A GOOD ENTRY LIST FOR THE NOVA SCOTIA PROVINCIAL EXHIBITION.

Only one more week and the Provincial Exhibition will be in full swing. The entries so far received are in many classes larger than last year, and it is especially pleasing to note that many of the exhibitors in Stock are those who have not exhibited in previous years.

One department that appeals to many visitors is that of the Fine Arts. Dr. Ritchie, Superintendent states that the gallery will have an unusually large display. It is customary for the public to wait until the second day before visiting the grounds with the belief that the first day is "get ready day." This year it is planned to have everything ready for the opening on Wednesday at 2.00 p. m. The aeroplane man has arrived and will be ready for business by the first of the week. One of the best horse races on the program will be on the opening day when nine horses will state the Starter in the 2.18 Trot and Pace, and if anyone can pick the winner he is a wizard.

The full vaudeville programme concluding with the best display of fireworks ever seen at this exhibition will be put on before the Grand Stand beginning Wednesday Evening. 11.55-8-28M11.

HOME MARKETS.

From our St. John, N. B., exchanges we learn that 250 cases of eggs, 7,500 dozen, were received in that city last week from Prince Edward Island to supply the local demand. The papers make the usual comments on the opportunities let slip by the New Brunswick farmers in not supplying this demand and lecture them somewhat soundly on allowing others to supply a market which they should control themselves.

The facts are that New Brunswick farmers are producing more eggs than ever before, that Prince Edward Island farmers are doing likewise and that with all their increasing production they are still unable to supply the demand. The consuming power of all Canada, including the Maritime Provinces, has increased enormously. The City of St. John has added very largely to its population during the past year as a result of the public works in progress there; other cities and towns in the Maritime Provinces are increasing in size and in purchasing power. There is a very greatly increased demand for food products, production has not kept pace with the demand and as a result one province is obliged to barter with another and each is obliged to procure its supplies from any available source.

This is the situation at present in the Maritime Provinces, a healthy, hopeful situation which should inspire our producers to greater effort and greater hope in the future. The home market is forever broadening and many years will elapse before the supply overtakes it.

Here in Prince Edward Island we are in many lines barely able to supply even our own limited market, while in not a few lines we fall far short and import from our neighbors what we should produce for ourselves. Thanks to the impetus given to our poultry business through the efforts of the Department of Agriculture and its well-informed and enthusiastic expert, Mr. Benson, the egg production in the province has already increased somewhat and promises to still further increase in the near future. More important however than the increase in quantity is the improvement in quality as a result of this educational work, so that today Prince Edward Island eggs, instead of being the "worst going into the Montreal market" - as has been stated - are now regarded as among the very best. In fact upwards of 35,000 dozen have this summer been marketed, co-operatively, commanding a premium of three cents per dozen.

We have for many years been large exporters of eggs, but heretofore they have gone much farther afield than to the neighboring provinces for a market. With the increasing demand in our nearby provinces and throughout Canada, not only for eggs but for all other food products the only question now to consider is how to produce more abundantly and to still further improve the quality of all our products.

In our own province extensive public works have already been begun in connection with the Car Ferry. The standardizing of the P. E. Island Railway will mean employment for many hands, money will be more freely circulated and the markets generally will be firmer and more exacting than heretofore.

The time has arrived when the home market must be more carefully catered to. Its needs must be studied, and its measure taken. It will be found in every case that quality counts and that as far as quantity is concerned we are, and for many years shall be, far short of supplying it. There is an unlimited market for all our food products, provided they are put up to suit the market's requirements.

THAWING THE LAW.

Thaw's name has become a synonym for legal obstruction by the unlimited flow of money. That Thaw is a decadent, and a fortune of $80,000 per annum has been his ruin is self-evident. There is not much use laboring that point or moralizing over it. His decadence and his money brought him to the foot of the gallows; and what is far worse from an ethical standpoint, his money also clogged the wheels of justice; otherwise he would long have ceased from troubling and the authorities would have been at rest.

The pity is so much publicity has been given to Thaw and his misdoings, and it is time a general protest should be uttered against the sensationalizing of his imprisonment and trial in Canada for an offence against our immigration law. No one desires to see the law of Canada demoralized and brought into disrepute as has been the law of the United States. Yet that is what is happening today. The prisoner, who according to a British conception of the fitness of things, should be lying safely under lock and key with no one having access to him but his solicitor or relatives, is daily holding receptions of Press representatives, and as he declares "managing the publicity department himself," without the assistance of his lawyers or anybody else.

"This is nothing less than an outrage, and it is regrettable in the extreme that public opinion has not resented such travesty of justice. We don't want Canada to be a second Republic where a man of money may override the law with impunity merely by his ability to organize and pay for a huge publicity campaign on his own account.

As a New York contemporary points out, the Thaw money cursed and degraded the State of New York at two trials that brought justice into contempt and scandalized American courts throughout the world. It was the Thaw money that saved him from the death penalty; it was the Thaw money that maintained a protracted contest in the courts to overthrow the judgment of insanity by which his life had been saved; it was the Thaw money that schemed ceaselessly for a release which he could not have by legal means. Similarly in his escape from Matteawan, the Thaw money has gained one more triumph over law; but surely that money is not to come hand in hand with the fugitive into Canada, at war with decency and order, and tempting the lawyers of this country to carry on the same tactics as characterized the suits of their confederates in New York.

Already we see the effects of the outpouring of the Thaw treasury. His attorneys are exhausting every possible means to get a grip of the situation, interviewing the Minister of Justice and flooding the newspapers with interviews and opinions upon the prospects of the coming trial.

We are told also that thousands of letters have reached the Department of Justice urging Thaw's unconditional release. More than likely these are the result of the publicity campaign upon which Thaw relies so much. Whether or not, it is surely a sign of decadence that so many people could be found to interfere with the fount of justice.

In the Old Country were such a thing conceivable, the judge or department concerned would not only turn a deaf ear to the entreaties, but would immediately set the law in motion to obtain convictions for contempt of court.

The Thaw money has brought law and justice in the United States into contempt throughout the civilized world. Surely it is not to be allowed to come into Canada and curse and defile the law courts here.

Were our contemporaries on the mainland to show a little more restraint, in accepting and publishing Thaw stories, probably they and the public they cater for would be the gainers in the long run. The glamor of a sensational story is rather blinding, but were the fiat to go forth to the news agencies that Thaw's case was to be reported merely as an ordinary immigration offence, and were the legal authorities to discourage interviews with the prisoner in his cell, Thaw would soon find his level before the British bar, and would realize that whatever advantage his wealth may give him in "the land of the free," it is entirely of no avail here where Blind Justice holds the scales.

NOTES.

In connection with the telegraphic announcement of Prince Arthur of Connaught as our next Governor general, London Opinion so long ago as August 2 said:

Prince Arthur of Connaught is going to Canada in succession to his father as Governor-General, and will take over his appointment towards the end of next year. Let anyone should doubt this statement, it may be added that he says so himself, and may be allowed to know.

That Prince Arthur will be created a royal Duke before his marriage has already been settled, and it is probable that he will receive the time-honoured title of Duke of Kent. His eldest son will in due time be in a unique position, since he will be ultimate heir to no fewer than three Dukedoms, those of Kent, Connaught and Fife respectively. This would not be a record, however, since the Duke of Richmond possesses four ducal titles; Richmond in the Peerage of England, Gordon in the Peerage of the United Kingdom, Lennox in Scotland, and Duc d'Aubigny in France. When the Dukedom is conferred upon H. R. H., which, of course, will entitle him to take his seat in the House of Lords, it is understood that the Duchess of Fife will abandon her present title in favour of that of her husband.

Very few people are aware that the Duchess of Fife once wrote a play. This was a few years ago, and under a pseudonym, she sent it to one of the best known actor-managers in London. He kept it for the customary lengthy period and then returned it with a note that hinted that it was rather rubbish, and that the author of it had better turn "his" attention to something more useful. Her Royal Highness, by the way, has rather strong poetic leanings, and has written a few charming little verses that are, however, strictly reserved for "private circulation only."

OF VITAL IMPORTANCE TO THE FOX INDUSTRY.

Sir,-Referring to your editorial in this morning's Guardian, a meeting of the Committee of the Queen's County Fox Breeders' Association was held at the office of Mr. E. R. Brow last night. Those present were unanimously of the opinion that the Queen's County Association should be dissolved. A meeting of the Fox Breeders of Queen's County will be called shortly when the matter of dissolution will be finally disposed of.

I think your point as to the inadequacy of the fees for membership of the P. E. Island Association is well taken and should be remedied at once.

In my opinion there should be a generous initial fund at the disposal of the executive of the Association to carry out its objects. I am quite satisfied that unless higher fees are imposed the Association will be abortive. There are also several other matters of vital importance that demand attention at once. These were either overlooked or not given sufficient consideration in the hurry of organization at the meeting at Summerside.

I have called a meeting of the Executive of the Association for Friday next when the matter of membership fees and the other matters alluded to will come up for consideration.

I am, sir, etc.,
ALEXANDER ROSS, President.

LETTER FROM P. E. ISLANDER IN NEW ZEALAND

Dr. J. S. Bagnall has just received the following most interesting letter from his cousin, Mr. Lemuel J. Bagnall, of Auckland, New Zealand. Mr. Bagnall is the eldest son of the Hon. George Bagnall, who was one of the first batch to be made hon. before the Upper House was made elective. He left with his family in a sailing ship "Pakeha," fifty years ago this fall. Accompanying him at the time were a number of passengers from the Island, including Mr. John Darrach and family.

Mr. Bagnall "made good" in his new home where the family has now large lumbering and farming businesses known as the Bagnall Bros. He holds a prominent place in the public life of New Zealand, and has been eminently successful and a credit to the Island. His expression of opinion upon local affairs shows that though half a century separates him from the Island, he still evinces a great interest in the affairs of his native land.

Auckland, N.Z., 31st July, 1913.
Dr. J. S. Bagnall, Charlottetown, P. E. I.

My dear cousin:-By the last outgoing mail I had just time to acknowledge receipt of your esteemed letter of the 7th May. I am always pleased to hear from our Island relatives and friends. Though it is now nearly 50 years since we left P. E. I's shores we still hold it dear and people in sincere affection and rejoice to hear of their welfare. The great progress you have made and the prospect of the car ferry interest me very much. As I mentioned in a former letter the trade between Canada and New Zealand is advancing rapidly. The S. S. "Niagara" by which this letter goes takes nearly a full load of beef and butter from this port. She is 18,000 tons and has a part load from Sydney, New South Wales, which is her starting port. There is also a steadily growing passenger trade between the two countries. There are a few people here from the western provinces and still fewer from the eastern provinces, except those from P. E. I. The latter and their descendants make up a pretty fair number. We are all much pleased with New Zealand and especially Auckland. I have just returned from lunching with the Consul General of the United States who is leaving by the Niagara to-morrow. The man on my left was the Canadian Trade Commissioner to New Zealand, a Mr. Beddoe. He has been here for several years and is a very live man who has done much to promote the trade of the two countries. It is astonishing how Auckland has developed during the past ten years. It is shortly to be made a naval base and men-of-war will be here constantly. Our Harbour Board has been for some years carrying out a very extensive wharf, beam and decking, re-erected concrete is used in wharf building, thus making a stone structure which is supposed to be everlasting. By the time the whole plan is finished something like two millions sterling will have been spent.

I am very much interested in the fur-breeding industry. I think it a splendid idea and trust it may long flourish in P. E. I. I think with you that when the trade has to depend on prices for fur that profits will not be so great but even then a payable trade would remain. It is an industry that will not employ many hands or not much labour. With the growing unrest in labour circles this is probably a good thing for fox-racer owners but will not add materially to the population. This is a pity. What P. E. I. wants is more population employed in some manufacturing industry. Still the foxes will certainly add much to the wealth of the country.

I am amused at the strong objection shown to the automobile by P. E. Islanders. In Auckland we have them in hundreds. There are 120 on the streets plying for hire while some 700 or 800 are owned privately. Their advent has almost driven the cabs out of the town and the trade in carriage horses has been set back very much. To busy people such as medical men and commercial travellers they are very valuable. I am not much in love with them and am old-fashioned enough to prefer the cab and horses. Still I admit their value and feel sure they will ultimately knock the horses out in the carriage line. I have had a pleasant time in reading through the books you sent me. I was however disappointed in the meagre references to the Loyalists in them. I had seen several notices in the papers of the work being done by "Empire Loyalists" and supposed that all of the mainland had cared little for their friends who went to P. E. I. The principal excitement here just now is an outbreak of smallpox. Fortunately it is of a very mild kind. It is confined chiefly to the Maoris and is now beginning to die out. I am expected that in a month we shall have a clean bill of health. In December an exhibition is to be opened here. It is on a fairly large scale and is expected to attract a large attendance. I suppose none of you Islanders care to be induced to come along and see it and us at the same time. Should be delighted to have a visit from you and your good lady. If my wife and I live until October 10th next we propose having a Golden Wedding when we propose having some of our friends at an entertainment.

I must now close wishing you much health and happiness and the members of your family in which Mrs. Bagnall and all here join.

Your loving cousin,
LEMUEL J. BAGNALL.

Rev. James McDougall, Cape Traverse, was among visitors to the capital yesterday. He returned home in the afternoon.

Mr. John Anderson, the Provincial Auditor, is at present in Toronto, attending the Supreme Court of the Independent Order of Foresters. He will be back in Charlottetown on Monday next.

Dr. J. G. Schurman, president of Cornell University and American ambassador to Greece, leaves Athens today for America according to word just received by his brother-in-law, Rev. D. G. Macdonald, pastor of Ladder Baptist Church, who is living in Collingwood east, says the Vancouver World of August 18th. Dr. Schurman, who has served with a year's leave of absence during a President Taft's term, and was then appointed by the president as ambassador to Greece. He is now at liberty to retire from the university at an allowance of $4,000 a year during life or return to his work as president. He will, most likely, choose the latter course. Dr. Schurman is a P. E. Islander, who has risen to great prominence as an educationalist and as an all-round man.

BEERSHOP RAIDED AND GAMBLERS CAUGHT

NEWCASTLE, N. B., Aug. 27.-Roman's beer shop was raided yesterday afternoon by Policemen Dickinson and Constable Broeker and the youthful proprietor and six townsmen were arrested charged with gambling. Several others escaped through the back window. The seven were arraigned in the police court this morning were admitted to bail and the trial postponed till Friday. One or two other establishments in the same business heard of the raid in time to save themselves from a similar fate.
