RECEPTION AND SUPPER

A reception and supper was given at the home of Mrs. MacLeod, Glen William, on Thursday Feb. 27 in honor of Sergt. William A. Matheson, William A. MacDonald and Pte. Armichael McInnis who have recently returned from overseas. About fifty of the friends and neighbours gathered together to give fitting expression to their pride and pleasure in having these three war worn heroes back in their midst. A happier gathering could scarcely be imagined. The ladies of Glen William and Alliston never do anything by halves in the nature of serving as a mere glance behind the scene would have convinced the most exacting connoisseur on this occasion. When the tables had been laden most temptingly and the guests of honor had been seated Mr. William A. MacPherson read the following address:—

To Sergt. Matheson, Pte. MacDonald and Pte. MacInnis. Dear friends it affords us much pleasure as your neighbours and friends to gather here this evening to do honor to three such noble, brave and altogether worthy soldiers as you have proved yourselves to be in this great war in which you each so willingly "did your bit" to bring about the glorious victory and the sweet peace which is again gradually coming upon the earth. We who have not left our hearthstones in defence of which you each so bravely fought can scarcely be expected to comprehend the great things you have done for us to say that we are proud of each one of you is only a feeble expression of our feelings tonight. We are thankful to your noble sacrifice for home and nation. And more the althankful to the giver of all good who has seen fit to bring you safely back to our peaceful Glen from the terrible toils of a cruel and bloodthirsty enemy. With the earnest hope that you will not measure our esteem and pride by the value of these small gifts we would ask you each to accept them as a little token of rememberance with the very best wishes of your many friends in Glen William and Alliston.

Misses Rachel Collins, Effie MacPherson and Mary MacLeod presented the soldiers each with gold pieces.

Sergt. Matheson in a brief speech which he declared was his initial one heartily thanked the people for their kind welcome. He paid high tribute to the Red Cross workers especially the women of Canada for their grand work in contributing so much to the comfort of the boys over there. He said that from the Red Cross they received practically everything good socks, shirts, gloves, cigarettes and many other things. Sergt. Matheson is a son of Mr. A.W. Matheson and has been absent from home for the past twelve years most of which he spent in B.C. He enlisted in the 1st Canadian Pioneers in B.C. in August 1915 and after a few months training in Canada and England, he went to France New Years 1916. He took part in the engagements in the Ypres Salient on the Somme and Vimy Ridge After which he was transferred to the 9th Railway troops remaining with that unit until the armistice was signed. He intends leaving shortly for B. C. Pte. MacDonald in a few well chosen words expressed his gratitude and pleasure in being favoured with so much kindness. He also spoke highly of the Canadian Red Cross Society saying that he could testify from his own personal experience of the great things done by the Red Cross for the boys. Pte. MacDonald was the first volunteer from Glen William. He had just graduated from P.W. College and began the teaching profession when he heeded his country's call and joined the 105th battalion. When that famous unit constituted less than one platoon. In England he was transferred to the 13th reserve battalion from which unit he left for service at the front with the 26th battalion in April 1917. He took part in the fighting at Hill 70 and Passchendale and also engagements around Vimy, was severely wounded in the head and back at Passchendale and after he recovered sufficiently was with the Postal Corps until the signing of the armistice. Pte. MacInnis said he was not going to give a speech but rose merely to thank the people for this pleasant rememberance. He also enlisted with the 105th battalion, later being transferred to the 104th. He transferred to the 26th in France in April, 1918.

During supper Mr. W.D. MacPherson in his usual obliging manner gave many inspiring selections with the bag pipes so dear to the hearts of the Highland race everywhere. The remainder of the evening was most enjoyably spent in music, songs and games. After singing Auld Lang Syne the company dispersed with rousing cheers for the three young heroes and also for Mrs. MacLeod for her genuine hospitality in giving the party the freedom of the house.

CREAM FOR CATARRH OPENS UP NOSTRILS

Tells How To Get Quick Relief from Head-Colds. It's Splendid!

In one minute our clogged nostrils will open, the air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, snuffling, blowing, headache, dryness, struggling for breath at night, your cold or catarrh will be gone.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic, healing cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous membrances and relief comes instantly.

It's just fine. Don't stay stuffed up with a cold or nasty catarrh—Relief comes so quickly.

"Friend in Need"

HERO HONORED.

On the evening of February 28th, inst., a large number of friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Capt. John McDonald, Cable Head East, to welcome their son John Andrew, who has recently returned from France. Not long after the first call for volunteers his only brother Fabian enlisted, this however did not detain John but he nobly joined the 105th and was later transferred to the 26th with whome he saw service in France. He was fortunate in coming through without any serious mishap, but had to spend some time in hospitable for treatment for wounds received by accident. An address was read by Mr. Henry B. McDonald also the presentation of a purse containing $33.00 presented by Mr. Alfred O'Henley on behalf of Cable Head Ecast School district. Mr. McDonald being taken by surprise felt lost for anything to say but heartily thanked them all. After the presentation refreshments were served in Mrs. McDonald's usual up-to-date manner and a most enjoyable evening was spent in dancing having music both vocal and instrumental. Mr. and Mrs. McDonald surely did their part in making the reception a success and it would only be expressed mildly in saying that no one knows better than they how to give their guests that at home feeling one always experiences while in their presence.

To John Andrew McDonald,

Dear Mr. McDonald:—It is with feeling of the greatest pleasure that we meet tonight to welcome your return from the blood-stained fields of France. It was with feeling of sorrow mingled with pride that we saw you depart from our midst three years ago. Sorrow that you might not return, and pride that you heard and voluntarily answered your country's call. You have no doubt, like your comrades of the 105th won undying fame in many a hard fought battle and while many of them have fallen, fortunately you have come through safe. To you it must always remain a source of joy that you have witnessed and taken part in the greatest war that the world has ever seen and that it is likely ever to see again, and to know that you have returned without battle scars must be also considered by you as a special favour. We have known you from childhood and we knew that the splendid, brave and manly qualities that were kept and cherished by you would be ever present, when doing the duty of a soldier whether in drill, in trench or in battle, and we felt the greatest confidence that you would play your part nobly and well, and we have not been disappointed.

Please accept this gift as a token of our esteem for you and to show our true joy that you are among us

We couldn't make the Maxwell any better; so we made it better looking

AN artist never frames his masterpiece until he finishes it.

So the new Maxwell, a completed work, is now robed in new garments.

They do not make it run any better. They make it look better.

Mr. Whistler, the famous artist, were he here today and saw a new Maxwell pass on the street, would probably himself give it a second look.

A little touch here, the straightening of a line there, the bringing of a fender a little closer to the wheel, a circassian walnut dash before you as you sit at the wheel, the strength lent by putting the gas tank in the rear, the multiplication of bonnet vents, the adding of three more painting coats, the increased thickness of the seat cushions—these, though but a few of the many changes made,—show the tendency of the new beauty.

It is in the sum of many little things that the full story is told.

The car was first checked off in squares, as a doctor sometimes marks off a man's chest and back to test every square inch of the lungs.

And there was an improvement made in nearly every square.

When the task was done it looked like a different Maxwell.

But it wasn't.

It was the same, sound, go-get-there chassis built to stand the gaff of rough and ready driving, built to endure, to "stay put," to stand all the erratic moods of the careless driver.

It was a five year drive to reach this present peak of Maxwell efficiency. But the engineers, and the manufacturing men knew that building a chassis without fundamental change in design year after year would ultimately tell in results. For every one knows that doing one thing results in doing it well.

So in five years 300,000 Maxwells have come forth, all built on the original chassis plan—each new one better than the last.

There is no self-starting automobile in the world that has such a manufacturing record.

Think what it means to a man who owns one:

He has not paid for a false overhead.

He has not paid for manufacturing mistakes.

He has not paid for experimental work.

He has not paid for the changes of mind of another man.

Today you get a better Maxwell than any of the 300,000, and a better looking Maxwell. It is a finished work, a completed task, a thing well done.

You run no risk—and when you cast your eyes on it you are tempted to feel that the price might easily be $200 more.

WAS APPREHENSIVE

The two friends men on the street as they were hurrying to their respective offices in the morning. "Hello, Linder, old man!" cried one, as he grasped the other's hand. "Congratulations. I hear you have a new youngster at your home."

The new father glanced around apprehensively. "For heaven's sake, you can't hear him way up here, can you?"

BETTY PLUS

A little tot out on the avenue with she sled was so wrapped up by her careful mother that we hardly recognized her.

"Oh, is that you, Betty?" we said.

"Part's me," the little one answered, "but it's mostly clothes."
