Young. Attorney General Thane A. Campbell and assistant Crown Prosecutor Frederic A. Large are representing the Crown.

Today the "count" liquor cases will occupy the attention of the Court.

Old Aboideaux Still In Use On Chignecto

SACKVILLE, N. B. Jan. 12—(CP) —Built by early Acadian settlers 183 years ago, an aboideaux is continuing in service as part of the Sackville-Point de Bute highway The combination dyke and bridge was first used in Normandy, France, and later in this country, to shut out the sea and facilitate drainage of reclaimed land.

Cumberland Basin, at the head of the Bay of Fundy and along the south shore of the Isthmus of Chignecto, has a tidal variation of 10 to 40 feet. The Aulac River flows northeast from the basin and between broad stretches of fertile marsh. In describing how settlers built aboideaux, a record dating as far back as 1710 says:

"The method was to plant five or six large trees in the places where the sea enters the marshes, and between each row to lay down other trees lengthways on top of each other and fill the vacant places with mud so well beaten down that the tide could not pass through it. In the middle they adjusted a floodgate in such a way as to allow the water from the marsh to flow out at low water without permitting the water from the sea to flow in at high tide."

To make Acadian settlers on land adjacent to the Aulac independent in three years Abbe Le Loutre planned the huge aboideaux now forming part of the highway between here and Point de Bute. The abbe was priest at Beausejour and vicar general of priests in Acadia.

Tremendous difficulties were encountered. More than 300 men worked day and night between tides. Thousands of cartloads of stones and fascines were used. After three months a strong tide destroyed the first sluices but in two years (June, 1755) the aboideaux was finished above the high tide mark.

Sir Sanford Fleming Planned One

Other aboideaux were built later across the Aulac. Quicksands ruined two. The Etter Aboideau, constructed under the supervision of Peter Etter, was erected near the site of one of the defective structures.

Sir Sanford Fleming, in surveying the line of the Intercolonial Railway between Moncton and Truro, decided to build an aboideau near Cole's Island, use the Etter Aboideau for crossing the Aulac River and build a short wooden bridge east of Aulac Station.

Most of the travellers entering or leaving the Maritime Provinces pass through the Isthmus of Chignecto, geographical centre of the Maritimes. The great majority of Canadian soldiers who went overseas and returned crossed the Etter Aboideau either going or coming.

The tides are engaged in a never-ending war against the old Acadian dyke. Twice every 24 hours they sweep in from the Bay of Fundy.

A decision by the New Brunswick government to straighten the Amherst-Sackville highway and eliminate two dangerous level railway crossings led to the construction in 1929 of the last aboideau to be built across the Aulac. A main railway line crosses this site immediately north of the Etter Aboideau.

Resume Hearing In Conspiracy Case

HALIFAX, Jan. 11 —(CP) — Three witnesses were called by the Crown today in the case against William Babineau of Moncton and Thomas P. Slattery of Saint John, two New Brunswick men charged with conspiracy following a $11,000 liquor seizure on the Moose River Road, Halifax County, last September.

James R. Brown of Saint John, district accountant of the New Brunswick Telephone Company, gave evidence regarding long distance calls allegedly made from the telephone of Slattery. Miss Gertrude Pinder, assistant registar of New Brunswick Motor Vehicle Department, Fredericton, testified to registration of a car in the name of Slattery.

Boyd Prest of Mooseland, told the court he saw a truck in the ditch on the night preceding the seizure of the liquor cargo. He identified Babineau as one of the men present when the truck was ditched.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police seized a truck bearing New Brunswick license plates. Joseph Leo LeBlanc of Ste. Anne de Kent, N. B., is charged with Slattery and Babineau, but is a fugitive from justice.

PREDICT NEW REVELATIONS IN FRAUD CASE

(By JOHN FERRIS)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

NEW YORK, Jan. 11 —The possibility that new and startling revelations would be made soon in the McKesson and Robbins case was held out tonight as officials examined the secret correspondence of the late F. Donald Coster-Musica and the personal ledgers he kept through the years of his $11,000,000 defalcations.

The papers and books, containing numerous entries in Coster-Musica's handwriting and the names of persons not yet mentioned in the investigation of his colossal fraud, were found hidden in an old shed outside the McKesson and Robbins drug plant in Fairfield, Conn.

Postal inspectors, on the job since Coster-Musica's suicide following his exposure as an ex-convict once involved in a million dollar swindle, turned up the documents. They were two bales. An attempt evidently had been made to destroy them, said Gregory F. Noonan, Assistant United States Attorney.

They gave a fairly accurate picture of Coster-Musica's activities, Noonan said, from the time he vanished in 1920 from New York where he was under indictment for subornation of perjury, to a month ago when his financial trickery came to light.

Meanwhile, two of Coster-Musica's three brothers, seized on a charge of violating the Securities Act of 1934 in connection with the filing of false financial statements with the New York Stock Exchange and the Securities and Exchange Commission, were released in bail from Federal Custody but arrested on state indictments.

The brother were George E. Dietrich-Musica, assistant treasurer and an assistant vice-president, and Robert Dietrich-Musica, head of the shipping department at Bridgeport. Like Coster-Musica they had hidden their past histories and names.

Elephants Parade In Tea Centenary

LONDON, Jan. 10 —(CP Havas) —A procession of tea-laden elephants, commemorating the Empire Tea Centenary was greeted with glee by throngs of London children today.

Laughing bands of youngsters followed the state pachyderms as they proceeded from the Saint Catherine dock to Tower Hill and Mincing Lane. One of the elephants caused particular delight among the specators by "goose-stepping" and saluting with his trunk. The parade was organized by the Empire Tea Centenary Committee.

At Mincing Lane the boxes of tea were unloaded and sold at auction with Sir Frank Bowater, Lord Mayor of London, presiding.
