We have just received a shipment of CONNOR "NUWAY" HAND WASHERS. This washer employs a simple but very efficient method of washing clothes. The swinging motion of the tub forces the hot suds through every fibre of materials and thoroughly cleanses them in a few minutes.

Very little effort is required to operate the washer. It swings back and forth on steel bearings and oil-tempered steel springs reverse the motion-relieving the operator of all strain.

The washer is complete with the CONNOR hand power wringer which is built on the same principle as the famous CONNOR electric wringer except that it has no gears. It has large long soft rubber rolls (2 1-4" x 12") mounted on steel bearings. It turns much easier than old style wringer and wrings drier.

ALUMINUM INDUSTRY ADVANCES IN INDIA

NEW DELHI, Aug. 1 — (CP) — Spectacular developments have taken place in India's aluminum industry, which made a substantial contribution to the Allied war effort. India now ranks among the world's leading producers of aluminum, although this metal was first produced in that country in 1943. Earlier, Indian manufacturers depended entirely on imports.

Extension to the existing factory in Travencore is taking place and soon an output of 5,000 tons of aluminum per month is expected. Another factory in Bihar, now nearing completion, will have an ultimate capacity of 40,000 tons a year.

During the war Indian aluminum factories produced sheet and components for the manufacture of aircraft parts radios and field equipment, range finders, binoculars and field hospital equipment. Many thousand long range-range fuel tanks were manufactured for use by fighter aircraft in the Burma campaign.

Immediate post-war developments include the manufacture of aluminum cable, paint and foil. A number of Indian technicians now are undergoing training in various plants in Canada.
