ARBOR—EMPIRE DAY

Arbor and Empire Day will be celebrated in all our city and country schools today. This celebration has been an annual event during the life time of practically all who are living today, originating in the birthday of "Victoria the Good" and, after her death, continuing in her memory as Empire Day. Many hallowed associations cling around "the Queen's Birthday," commemorating as it does one of the brightest periods and many of the most important events in the history of the British Empire.

It is fitting that the day should be seriously, enjoyably and instructively observed, fitting that the children of today should be reminded of the way their heritage has come to them, of the sacrifice, the heroism and the patriotism that have built up the greatest Empire that the world has ever seen, an Empire which is now theirs to maintain, to improve, to live for and, if necessary, to die for.

Provision has been made in today's programme, for reference, direct and indirect, to these vital matters. The programme will be carried out under the British flag, "the flag that braved a thousand years the battle and the breeze." Instructive addresses will be given by prominent citizens, patriotic songs, suitable for the occasion, will be sung by the pupils under direction of their teachers and the proceedings will be witnessed by parents and citizens generally. We trust there will be a goodly attendance of citizens present at each of the schools to express their interest in and their sympathy with the proceedings of the Empire Day celebration.

Supplementary to the Empire Day programme Arbor Day will be observed on the school grounds in tree and shrub planting, games and other amusements. As the historic "24th of May" falls this year on Sunday, the holiday will be observed on Monday, 25th.

APPRECIATED RECOGNITION

It was eminently fitting that His Honour Lieutenant Governor Hertz should extend his official patronage to the exercises of the Cadet Corps of the City Schools on the occasion of their annual public inspection. These two cadet corps, West Kent and Queen Square Schools, have for several years attracted interested attention and admiration. In their different manners, on their own campus or on public exhibition, their soldier-like appearance, their excellent discipline and their thorough knowledge of the various military evolutions have been a source of pride to the city. The compliments paid them on this latest occasion by Cadet Officer Captain Logan were well merited and when the results of the various inspections throughout the Military District are published we expect to see these two corps mentioned among the leaders.

The Cadets and their instructors greatly appreciated the kindness and thoughtfulness of His Honour in being present at the public inspection and, in his official capacity as the Representative of His Majesty, "taking the Salute" from the young recruits. This, as it should be, and all classes of citizens fully appreciate the public spirit and helpful sympathy shown by His Honour in every movement that makes for the betterment and welfare of the City and province. The Lieutenant Governor is the social as well as the official centre of the province and Governor Hertz has admirably filled the role since accepting his high and honourable position.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Even the most discriminating Liberal can now find only an occasional hole in the road to complain of and even the Conservatives are complaining of these.

The "24th of May" this year will be the 25th but will be just as enjoyable a holiday as if it fell on the accepted date. "A rose by any other name, &c."

One irresponsible auto driver in a thousand will make the road dangerous for the other 999. If that ONE is looked after by the authorities the others can look after themselves.

"The fierce light that beats upon a throne" is nothing to monkey with. The equivocation which might be excusable in a taxicab driver who secured an illegal fare through trickery, is not only inexcusable but damnable in a prime minister. It should be infra dig for a prime minister to equivocate.

The shore front at Victoria Park is to be protected from the encroachments of the sea by a concrete wall. This is a move in the right direction. Wonder when that potentially beautiful sheet of water known as Government Pond shall be transformed into the thing of beauty that it is capable of becoming at an expense which would be but a fraction of its worth to the City.

In a certain society notice sent to the editor of a country newspaper the information was incidentally given that Mrs. Jones, who was one of the 400, "kneads her bread with her gloves on," to which the editor added, by way of emphasizing the common lot, "We need our bread with our gloves on; we need it with our trousers on, we need it with our boots on, and if our subscribers paid up we would have it."

Lloyds Register reports a somewhat unusual case of pilot responsibility. A ship, while compulsorily in charge of a Kiel Canal pilot, had been in collision and held to blame. The owners claimed reparation by the State of damages which they had paid. The Supreme Court of Germany held that the state was liable for the wrongful act of the pilot while compulsorily in charge of the ship as a state official and ordered that payment be made accordingly. This decision, however, will not apply generally as a pilot is only an advisory officer and does not take control of the ship. In the case of the Kiel Canal and also of the Suez Canal, the pilot is an officer of the State and the State is responsible for his acts.

This is Queen Alexandra Rose Day, when the ladies of the I. O. D. E. will make their annual appearance on the streets, personally or by amiable young lady proxies, selling roses or rather giving them in return for a small cash contribution. This is one of the few sources of revenue available to the Independent Order of the Daughters of the Empire, one of the greatest institutions in the Empire. Their good work during the war will never be fully repaid. The I. O. D. E. has taken an active part in the educational life of the Empire, having among other good works, established scholarships available to deserving young men in every province and in every dominion of the Empire. We, as citizens of all classes, can help a little in the good work by buying a rose today from the young ladies who will greet us in the streets. Let every one wear a rose today to show their appreciation of what the I. O. D. E. has done and is still doing.

Notes By The Way

Saskatchewan is warming up for the provincial election on June 2, now only ten days away. The air temperature was up to 95 degrees in the shade in Saskatoon on Monday last. Down here we never have it near so hot as that, even in mid-summer season.

One canvass against Premier Dunning in Saskatchewan is that he is about to enter the federal arena taking a Cabinet position in the King Government. For that reason the Yorkton Enterprise, Progressive, intimates that his usefulness is gone, that he will not be Premier next year, as he will either be defeated at home or elected to go to Ottawa later.

Some months ago a rumor cropped up that Hon. Dr. Baxter, M.P., for Saint John, would retire from federal honors, for the time at least, and return to local politics as leader of the Conservative opposition. The Fredericton Gleaner now confirms this report, and states that at a recent meeting of the Opposition, Mr. C. D. Richards, the present leader tendered his resignation, and in doing so intimated that Hon. Dr. Baxter, with whom he has always been friendly, would succeed him as Conservative leader in provincial affairs. An Opposition convention will meet in Fredericton next week when it is expected that a formal tender of the leadership will be made to Dr. Baxter and accepted by him.

That no Dominion general election will be held until 1926 was intimated by George W. Kyte, M. P., chief Liberal whip in addressing a political meeting in Windsor, Ont., on Monday last. As in duty bound, Mr. Kyte praised the King Government for having kept all its promises and he says it stands stronger now after its fourth session than any previous government since Confederation! That was a lofty flight for Mr. Kyte.

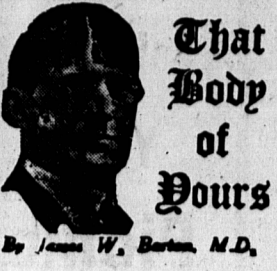

It was a message of cheer, however, for the rather down-hearted Liberals and Progressives now sitting in Parliament, so many of whom have come to realize how small their chance is of being again elected when the appeal to the country is made. They will at least be assured of another session and another $4,000 indemnity, which would be lost to many of them if the election were to be held this year. Many things have happened since they were elected in December, 1921, that are not cheering to either Liberals or Progressives.

The Drury Government fell in 1923 with a sickening thud. In the same year the Bell Liberal Government fell in this Province. Since then the Liberal Governments have fallen in Manitoba and Alberta while in British Columbia another Liberal Government only escaped defeat by the skin of its teeth. This year the Liberal Government in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick must face the electors with slim chances of success against strong and confident opposition and in Saskatchewan the defeat of Premier Dunning seems quite as probable as did the previous Liberal defeats in Alberta were when they occurred.

The record of political events since 1921 makes it clear enough why Mr. Kyte has spoken a word of cheer to both Liberals and Progressives by the promise of a fifth indemnity. All office-seeking members of the Commons will welcome the announcement. In the order of nature more vacancies may occur within a year in the Senate, the Courts and other high places in the land and the prospect of life appointments to new places in the "$10,000 and upwards" class will no doubt open up from month to month, while the King Government lasts.

The railway prosperity that the Government organs reported as just around the corner, still figures as a hope deferred. From week to week the receipts fall off as compared with corresponding weeks of months of last year. For the week ending May 14 the shortage was $190,059 as compared with the week of a year ago, while for the period from January 1 to May 14 the gross receipts were $77,539,884, which was short by $6,797,827 of the gross receipts for the like period in 1924. The falling off during that time averaged more than a million dollars a month. Is it a good time to build more railways?

The death of Colonel Chambers, Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod, leaves vacant an ornamental position and a comfortable salary. Twice a year, at the opening and prorogation of Parliament this official knocks at the door of the Commons and summons the members to meet His Excellency in the Senate Chamber. There are perhaps two hours' work in the year

By James W. Barton, M.D.

That Body of Hours

A LITTLE OLD

It has been well said that every body has a right to be well born. When he is born into the world he has a right to get an even chance with life.

Now most of us, if we think the matter over seriously enough, have come to the conclusion, that all things considered, we have been dealt with very fairly. Some of us would like to be taller, shorter, heavier, or lighter, perhaps would like to have a more pleasing countenance and so forth. Now what you have with which to battle with life, is what your folks gave you, and what you have since done with your body.

What I am thinking about just now is the great number of "nervous" cases that are seen about us. People who are just a little odd in their ways, who do not seem to mix in, or take part in, the various activities of life.

Some have vague fears about dark places, open or closed places, fear of fire, or trains, or ships, or high buildings, fears about their heart, lungs, or other parts of the body. They get along pretty well but nevertheless they are not normal.

Then there is the epileptic, that unfortunate who always lives in fear of these distressing attacks.

And again there is the melancholy type, whose thoughts are sometimes on suicide.

What is my point? That as everyone has a right to be well born, marriage in the case of the above types of individuals should be a matter of concern to themselves and to the community.

Investigators are able to inform us that nearly eighty per cent of the above mentioned nervous cases could be traced to one or other of the parents, the father in about one-third, and the mother in nearly two-thirds of the cases.

Now it would be a serious business for many people who have little oddities such as fear of open spaces, or an unusual concern about their heart or lungs to be deprived of any freedom of action.

Further, some of our brilliant men and women have been epileptics, and some others have been of a melancholy nature, and no hard and fast rules should be made in this matter.

However my idea was to bring the above figures to your attention, and let you think about them anyway.

RICHES

Beauty is mine,
Of goodly earth and all-embracing skies;
Of light that glows on Friendship's gracious face,
And in Love's eyes.

Music is mine,
Of singing winds in woodlands, waters fleet,
Bird songs, gay laughter and the happy lilt
Of children's feet.

And Health is mine,
To guard and keep with more to seek and gain,
In closer kinship with the great out doors—
Sun, wind, and rain.

Fair thoughts are mine,
Of rare minds, rich in life's abounding zest;
Through covers of old books I entered in,
Loved and possessed.

Gladness is mine,
Higher than love and deeper than content—
Life is the gift supreme, a gift divine,
With glory blent.

All things are mine,
I envy not a queen upon her throne;
Life lays no fairer largesse at her feet
Than at my own.

The Promise of Chlorine Gas Clinics

Condensed from The Review of Reviews (Jan. '25)

Oliver Peck Newman

Two United States Senators meet in a corridor at the Capitol. Senator A tries to halt Senator B to ask him about a pending bill. Senator B: "I can't stop now; must hurry to my chlorine treatment."

Senator A: "I had my third yesterday and my cold is gone. It's a great thing."

Such exchanges may now be heard almost daily in either the Senate or House, for Congressmen take the chlorine treatment whenever they feel a cold "coming on."

President Coolidge recently sat chatting with his friend, Bishop William F. Anderson, of Cincinnati. The Bishop was suffering from a severe cold. "You must go down and take a chlorine treatment," said Mr. Coolidge. "I recently cured a bad cold in that manner." The Bishop took an hour's treatment in the morning and the same in the afternoon. After his arrival home he wrote back and thanked the President, reporting that his cold was gone.

The Army doctors have been experimenting with chlorine gas for two years, and since February, 1924, a gas chamber has been in constant operation. There more than 2000 persons have been treated. The Navy Dispensary has operated a chamber since April, 1924 and has treated more than 1200 cases. Before these two chambers were established experiments were conducted at the Edgewood Arsenal where 931 patients were treated. This makes a total of approximately 4,000 persons who have been given chlorine gas under direction of men of science in the government service. The results indicate that a cure for common colds and whooping cough has been found.

If this be true, the effects are so far-reaching as to exceed human ability to visualize. For instance, the Public Health Service has just announced that a survey shows that 90 per cent of the people of the United States have a cold once a year. If each cold means a cost of only one dollar (in loss of time) drug bills, doctors' bills lowered efficiency) chlorine gas would save us one hundred million dollars annually.

Increased efficiency and productivity due to absence of colds cannot be estimated. Neither is there any way to measure what the increase in human happiness would be if we could get rid of colds quickly by a simple, inexpensive method. Still another immeasurable effect would be the cutting off of innumerable diseases which follow in the wake of colds.

The story of chlorine gas as a curative agency reads like a romance. Out of one of the most awful weapons of destruction ever conceived, we now seem likely to evolve one of the greatest blessings ever known to man.

The present research goes back to 1918, when the Germans were drenching the front line trenches of the Allies with gas and the influenza epidemic was raging throughout France. It was observed that while the rear areas suffered frightfully from influenza, the troops at the front were practically free from it. The medical officer of one American division, noting this condition, instituted chlorine gas treatment for respiratory troubles among his men. With the result that colds and "flu" were materially reduced.

At about the same time in this country it was observed that employees in plants turning out war cases containing chlorine were immune to the ravages of influenza, which took such terrible toll of the military camps.

Lt. Col Edward B. Vedder, M.D., of the Army Medical Corps, states that the chlorine treatment has effected cures in the case of colds in 75 per cent of such cases, also in 80 per cent of the cases of acute bronchitis and in 78 cases of acute laryngitis. In cases of whooping cough, chlorine gas is almost a sure cure.

The treatment is not disagreeable. At the Army and Navy chambers from six to ten patients are admitted simultaneously. They bring books, newspapers, or magazines with them, and read during the inhalation. Each "class" sits in the chamber for one hour. The patient is conscious that there is something in the atmosphere only because of a very slight smarting of the eyes and the barest possible irritation in the nose and throat. No matter what sort of cold the patient has, he seldom coughs while inhaling the gas. The number of treatments varies. A cold treated at the very beginning might require but one inhalation but it is more likely to require two. A well advanced cold may require four or five treatments.

WHO WERE THE STARS OF YESTERYEAR?

ART EDMUNDS

Now resident of Toronto where he has a health culture school. He was, not so very long ago, a basketball player, wrestler, and heavyweight boxer. He was commonly known as the "rocket hercules," "game strong, tough boy," who always pleased the fans. He was amateur champion of Canada in his prime, and it is fitting that he is teaching the youngsters to be strong.

THEIR ONLY CHANCE

A tourist in the North, walked into a wayside churchyard, and seeing the gravestones busy at their work, went forward and stood for some time, unobserved by the man who was engaged in his trenching. When at length he was noticed he asked: "Do they often die here?" The sexton with a look of unfeigned astonishment, replied: "Na, na; only wance."
