Tuberculosis And Meat Infection

NO 26

Almost every country today prohibits the importation of foreign meats unless same have been inspected and certified as to their freedom from disease which might in any way injure human health.

In Canada past records have shown that of the meat condemned in inspected Establishments, over 50% was due to Tuberculosis.

It has been proven that the Bovine (Cattle) Tuberculosis germ can be transmitted to the human, and with meat one of our principal articles of food, it surely should be proven wholesome, and not capable of infecting with Tuberculosis, before being used.

When it is considered that figures in 1924 showed that not over 50% of the total meat food animals killed in Canada were inspected...

PRINCE TALKS FOXES AND FARM TRACTORS IN TOUR OF COLISEUM

TORONTO, Sept. 3.—To a democratic visiting the "Ex" on Tuesday all roads led to the Coliseum. Following his greeting to his comrades-in-arms, the Prince of Wales as high caliph of democracy and a Canadian set out to see the sights that the "Ex" has to offer in its Jubilee Year. He stopped at the Coliseum on his way and gladdened the heart of at least one Ontario matron and probably paved the way for the inclusion of a silver fox or two in the stock entry book at Pekisko.

Wales' New Residence Ready For Occupancy

LONDON, Sept. 3.—As already announced, the Prince of Wales will go into residence at Marlborough House soon after his return from Canada.

Marlborough House, an almost four-square stolid red brick building, was built by Sir Christopher Wren just over 200 years ago for the first Duke of Marlborough. Later it became the residence successively of various members of the royal family, and finally was acquired by the nation as a residence for King Edward VII, then Prince of Wales.

The present Prince of Wales will actually use only a small portion of the house himself. His suite will be on the first floor, which looks out on two acres of garden. A large room which was formerly an audience chamber will be converted into a combined writing room and study where the prince will conduct the principal part of his correspondence. On the ground floor is a large room which will be used for the entertainment of friends who are not of the prince's intimate circle.

Queen Alexandra's boudoir and bed-room will remain exactly as they were in her lifetime as will also the four state rooms with their pictures and statuary.

Well Known Minister Endorses Dr. Kennedy's Methods

Rev. Neil Herman says:—"I have made a test of the electrical blanket used by Dr. W. Kennedy. It produces a gentle perspiration, and eliminates poisonous waste through the pores and other channels. It produces a soothing warmth, relaxes nerves and muscles, promotes rest and sleep and relieves pain. I doubt if there is any better treatment for various forms of disease which require methods of stimulation and elimination."

Meets "Smiling Prince"

Mrs. W. H. C. Ruthven, of Alliston, was the happy lady who met the "Smiling Prince" Met at the entrance to the Coliseum by J. J. Rappelle, the Building Superintendent, the Prince and his brother, after a rapid walk through lanes of agricultural machinery, halted at the Ruthven-Brett silver-fox exhibit, where Mrs. Ruthven was in charge. The Royal rancher of High River, "talked foxes" with Mrs. Ruthven for several minutes, displaying a keen knowledge in the little-known industry of many of the Dominion's provinces.

"I found him to be most kind and courteous," declared Mrs. Ruthven, when relating the incident to The Globe, "and as he left me I was rewarded with one of his rare smiles."

Mrs. Ruthven's ancestry is Irish-Scottish, and she remarked that the Prince of Wales' native tongue disclosed that highly cultured intonation that is only known in the Mother Country.

"Prince George is just as big a fox fan as his brother," declared Mrs. Ruthven, "and asked me many questions relating to our vixen, Alliston Princess, which we are showing for the first time at the Canadian National Exhibition."
