A SETTLED RULE

The Major—What makes you so sure that old mule can stand another day's work?

The Muleteer—Cause he always has, sir.

IS NOT TAKEN SERIOUSLY

LONDON, June 17—(Associated Press)—The appearance of the German submarines off the American coast is an interesting development from whatever point of view it is studied and opportunity was given this week to Archibald S. Hurd, a British naval writer, to obtain from the British first sea lord, Vice Admiral Wemyss, his opinion upon this new departure on the part of the Germans and its effect upon the naval situation generally.

"This development should not be taken very seriously," Vice Admiral Wemyss said in reply to a general inquiry as to what importance he attached to the German sinking of shipping off the American coast.

"If I were inclined to bet, I should say there has not been more than one submarine off the American coast. I may be wrong, but that is the impression I have formed. The conclusion fits in with my interpretation of the enemy's object.

"The Germans cannot hope to maintain anything in the character of a blockade. The distance is too great from their bases.

"The enemy has merely made a demonstration with the hope of causing us to decentralize our efforts to put down the submarine. His object is to frighten the American people in the hope that they may exert their influence on their naval authorities.

"You will remember that Napoleon declared that 'exclusiveness of purpose is the secret of great successes and of great operations.' Now, if the Germans could cause a dispersal of naval force this demonstration off the American coast would achieve its purpose.

"I hold firmly to two principles. As chief of the staff I believe firmly in decentralization in administration, but as chief of staff I also believe as firmly in the centralization of effort against the enemy. I think it was Admiral Mahan who said that the great end of a war fleet is not chase, nor to fly, but to control the seas.

"Now, with that statement in mind, glance at an ordinary school atlas, if you have not got what the Germans would call a 'war map' handy, you will observe that the Central Powers have formed a block in Europe running down from the North Sea to the Adriatic and to the point where the Dardanelles debouches into the Mediterranean. Any submarine, to reach the American coast, has to pass either to the north or south of the British Isles or along the Mediterranean where Gibraltar stands sentinel over the narrow exit.

"That atlas is illuminating. It indicates sound strategic methods of dealing with the submarine campaign. We must fight the U-boat in the narrow seas. In other words, we must centralize, concentrating all our forces in what is really the decisive area.

"The Germans, you may be sure, have been studying the charts and in sending one of their so-called submarine cruisers to the American coast, they thought to raise a outcry in the United States against the policy which is being pursued of fighting the submarines in the narrow seas.

STRAND THEATRE

Coming to the Strand Theatre next Friday and Saturday "The Railroad Raiders" Helen Holmes photo novel in fifteen chapters a "pre-proven product." The story of "The Railroad Raiders" is of the very certain and successful type of railroad-adventure fiction. The plot revolves about a band of thieves preying upon the railroad, plotting and counterplotting. There are wrecks, hold-ups, hair-breadth escapes, manhunts, battles and perils and incidents of suspense without end. Miss Holmes, of course, does a number of sensational things in her accustomed sensational style, leaping from an engine to an automobile tonneau, and starts of the kid. Railroad warehouses are seen demolished, box-cars are tossed into heaps of blazing wreckage, automobiles are smashed with daring and abandon, engines collide, there are gang-fights, gun fights, all the kinds of fights there are. The cast chosen to support Miss Holmes is almost identical with that of "The Lass of the Lumberlands."

Do not miss the first Chapter Circumstantial Evidence. Admission 5c and 15c. 8023.

You May Find It In Stocking

Cincinnati authority says your troublesome corns just loosen and fall off

Sore corns, hard corns, soft corns or corns between the toes just loosen in their sockets and fall off the next day if you will apply directly upon the corn a few drops of a drug called freezone, says a Cincinnati authority.

You merely put a drop or two of this freezone on the tender, touchy corn today and instantly the corn stops hurting then tomorrow sometime you may find that the old torture pest somewhere in your stockings, having fallen off entirely without a particle of soreness, pain or irritation. The skin surrounding and beneath the former corn will be as healthy, pink and smooth as the palm of your hand.

A quarter ounce of freezone is sufficient to rid one's feet of every corn and callus, and any druggist will charge but a few cents for it. It is a compound made from ether.
