'TONIGHT'S THE NIGHT'

By ("Tec.")

In one sense of the word the destiny of the Prince Edward Island Hockey League hinges on tonight's hockey fixture, the final of the series for the Provincial title. Should the Summerside Crystals succeed in annexing the tilt, Prince Edward Island hockey champions will be tagged to their banner. Should the Abegweits hold off the Western sextette long enough to capture the coveted verdict, then they will have tied the series up as tight as an umbrella. It will then be necessary to have a play-off, that is home and home games, goals to count. Tonight's hockey struggle should therefore furnish enough thrills to make Barnum and Bailey look like a couple of pencil peddlars in comparison.

Record-breaking attendances have been experienced this season throughout the Maritime hockey world, with the exception of this city.

Charlottetown is due such a distinction; our fans are just as blase and just as rabid and enthusiastic as those in the sister provinces. Tonight is the night—a record-breaking attendance is bound to crowd the ol' Arena, which will make all former attendances look very, yes, very mediocre.

Which Team Will Win?

This is the question uppermost in the minds of thousands of fans throughout Prince Edward Island; in fact said question is being debated all season as to the relative ability and strength of both teams. Up to the present time neither team can be picked, either is liable to break loose to grab the gaufalon in the dying moments of the sixty minute stanza. Where one team is weak the other is strong and vice versa, so that, to my mind a break either way will send the respective fans home either rejoicing or sad.

A one goal lead with a strong and heavy defence thrown up is enough to win tonight's set, even if that lead starts in the first period. A certain nervous tension, especially in this game, will figure very prominently among the rank and file of the puck chasers, and the team behind will become more nervous as the minutes tick by. Cool and collected timing of reliefs being sent into the fray will be a big factor—and last but not least a player who loses two, four or six minutes of valuable and perhaps regretted time in "sinners' avenue" will automatically become a detriment to his team rather than a help.

The writer does not know at time of writing just who the referees will be, but is is hoped that whoever acts in that capacity will be well conversant with the rules of the game.

Local sport writers have been a little lax perhaps in their duty of going after officials who do not measure up to expectations during a game but to tramp on anybody's toes is the last thing in the world a writer wants to do, hence the laxity. However the public and the game as a whole has got to be considered. Fans pay their money to see a game of hockey—and played according to rules. If a game ends in a draw the fans want to see an overtime—and believe me you cannot tell the rabid fan anything about the game as far as the rules are concerned. He pays to see a concluding issue and if he is not to be considered, then what becomes of the game.

The following are the number of goals scored in the five games played and number of assists: Crystals, 15; Abegweits, 12. Assists 3. Silliphant is the leading scorer with 8 to his credit while his team-mate "Chick" Gallant is tied with Earle Prowse of the Abegweits with 4 goals. Gordon although playing but one game ties Anderson, his team-mate with 2. Other scorers are:—Crystals, Wright, Schurman, Perry. Abegweits, Cox, Doiron, Saunders and Diamond. It is interesting to note that only three assists are checked up to both teams, Gallant of the Crystals with 2, and Diamond of the Abegweits with 1. Combination therefore may have been attempted between the red lines but according to the above figures neither team benefited in this respect at the goal mouth. Individual efforts seemed to have been beating both goalies during the five games.

ANCIENT SEAL IS DISCOVERED

It was Originally Attached to the Charter of William the Conqueror.

LONDON, Jan. 26. — A most interesting discovery has been made by the Records Clerk of the Corporation of London at Guildhall. Mr. Thomas. It is the seal which was originally atached to the Charter of William the Conqueror, and which, it has always been assumed, had been lost beyond hope of recovery. The loose strips of parchment at the foot of the Charter are present but the seal has long been absent.

Mr. Thomas always considered, however, that the seal might be in existence somewhere among the records, and he was the more inspired to search because the documents and possessions of the Records Office still remain only partially indexed and arranged. Among an old miscellaneous collection of various articles he discovered a red bag containing pieces of wax labelled "fragments of an old seal," and this he fully investigated. He attempted to piece the fragments together, and with the assistance of experts of he British Museum he ultimately managed to arrange the fragments and place them in a bed of wax. The result is beyond doubt the centre of the seal of William the Conqueror, so long missing.

A report on the discovery is to be made in due course. The Corporation is rich in seals. The Mayoralty Seal, which was only taken out of use a few years ago because of its great value, dates from 1381, while the obverse of the Common Seal (still doing duty) was made in 1225 and the "new" reverse in 1539.

Women As Inventors

(By British United Press)

LONDON, Jan. 26. — Hundreds of men and women have been endeavoring during the past year to invent domestic and electrical devices that will save labour in the home or add to the general progression of the age. Many of the hours spent in concentration and careful calculation have resulted in inventions which, although they may not be termed epoch-making, are a boon to the housewife and the general public.

According to Captain Drury Coleman, general secretary to the Institute of Patentees, women particularly are showing themselves in a new light and proving themselves to be as ingenious as men, and some of the most skilfully contrived inventions, that are also good commercial propositions, are to the credit of women inventors. The inventions that are also good commercial propositions, are to the credit of women inventors. The inventions range from picture-house seat indicators and a new type of opera-glass lens to novel saltcellars and coat hangers.

Supreme Court

The case of Prowse Bros. Ltd., vs. The Halifax Fire Insurance Company, is now being tried before His Lordship Chief Justice Mathieson and a jury in the Supreme Court.

This case arose out of the fire which occurred in Prowse Bros. establishment July 1, 1926. The total insurance was $136,000, placed in 22 different companies, and the loss was adjusted at over $111,000. One of the companies, the Halifax Fire, had placed insurance of $25,000, on what was known as an "excess" policy—on condition that it was to take effect when the loss exceeded $100,000. The straight line companies paid $100,000, but there was a dispute between the other companies and the Halifax Fire as to the proportion to be paid by each, of the $11,000.

The Halifax Fire paid a certain portion of the $11,000 but the other companies claimed that that company should have paid a larger portion. As the amount has not been settled action was brought in Court.

The defence opened yesterday afternoon. Mr. D. B. Rogers, Divisional Superintendent of the Insurance Company at Montreal is the first witness called for the defence and when court adjourned to meet again this morning, he was still on the stand.

BILLIARDS

NICHOLSON WILL MEET McMAHON IN FINAL.

By virtue of his win over Harry Redmond in the last match of the semi-finals last night, Bill Nicholson earned the right to play-off with Fred McMahon for the Provincial championship, and the right to represent P. E. I. in the Canadian play-offs.

The game last evening was marked by the fact that neither player scored any high breaks, 31 being Nicholson's best break and 27 being Redmond's best. Nicholson's margin in last night's game was 124 points the scores reading, Nicholson 500, Redmond 376.

Redmond deserves great credit for his showing after his long lay-off from the game.

Nicholson played his usual steady game and was nice to watch at times.

The final bloc of 500 points in the final match takes place on Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

Fred McMahon refereed last night's match while Bill Lawlor was the official scorer.

L. O. C. Bowling

Last night on the L. O. C. alleys a good game took place when the Invincibles met and defeated the Ramblers by a margin of 122 pins. The game was a very good one and the scores were very good. The Ramblers took on a fairly good lead in the first game but they were unable to hold their lead as the Invincibles who rolled a great game captured the last two games by good margins. In last night's game E. Goss had high single of 242 also high total of 628 pins.

Following are scores:

Ramblers
E. McMillan	176	178	199
W. Burke	19.9	176	208
P. McGonnal	111	169	98

Y's Men's Banquet

Last evening the worthy members of the Charlottetown Y's Mens' club gathered around the board and thoroughly enjoyed a hearty meal of that rather ancient but still popular dish "dogs and pancakes." Nearly everybody was there, as the menu was mentioned in the notices sent out by the secretary. There were additional attractions but we have reason to suspect that this was the most patent.

At the conclusion of the feast and customary sing-song, the guests of the evening were introduced these being Mr. S. G. Peppin and Mr. Gus. Down. Next on the program came a vocal solo excellently rendered by Mr. Ben Acorn, who was unanimously encored.

Chairman Neil MacLean then called upon the speaker for the evening, Rev. Mr. Gabriel who, as it were, held his audience spellbound for twenty minutes by the delightfully interesting and original way in which he dealt with his topic—"Mere Words." He spoke of the tremendous influence words — mere words—had on the lives of people and nations, the remarkable versatility of their different forms, the tremendous power with which they are vested when cleverly and thoughtfully combined.

The applause of the Club bore ample testimony to the pleasure and profit occasioned by the speaker.

The meeting adjourned with the National Anthem.

Tricks That Are Vain

In the Police Station at present there are three or four gambling machines, under sentence of demolition. Their inwards have been laid bare, and, without exception the devices have proven to be "crooked."

Without going into details, it will suffice to say they depend in principle upon a toothed wheel, set in motion by a lever pulled by the player after he has inserted his coin. This wheel gradually slows down, and, when it is moving very slowly, a spring actuated pawl drops into one of its teeth, bringing it to a complete stop. Opposite each of these teeth is a sector of a certain colour, on which colour a play may be made. Some of these colours occur much more frequently than others.

A play is made in this manner: You put your quarter in an appropriate slot, say red, which pays two to one, i e if the wheel stops with the needle pointing to a red sector, you should get two quarters for one. Then there are others, white for instance, on which if you play a quarter by putting it in the corresponding slot you would (if the machine were "straight") receive 40 quarters for the one you put in, should the wheel happen to stop with the white sector under the needle. This event is rather unlikly. Since there may be only two of these in the 100 or 200 odd sectors into which the wheel is divided. And then there might be four sectors which would give you 20 to one. Many which give you your money back, and so on.

But there are always a considerable number which, if they happen to stop opposite the needle (the pawl, of course engaging a corresponding tooth in the cog wheel) the machine keeps your money, giving nothing in return. This constitutes the percentage to the house, and, in most machines, is about 20 for straight machines.

Those now reposing in the Police Station have what is known to fakers as a "gimmick" on them. The teeth in the cog wheel opposite the higher paying numbers are filled with metal plugs so that, as the pawl cannot engage them the wheel can never stop there, and so will never pay a forty to one, or perhaps even a twenty to one shot. In one of the machines, too, a magnet was placed opposite the runway down which the coins must pass to operate it, so that, if any attempt is made to use an iron washer instead of a coin, the slug is retained by the magnet, and the machine will not operate until the attendant opens it and removes the slug. So you can't cheat the machine but the machine can cheat you.

While it is much better to steer clear of such devices altogether; if one feels he simply must play them, let him satisfy himself before hand (if he can) that the machine is straight. Otherwise he is likely to spend a lot of money for the privilege of seeing a highly coloured wheel spin round.

Affection Not "Property", Like Bale Of Hay

RENO, Nev., Jan. 26. — Defying the established precedence of courts, Judge George Bartlett declared today that human affection is not "property" and cannot be measured as such. The right of man to reserve his love and companionship to use as he sees fit was upheld by Judge Bartlett when he denied the plea of Mrs. Emma F. Carroll for $50,000 damages for alleged alienation of her 68 year old husband's affections. She was suing Mrs. Margaret S. Gains.

Carroll, a wealthy broker, formerly of Norwich, Conn. was recently denied a divorce and his wife was awarded $200 a month separate maintenance. The domestic tangle resulted in six suits in Nevada courts.

Judge Bartlett admitted the courts of most states considered a husband's affections as valuable "property". "I cannot lend myself to the adoption of the conclusion reached by grave and revered gentlemen occupying supreme court benches, who hold affections to be property like a bale of hay worth $1.75, which one is entitled to have returned to him if he loses it". Judge Bartlett declared in his decision.

"Affection is one thing a human owns. He has it to give and no court or power on earth can enter a judgment or issue a writ that can control its disposition."
