WEDDING BELLS.—Immaculate Conception Church, Wellington, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday morning, Feb. 1st, 1928, when Miss Mable McDougall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. McDougall, Richmond, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Leo McNally, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James McNally, (Egmont Bay).

The bride entered the church on her father's arm, while the sweet strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March played by Mr. David Cameron, filled the air, and proceeded to the altar steps, where the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Joseph Gallant, who also celebrated the Nuptial Mass. The altar was most tastefully decorated by the girl friends of the bride. Charming gifts were in china blue and velvet, with hat of gold and black, the bride carried an arm bouquet of Ophelia roses and maiden hair fern. The bridesmaid, Miss Vera McDougall, sister of the bride, looked charming in black velvet with hat and gloves to match. Mr. Theodore McNally, brother of the groom, was best man. Following the ceremony the happy couple returned to the bride's home, where a dainty breakfast was served to their immediate friends, and then they left by train for a brief trip through the Maritime Provinces. Going away the bride wore a travelling suit of green poret tulle, with hat to match, and a beautiful muskrat coat, the gift of the groom. On their return they will reside in their beautiful home in Egmont Bay. Previous to her marriage the bride had been a governess on several occasions, where she had been the recipient of a beautiful collection of silver, china, cut glass and linens. With their numerous friends we join in wishing Mr. and Mrs. McNally, many years of conjugal bliss.—N

If you combined the valuable properties of every known ready-made cough remedy, you probably could not get as much relief as this syrup, which is in this home-made syrup, easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any drug store 2 1/2 ounces of PineX, pour it into a 10-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup, or clarified honey, as desired. The result is 10 ounces of better cough syrup than you could buy anywhere.

MONTAGUE CARNIVAL.

On Wednesday, Feb. 1st, a very successful carnival was held in the Montague Arena with a record number of skaters and pomenaders present. Many of the characters pictured in "Mother Goose Rhymes" and costumes worn by our great grand fathers was represented. Prohibition and Government Control were represented and the actions of the skaters were symbolic of what they represented. The Judges, Mrs. Isaac Ives, Mrs. J. H. McLean and Mrs. G. B. Clarkson had a very difficult time deciding the winners. The ladies first prize was awarded to Mrs. H. W. Ives representing "Old Mother Hubbard". The gentlemen's prize to Mr. Alfred Lowery, as "Old Smuggler". Girls prize awarded to Miss Elsie McLure, as "Yes, we have bananas!" Boys prize to Master Arnett Ives, as Robin Hood. —M.

HOCKEY NOTES.—The Montague Imperials went down to their first defeat of the season, when the intermediate Abbies' sextette beat them to the tune of 5 to 2. The "Abbies", well worthy of the name they bear, gave the fans the true meaning of hockey, clean, fair and sports of the highest type, these boys held a standard well worthy of copy. The "Imps", although beaten were glad to say that the reason they came out on the short-end of the score, was due to the fact that they were outclassed in every respect, checking, shooting and team work. However, the "Imps" are not the kind that give up, but have arranged to have this splendid little team down to Montague again before the season closes, and hope to give this team and the fans the best game of the season.—M.

Writes From Great Britain

The following are extracts of a letter received by Mr. Wilfrid Boulter from Hon. W. M. Lea, Minister of Agriculture, who is at present in the Kingdom of Great Britain, representing this province on the Canadian Farmers' Marketing Tour.

17-19, Cocksfoot Street, London, S. W. 1, 17th January, 1928

Mr. W. Boulter, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, Charlottetown, P. E. I.

Dear Mr. Boulter:—

You will have learned ere this by cable of the safe arrival of the S.S. "Lapladi" with the Canadian party. We arrived at Plymouth on Sunday morning spending the day in that historic town and came by rail to Liverpool on Tuesday. We were fortunate in having a fine day and the scenery en route proved more wonderful than I had anticipated. This country in midwinter is a beautiful sight. In June, from the first three days' experience in this Old Country it looks as if we are to be royally entertained as well as to be given an opportunity of relieving all of the first hand information regarding our marketing position. The City Hall is magnificent beyond description including the Legislative Chamber that would compare favorably to any in our Provincial Parliament buildings.

One thing I have particularly noticed already, I may say, is the Briton's good taste in the selection of their food products. Apparently, nothing but the very highest class is required and I am convinced that further drastic inspection and grading is needed to maintain a hold on the British market. Their cooking in the hotels that I have visited is really wonderful. I noted particularly the fresh flavour of all their meats and fish that did not have that embalmed flavour characteristic of many of the products frequently served in our best Canadian hotels. The English people certainly know what they want, and I may say, they have cultivated lastly those who wish to deal with serious kidney troubles.

them must also cultivate. Today we visited their stockyards at Birkenhead, one of their large killing plants and saw the beef dressed in at least three particular systems, each suited to a special market that they are catering to. Such details in the arrangement of dressing would not to one unaccustomed to the British system seem important, but to them it is very necessary. The Briton in his eatables wants what he wants in the way he wants it and his customers must learn to supply it that way to secure his trade.

We visited the Grain Exchange and learned from their President how the grains from the various parts of the world are purchased and graded. Tomorrow we visit the wholesale fruit auctions and will learn here also that the apples are there purchased on auction on grades of the exact samples that are being sold and purchased. It is interesting to find you all well, as it is leaving me, I remain,

Your sincerely WALTER M. LEA

THE MARKET.—At the market

MISS BROWN

nervous person or overimaginative, but she had nevertheless been haunted ever during her recent pilgrimages by a feeling that she was never alone, that she was always being followed, always being watched. On the bus going to Hampstead, a young man had picked up a glove with which she had no concern, tried to press it upon her, and afterward to enter into conversation. She had seen the same young man upon her return journey, but had avoided him by taking a bus for a short distance in another direction. It was quite possible, of course, that his interest in her was simply the interest of the ordinary boulevardier, for Miss Brown, notwithstanding her reserved manner and demure appearance and the fact that she neither invited nor responded to any advances, was still not at all unaccustomed to finding herself an object of some interest to questing sentimentalists of the other sex. The young man, however, had been persistent, and he had been not the only one interested in her movements. In the city, she was conscious of brushing against at least girl whom she had seen at least twice before, during the morning, and whose friendly smile was evidently intended to be an invitation to some sort of casual remark. She had allowed neither incident to trouble her. Nothing had interfered with the calm and methodical pursuit of her day's business, although to each of her clients she had hinted that she might be obliged to miss one day at any moment. Now that she was back again in her room and alone, she reviewed the events of the day once more. The young man and girl might both have been coincidental, but there remained with her that uneasy sense of following eyes which had never left her throughout the day, which had made her glance uneasily around even when she had fitted her latchkey into the door and impelled her, now, even in the best of days, to glance twice leave her seat and glance out into the narrow thoroughfare. Suddenly the thought flashed into her mind that the first part of her task was safely accomplished, that the precious book with the accompanying documents was deep in the vaults of the bank where not a living soul could reach it except herself. Espionage for the present, at any rate, was futile. The sense of oppression left her. She poured herself out a second cup of tea and opened the Times.

She studied first with a new interest the headlines in the general news column. Then she turned to the leading article which she read word for word with an absorbed interest. It recalled to her mind the dominant note in the press during the critical periods of the war—grave but unflinchingly hopeful, always ready to rely on the headlines in the general news column, made no effort to minimize and emphasize the serious side of a terrible situation, while at the same time insisting upon the necessity for the most advanced section of the Communist world, of interference everywhere with British trade and British enterprise. The leading article, too, made no effort to minimize the perils of the situation, side of a coal strike was threatened in Great Britain within the next three months—a strike which in time was to spread to the railways, the transport workers, the wharfingers, and the transport workers, the wharfingers. Do you feel like going back to bed?

AFTER YOU have dressed your children, fed them, and sent them off to school, do you feel like going back to bed? Do you shrink from your daily task of dish-washing and house-cleaning? Are you tired? Discouraged?

Many women have found that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent tonic for that tired feeling. It builds up the appetite. It induces natural sleep. Read what these two women say about it.

GAINED 18 POUNDS
Cleveland, Ohio:—"After having my first baby I lost weight no matter what I did. I went down to 98 pounds. My neighbor told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it helped her very much, so I tried it. After taking four bottles I weigh 116 pounds. It has just done wonders for me and I can do my housework now without one bit of trouble." Mrs. M. Riessinger, 10004 Nelson Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

NERVOUS SPELLS GONE
St. Paul, Minn.:—"I used to get nervous spells that would last a couple of days and were so bad that I was afraid in my own house in broad daylight. One day a little booklet was left on my porch and I read it through. I found a case similar to mine. I bought Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and have had fine results. Now housekeeping doesn't tire me." Mrs. Jack Lorberer, 704 Bellwood Place, St. Paul, Minnesota.
