ROOTS VS. SUNFLOWERS VS. CORN ENSILAGE.

(Experimental Farms Note)

In the Maritime provinces the question is frequently asked as to whether or not it pays to grow roots for live stock, especially where corn and sunflowers may be grown fairly successfully.

In order to collect data on this point, a feeding experiment was started at Nappan in 1923 with the corn and sunflowers and although these data have been collected for three consecutive years, the writer realizes that sufficient has not yet been done to warrant any definite conclusion being drawn but feels that such data as are available will be of interest and value to the farmer who is planning his crop rotation for 1927. The average yield for each of the three crops from 1922 to 1924 was as follows: Corn 15.11 tons, sunflowers 17.79 tons and roots 19.27 tons per acre. The average cost of growing a ton of each was as follows:—Corn silage $3.84, sunflower silage $3.66, and roots $3.48. Using these figures in computing the average cost of producing a hundred pounds of milk covering the same period, with all other feeds remaining constant, during the test it was found that milk was produced from roots at an average of $1.51 per hundred weight, against an average of $1.68 for sunflower and $1.79 per hundred weight for corn silage.

The results to date therefore indicate that roots may, comparing one year with another, be produced in the Maritimes as cheaply as corn or sunflower silage, furthermore that the roots yield on the average produce milk more cheaply. Of course this does not always hold true, for instance in 1924 corn made splendid growth and developed ears that were well past the firm dough stage and naturally silage from such corn will give very much better feeding results, the dry matter running 14.87 per cent compared with 11.31 per cent for 1923 and 11.72 for 1925. As the feeding value of any food is based largely on the dry matter content, other things being equal, it is interesting to note that for 1923 and 1924 the average yield of dry matter per acre was 4642 pounds for sunflowers, 4566 pounds for roots and 3480 pounds for corn. Again we have roots yielding somewhat better than corn and comparing favourably with sunflowers. One drawback to sunflower silage as compared with corn silage and roots, is its lack of palatability.

The writer is of the opinion that until such times as we are able to get an early maturing corn, it will pay the Maritime farmer to increase the root area as a means of supplying the bulk of the succulent feed for his live stock, at the same time growing some silage to fill in between the root season and such times as the pastures are in good bloom.

had never told his wife—you may guess why!—and she had never fathomed his secret. The "tooth ache" was caused by the slight rubbing of the lower case, and I put that right in a minute. But I obliged him by putting an old tooth in an envelope, and out he went, carrying it.

"I didn't hurt, dear, did it?" I heard his wife ask, and most truthfully he said it didn't!

I appreciate being complimented for good work in fitting false teeth, but on two occasions I've been somewhat severely "told off!"

"Confound you!" said a husband to me, "your infernal teeth have taken about twenty years of my wife's looks, and now she's started gallivanting about to dances and parties and flirting with other men. Lucky you've been paid, or you'd get nothing from me!"

Three times I needed a man's upper set, and then, when he came again, I asked him, jocularly, if he had been jumping on them. "No," he said, "but my wife has." And she kept it up until, by her orders, I made him another set—one "that would make him look his real age, and behave like it, too."

Sometimes I'm asked to do the impossible. "These were my poor dear husband's teeth," said an old lady, rhetorically. "I know he'd like me to wear them, so will you please make them fit?" I can't keep them in, try as I will. Sympathetically I explained matters, and she went away with tears in her eyes.

It is because one lives and learns that I now always explain how artificial the teeth are. A man, you see, with a too great zeal for cleanliness, boiled his new set, after a week's wear, in a saucepan, and reduced the vulcanite to treacle!

A customer came in once looking scared to death. He told me he had swallowed his teeth. I had to explain that I couldn't extract teeth from anyone's inside, and that he should go to a doctor at once.

"I can feel them," he gulped, touching his waist. I felt them, too—and felt them again. Then I lifted up the kitchen wastebasket in which he had hidden the teeth out of a pocket in his underwaistcoat!

I'm sorry to say this, but the truth is the truth—men are the biggest cowards in the matter of extractions. The bigger I've man the longer his "yawn" may seem more nervous, but they've a lot more courage in the chair. I told a man once, in a trifle sarcastically, that he wouldn't fit the V. C. in the next war if he made such a fuss over a couple of teeth. And it turned out that he was a V. C.

Fine weather, large attendance, wide-spread interest and gratifying results made the Mission memorable. To the evident delight of teachers and pupils the Missioner visited all the schools within the bounds of the congregation. Dr. MacLean and Miss MacKinnon were the guests of Mrs. Munro Bruce, and Mrs. William Martin, respectively. The next Mission will be held at Kierros, Rev. G. A. Grant, Pastor, and will begin in Orwell Head Church Sunday, January 23rd with services at 11 a. m. and 7 p. m. During the week the meetings will be held in the same place at 7:30 p. m. During the second week, the meetings will be in St. Andrew's Church. Dr. MacLean's message is simple, direct and effective, while Miss MacKinnon has a rich Mezzo-Soprano voice of rare sweetness. The common comment is: "I never heard anything like it. You hear every work distinctly, her whole soul is in her singing."

FIXING VALUES.

An American woman, visiting Turkey with her three daughters, engaged an old Turk in conversation. It developed that the Turk was a broker in wives, and the woman wishing to have some fun with him, asked, "At what price would you value my oldest daughter, supposing she were for sale?" The Turk mentioned a sum that was flatteringly high. "And my second daughter?" the woman next asked. A still higher price was fixed, of course, being the standard for the youngest daughter, a little flapper. "And now," said the mother, "what price for me?" The Turk was no diplomat. He promptly mentioned a price that was equivalent to a dollar and a half in our money. The mother was furious. Never, she said, had she been so insulted. After berating the Turk, she walked haughtily away, leaving the marriage broker what he had done to annoy her.

Peters Road And Vicinity

The mild weather of this winter is almost unprecedented, and many favourable comments are being expressed by the people in general.

The roads are naturally excellent and but for the many windings in the fields, around fence-posts and groves, there would be no complaint by the travelling public.

Our genial mail-carrier, Mr. Bourke, who is always punctual and efficient in his work, is becoming tired of the labyrinthine intricacy of windings experienced in his daily route, and would like to see the track straightened back to its former channel. This is especially desirable on parts of the Commercial Road.

Mr. and Mrs. Josiah L. Jenkins of Greek River have taken a trip to the United States for a short visit. Their son, Percy Jenkins, is a prominent contractor and builder in Newtonville, Mass., and will be pleased to welcome his parents on their arrival there.

Some time previously Mr. and Mrs. George Lecco also from Greek River, left for the United States for the winter season. We wish them all a pleasant sojourn in the great republic.

Mr. John L. MacDonald, Peter's Rd., while hauling firewood met with a rather painful accident. His horse, naturally spirited, did not relish the sylvan scenery, and in holding him back, the reins gave way, throwing Mr. MacDonald, (who by the way is no lightweight) violently side ways in the snow. On resuming his equilibrium, Mr. MacDonald found that his left arm was badly hurt, necessitating the use of a sling, and the laying aside of his axe for an indefinite period. However, we expect to see him as chipper as ever in a few days. In this connection we must also include Mr. Clar Johnston, Peter's Rd., who has a badly maimed hand. Mr. Johnston while operating his pulping machine, inadvertently thrust his hand in proximity with the rapidly revolving blades of the cutter, and sustained some serious gashes therefrom. The hand though still swollen and lacerated is rapidly healing and will soon be O. K.

A VICTIM OF SUGGESTION

Some of his boys were taking but little interest in the lesson, and the teacher grew desperate. William Smith, he suddenly demanded, "are you listening?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then perhaps you can tell me where Nelson was killed?"

"Trafalgar Square," was the reply. "Indeed?" sarcastically ejaculated the teacher, when he had recovered his breath. "Then I suppose Wellington was killed at Waterloo Station?"

"No, sir," responded William, "that was Napoleon."

Fortune Teller: Your husband will be brave, generous, handsome and rich.

Client: How delightful! Now tell me how I am to get rid of the one I have now.

Brown (approaching friend in cafe): Having duck for dinner, eh? What kind?

Brandon (working hard)—Decoy. I should say.

Her Worst Worry Ended for a Dime!

A Body Sweetness that Even Perspiration Can't Spoil

All the trick laxatives in the world can't tempt people who understand the properties of CASCARETS.

A hundred different drugs will purge the bowels, but a little natural cascara purifies the system clear through. Cleanses even the pores of your skin. Renders perspiration as inoffensive as so much dew!

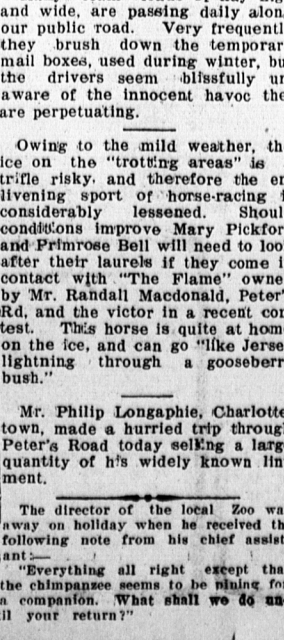

Your grandparents took "salts," and slowly washed away the mucus membranes with the water. Mineral oils are better, but they leave the coating that your blood must then carry off through the pores. But when you cascarize the system, you get rid of all the poisons by normal muscular action of the bowels.

Don't get in the habit of taking medicine for constipation—or even for auto-intoxication. If you have the habit, stop. A candy cascara is a delightful form in which to take cascara; children love them and the taste tempts most grown-ups to take "Mum." And what a comfort to know you are in that clean, wholesome condition that does away with any need of cathartics, even in warmest weather! Try a cascara tonight! All druggists, 10c-25c.

CASCARETS

"WHAT A JOY it was to find such an aid to toilet cleanliness! My system is so purified, perspiration doesn't stain my garments and I just forget self now, after I've taken one or two—"

The director of the local Zoo was away on holiday when he received the following note from his chief assistant:—"Everything all right except that the chimpanzee seems to be pining for a companion. What shall we do as till your return?"

CORNS

Lift Off—No Pain!

Doesn't hurt one bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers.

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the foot calluses, without soreness or irritation.
