PERSIA'S BELT OF DESOLATION

Legend Ascribes Desert to Divine Punishment Visited on King Who Forgot His Creator.

At the Southern end of the valley in Central Arabia where progress toward the Persian Gulf is blocked by a broad barrier of sand, lies a district called Khari, which was once fertile, and still retains some of its former prosperity. H. St. J. B. Philby describes in the Wide World Magazine a group of ruins which appear to date back to the medieval times when the country was under the domination of a Persian colony. Close by it are the remains of an important irrigation system which almost certainly points to a Persian origin. The main point of interest about which is that it depends on a group of three great reservoirs or pools, believed to be bottomless.

A similar phenomenon exists in a district farther south, called the Araf, where there are no fewer than seven "bottomless" pools of varying sizes, among which is a fair-sized lake, the "Mother of the Mountain," which is the largest sheet of water known to exist in all Arabia. It is about three quarters of a mile in length by a quarter of a mile broad, and was in its day the center of a mighty kingdom. There, according to a legend, once stood the palace and capital of Ad Ibn Shaddad, one of the greatest Arabian kings.

The legend tells that this king built himself a new capital south of the Araf district. In this place he gathered together a stable of 2,000 peerless steeds, a bodyguard of 2,000 warriors and a harem of 2,000 maidens, among the fairest in the world. The legend tells that the king forgot his Creator, who visited him with a dread scorching west wind, overwhelming the king

SPRING MANAGEMENT OF BEES

(Experimental Farms Note)

To secure a maximum honey crop, it is necessary for the beekeeper to have all his colonies up to maximum strength in time for the main flow of honey. This can only be accomplished by careful management during the spring.

Bees that have been wintered inside should be taken from the cellar at the time the willows begin blooming. To reduce drifting, a dull day should be chosen for bringing them out. All entrances should be reduced to about one inch, these can be enlarged as the season advances.

In some parts of Canada where the spring is long and cold the bees will need protection when first placed outside. In any place they should be protected against cold winds by the use of wind-breaks.

As soon as the weather permits all colonies should be examined for stores and queen. Each colony should have from ten to fifteen pounds of stores, colonies with less can be helped from those having a surplus. Before equalizing stores, however, be certain that American foul brood is not present. If no colony has a surplus, as regards fences, we have frequently been reminded of the excessive cost of fencing during these last few years. While we cannot very well do without some permanent fences, the fact remains that the average Ontario farm has altogether too many of them. Instead of replacing all the old rail and perhaps barb wire fences it is well to re-survey the place in your mind's eye to see whether by a complete re-arrangement of the fields the farm could not be worked with greater convenience and profit. There are hundreds of farms which have been farmed for perhaps well nigh a century; have

SALT AND ALKALINE RIVERS.

Many of the rivers in the world are far from being pure. There is a salt river in Australia, and another in the Rio Salada in the Argentine republic in South America. The Athabasca river of Canada has two important salt branches, one of which rises in a natural salt spring and the other has its source in the Caribou mountains, which contain vast deposits of salt rock. Another salt river, having its origin in a similar formation, is one of the tributaries of the Great Slave river.

Many of the streams and lakes of eastern Oregon are strongly alkaline in character. The Rio de Vinagre—The Vinegar—of New Granada, in Central America, is sour from the sulphuric acid in the water.

BEST WAY TO CUT BOTTLE.

If you ever want to cut a glass bottle, here is a good way to do it. This is thought to be very simple, and has been done many times successfully.

Get a brick or some other non-flammable substance of the height you wish to cut the bottle. Now put a heavy or preferably a short length of one-half inch iron rod in the fire and heat about six inches of the end to bright red heat. Then, using the brick as a rest or guide, turn the bottle slowly, keeping the red-hot bar well in contact with the bottle until the bar just ceases to be red. Then quickly plunge the bottle in a pail of cold water, and, if carefully done, a fine crack will be the result. Upon plunging in the water a click will be heard and the neck and upper part of the bottle will remain in your hand, leaving an edge cut as clean as if cut with a glazier's diamond.

CELESTINE CULTURE

(Experimental Farms Note)

Apart from the delicate flavor of celery, it has certain medicinal properties and its consumption should be encouraged. There seems to be a general impression that remarkable skill is required to grow this excellent vegetable, but although it cannot be grown with the same ease as carrots and many others, attention to a few details makes its culture possible in any garden without an undue amount of work.

Any rich garden soil will grow good celery, which must have an abundance of fertility to draw upon, if tender, well-developed stalks are to be obtained. If the soil becomes dried out even with an abundance of plant food succulent stalks are not likely to develop. Plant food and moisture are both essential if growth is to go on uninterruptedly. Celery grows best in the fall or early spring, because the soil is damper and cooler. The aim should be to furnish these conditions and, as hot dry soils can be made cool and moist by watering or mulching it is not a very hard task to keep a small area of celery moist during the dry periods.

When preparing for your vegetable garden, set aside some well rotted stable manure for a row of celery. Dig or plow out a space about sixteen inches wide and about six inches deep and into this scatter the manure about four inches deep; then work in your soil, thoroughly mixing it with the manure. If the garden is one which has been well manured for years, scatter a coating of manure broadcast and work it into the soil. A good commercial fertilizer scattered broadcast at the rate of two thousand pounds per acre and well mixed with the soil to a depth of five or six inches will grow good celery without manure if moisture conditions are right.

Put 1 peck of butter beans in salted water. Let come to a boil, 3 pints vinegar and 2 1/2 pounds of sugar. Have mixed smooth with a little cold vinegar, 1 cup flour, 1 cup mustard, 1 dessert spoon tumeric. Pour this mixture into the hot vinegar. Boil 5 minutes; add beans and boil gently for 5 minutes.
