MORRISON-McLELLAN—To the strains of Wymann's Wedding Bells' March, rendered with dainty precision by Miss Irene Morrison, Bay-side, Mr. William Basil Morrison of Bay-side led to the altar in St. Patrick's church, Grand River, Lot 14, Mary Jane McLellan, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Nell McLellan, Miss Bertha Morrison, niece of the groom, and Cyrene McLellan, brother of the bride filled the duty of witnesses. The sacred ceremony performed by the Pastor, Rev. John A. McDonald, assisted by Rev. Urban R. Gillis was accompanied by the Sixth Tone Mass, sung by a full choir. Mrs. Jos. J. McLellan, in her usual pleasing voice sang a beautiful solo, fitting to the occasion. Mr. J. D. McLellan presided at the organ. After the ceremony the newly wedded couple returned to the home of the bride where breakfast was served to twenty-four guests—close friends of the bride and groom. Mrs. J. D. McLellan and Mrs. J. J. McInnis acting as hostesses for the bride. After breakfast amidst showers of rice and confetti the bridal party motored to Charlottetown for luncheon returning to the home of the groom at six o'clock where dinner and a grand reception was tendered them by the groom's mother, Mrs. Catherine Morrison. Over two hundred guests partook of the wedding feast. The wedding reel was played by Mr. Joseph Morrison of Connecticut, brother of the groom, while Mrs. Jos. L. Cameron, Riverside, accompanied on the piano. No member or happier participant responded to the joyous appeal:—"On with the dance, Let joy be unconfined, when youth and pleasure meet. To chase the glowing hours with flying feet," and the response only ended as old "Sol" re-appeared in wedding raincoat, peeking his still-sizzling face over the horizon to announce the dawn of "another new day." A very pleasing feature of the night's program was the step-dancing by Mrs. Cameron and Mr. James A. McDonald, Grand River. Two large tables heavily laden with very beautiful presents and a large basket of "Financial Envelopes," were popular witnesses of one of the most splendid holiday for homefolks and visitors.

The Man Nobody Knows INSTALMENT XXIV. THE GREAT IDEA PREVAILS. In the very last week the "Pharisees and Herodians" gathered together a picked delegation of sharp wits and sent them with what looked like an absolutely fool-proof bomb. They started in with "flattery; after that he was a simple fellow from the provinces—a few kind words and his head would be turned. Then they would catch him off his guard. "Teacher, we know that you speak the truth," they said, "and that you don't care anything about the authority or office which a man holds. You treat them all alike, and speak your mind bluntly because you get your thoughts direct from God. "Now tell us, is it lawful to give tribute unto Caesar or not?" "Very clever, gentlemen, very clever indeed. If you will have the record of his reply in Herod's hand in an hour; and instantly he will be under arrest for propagating rebellion against the Roman power; if he answers that it is lawful, he will lose his popular following. Because the people hate the Romans, and dodge the taxes at every turn... very, very clever. He looked at them with frank contempt, as if to say, "Do you really think I am quite as simple as all that?" "Somebody lend me a coin," he exclaimed. An eager listener dug into his pocket and produced it. Jesus held it up where all could see. Whose picture is that?" he demanded. "Whose name?" They began to be uneasy. The shrewdest suggested that the path was leading toward the precipice, yet there was no escape. They must answer, "Caesar's," they replied. "Very good," said he ironically. "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and unto God the things that are God's."
