

WHAT OF 1930?

Healthy Credit Mark

It was a year of encouragement on the negative side—in the absence of serious or less than serious strikes and lockouts, in striking contrast with many other countries. Disasters and tragedies, uprisings and revolutions, and disturbed racial conditions that have afflicted other continents and countries, have been unknown here. On the whole it has been a year of comparative peace, plenty and prosperity—all causes for individual and national thanksgiving. We are still being left to work out our national destiny without serious distractions; we are at peace among ourselves and with the world.

Netherlands, Holsteins to China, apple trees to France, roses from B.O. to Pekin, asbestos to New Zealand. Canada sells tobacco to Belgium, Spain and China, fresh milk to Shanghai Hospital, apples to Argentina, flax seed to Ireland, herring to Korea, shoes to Nigeria, paper to Uruguay, dehydrated apples to Japan and Java, sardines to Australia, onions to New Zealand, furs to France, lard to Finland, cheese to South Africa and potatoes to Cuba. Canada sends furniture to South Africa, hens to the Philippines, rubber tires to South America, eggs to Buenos Aires, artificial silk to India, beef and ham to Japan, soap to the Irish Free State, lobsters to Sweden, frogs and eels to United States markets, aluminium to Italy, cottonwood to China, pure bred stock to New South Wales, nickel to Norway, sewing machines to Uruguay, wood pulp

We are more than ever partners with the world—with the League of Nations, with many international connections and movements, with a hundred sister countries with whom we trade and barter. There is an ever increasing human intercourse as travel facilities increase. We no longer live to ourselves; we are members of a World Brotherhood; and 1930 has witnessed an enlargement of interest and intercourse with many lands and nations. 1931 Outlook Bright What is the tale of 1930 in the higher national life of the Dominion? There are no convincing signs of a serious decline in ethical standards. The erection of new churches and schools goes on apace; there has been marked progress in the realm of the Arts and Sciences, as well as in social welfare and humanitarian effort. The Golden Rule is not

By James W. Barton, M.D. MEDICINE FROM 1830 TO 1930

That Body of Hours As we approach the end of the year 1930, and look back over the history of medicine from 1830 to 1930, it can be truly said by every thinking man and woman that more progress has been made than in the previous twenty centuries. Yet, as Dr. J. S. Lankford, points out, it didn't start out very well when we remember that every ailment where there was a fever or high temperature, was treated in the most ridiculous manner; bleeding, purging, induced vomiting, blisters; no bath, no water allowed in the hottest fever. And this treatment prevailed for over twenty years. Then came the pathologist who studied the tissues affected by disease, the physiologist who studied the tissue when in normal health; and experiments on animals. Records of all this were kept for general everyday use. Then came the use of anaesthetics, and operations were rendered painless—the greatest blessing that ever came to humanity. Then came Pasteur with his knowledge of organisms and Lister who applied this to surgery, thus rendering surgery safe for the first time in history. Koch then discovered the tubercle organism. Klebs and Loeffler discovered the diphtheria organism which was quickly followed by the development of antitoxin, and the reduction of deaths from diphtheria from thirty to forty per cent to less than one per cent. Roentgen, discovered the X ray, whose value is beyond words. Brown-Sequard, and Sajous then opened up the marvels of the ductless glands showing how these glands were regulators of the various processes of the body. Then came more knowledge of the foods and their values, including the wonderful vitamins. Banting then discovered insulin and that dread ailment, diabetes, was brought under control. Finally Minot and Murphy discovered a cure for that baffling disease pernicious anaemia by the use of the liver of animals. Of course there are a great many other developments that should be mentioned—clinics, hospitals, nurses, more accurate instruments, public hygiene. However the big thing is that medicine is now stripped of all mystery, and measures to help mankind are progressing rapidly all over the world.

Rayner arrived in Summerside the latter part of last week to purchase silver foxes for the Montreal sales. Mr. Rayner left on the afternoon train on Monday on his return to Montreal with a large consignment of furs. He reports the market steady but prices not as high as other years. As the silver fox fur is used for adornment and not for the purpose of keeping one warm it is not so much in demand as other furs such as muskrat and seal but there is a steady demand for the skins and large quantities are required for the London market. There are a tremendous quantity of furs coming in that have their repercussions in Canada as well as everywhere, the diminished purchasing power of the people—all these are handicaps that affect the entire country. But any summing up of Nineteen-Thirty leaves a healthy credit mark to the good, and as a basis of encouragement for the future. Our Extensive Trade Radiation The ramifications of Canadian trade continued on a world-wide scale during 1930, covering a hundred or more countries and ports. This is in striking contrast with the narrower limits of earlier days. Ships carrying Canadian products found their way to the Seven Seas and scores of British and foreign ports, from the Atlantic seaboard and the Pacific portals of Vancouver and Victoria. The increase in the all Dominion trade of 621 per cent between 1900 and the present, or from 355 millions in value to two and a half billions, tells the story from a different angle. For example, Canada sells fish to a hundred countries, canned salmon to half as many, fruit to distant lands as well as Great Britain our agricultural implements go around the world, railway ties to the Sudan, macaroni to China, butter to Hong-Kong, and coal to Peru. Canada exports live foxes to the Netherlands, Germany and Czechoslovakia, pure bred stock to the Antipodes, lumber to Japan, autos to Irak, ploughs to Turkey, razors to Denmark, honey to

to the Orient and pure seed and horses to Russia! It does not look therefore that our foreign export trade is seriously threatened, even in a year of lessened activity. Canada's World Standing Canadians have reason to be proud of our present day standing among the nations, but it is a pride that should breed humility. The War gave us a reputation that, whether warranted or not, challenges to an effort to live up to it, but so far as it was a reputation for bravery, endurance and high patriotic resolve, Canada has no right to claim a position superior to that of other countries. But in any case, our standing is of itself an asset that should be highly prized and deserved. We seem to occupy an honored position in the heart of the Motherland and in the Commonwealth family. It is for us to treasure and merit it as well. Our credit continues good, and that is of priceless value—not only in a monetary sense, but in the higher realm of ethics and character, such as has long been won and held by the British trader. Nothing should be done to jeopardize the belief that our word is as good as our bond. Every false packing of fruit, every dishonest invoice, every unlawful effort to take advantage of our neighbor, imperils this high reputation.

altogether obsolete among us. There is a satisfactory absence of electoral corruption compared with former days. Democracy in the making is showing advance. We seldom need to apologize for our leaders, indeed we may point with pride to the character of our ten premiers and their cabinet personnel, as well as the people's representatives. They strike as high an average in 1930 as in previous years. The high reputation of our judiciary has on the whole been maintained. The attempts to defy the law have brought severe punishment. Mob law is practically unknown, a lynching would be unthinkable, and the reign of law—the basis of all civilization—is recognized in Canada as in other parts of the Empire. This does not imply that we are free from dangers or disintegrating tendencies. Eternal vigilance is still the price of national integrity. The drink evil continues to be an evil; any degree of gambling is an unhealthy symptom. Sectional jealousies retard national advance and any lowering of ethical standards reacts on every citizen but with dangers and tendencies such as these fully realized and faced the future may also be faced with courage and hope. 1930 may therefore be summed up as, upon the whole, a good average year, with substantial prospects in 1931 for a Happy, Prosperous, and Contented people.

As the day was stormy there were not many present. The vessel was bought by Capt. White of Murray River for $25. She was a very seaworthy two masted schooner 70 tons gross, and was built about twenty years ago in the woods up the Mimmingsash Run by its late owner. It was recalled by some of the men attending the sale that the Government, at the request of Capt. Costain, had to remove the newly built bridge over the river in order that the ship could pass down the river from where she had been built to the sea, the bridge being built before the boat was completed. The schooner has been engaged in coastwise trade and will most likely be used for that purpose by its new owner.—S. —SPRINGFIELD, LOT 67 W.
