Wedding
One of the most interesting events of the summer was the marriage at four o'clock on Wednesday, August 15th, of Miss Elizabeth Doris Judson, daughter of Mrs. Austin Grey Judson, of Alexandria, to Dr. Henry Hammond Pierce of West Virginia, at the United Church, Pownal. The church was beautifully decorated with white flowers—spirea, phlox and sweet peas, massed against a background of evergreens and ferns. Standards of spirea were at the ends of the pews which were roped off at the beginning of the ceremony with white ribbon. Before the ceremony, "At Dawning" was sung by Mr. George Tweedy of Charlottetown. Rev. H. H. Pierce, father of the groom, assisted by Rev. F. H. Littlejohns performed the ceremony. Miss Beatrice Judson, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. The flower girls were Virginia Seaman, of Lynn, Mass., and Norma MacCallum of Southport. The bride was given in marriage by her brother Mr. Gay Judson. Charles Johnson of Charlottetown was best man and the ushers were Glydon Moore, of Charlottetown and Vincent Windsor of Charlottetown. The wedding march was played by Miss Thelma Burns of Charlottetown. The bride's gown of white satin was draped on the sides and made with long sleeves. Its only trimming was an ornament of rhinestones and pearls. The beauty of the effect was in the long lines of the gown and in the veil of tulle, arranged simply, banded with silver ribbon and caught at the sides with white sweet peas. The bride carried a shower bouquet of white sweet peas and white heather. The gown of the maid of honor was of net over satin, shaded from Nile green to Chinese rose, and embroidered with brilliants. She wore a hat to match and carried an armful of pink roses. The flower girls were gowned alike in white satin, trimmed with gardenias. They carried baskets of pale pink sweet peas and rose petals, which they scattered before the bride. Mrs. Judson wore flowered beige georgette with a matching hat. Garden flowers in violet, rose and white decorated the house for the reception which followed the wedding. The wedding supper was served on the lower floor of the Judson home and on the lawn. The couple will leave on Monday for Morgantown, West Virginia, where they will make their home. The bride attended Mt. Allison Ladies College and is also a graduate of Montreal General Hospital. The groom took his degree at Dalhousie.

Fashions, Fads, Follies.
Style experts say that skirts really are to be worn longer. Even sport skirts are to fall a modest four inches below the knee. Afternoon skirts are to be longer and fuller, and an uneven hemline. The modes are becoming more feminine and elaborate and the sport frock will be restricted to morning or sports wear. The more formal afternoon dress is something new in our wardrobe. Lace is used a great deal, alone for evening dresses, and as trimming with other materials. Woolens are very popular. They may be warm for hot weather, but are sleeveless and do not call for much underneath them. If you buy a woolen dress, get it a little larger as it is almost bound to shrink a little. Stiff, crisp silks and satins are used in the full flounced evening dresses. Gay cotton prints are coming into their own again. Women and girls are wearing dimities, lawns, voiles, and prints like our mothers, calicoes, made up in all sorts of dainty styles, for the porch, for house-dresses, and even for the bank. They are the very minimum of expense, but nobody seems to care since they are so gay and pretty.
Children.
Will Rogers has the following to say about child care:
"Being a ranchman and a farmer and also a child owner, I have often wished that when one of my children got sick, I could wire or call up some government expert and have him come look at them. Like I can do if one of my cows or pigs get some disease.
"If your fertilizer is not agreeing with your land the government will send a specialist, but if the food is not agreeing with the baby why we have to find out what's the matter ourselves, and a lot of times parents mean well but they don't know much."
"So I am glad that you people are interested in children. Course they are a lot of trouble but we don't seem to be smart enough to find something that would be less trouble that would replace them."

The Dish Scraper.
One of the most all-round convenient articles in my kitchen is the little three cornered rubber plate scraper. It has a handle on it and I keep it just over my kitchen sink, always within reach. Being rubber, it yields and fits almost anything, and is washable, and seems to adapt itself to all sorts of odd uses.
When washing vegetables, I use it to poke them around and scrape off the first layer of dirt, just in a general way not handling each individual vegetable. It saves the hands. When the dishes are brought from the table, I set them under the faucet and scrape off or out each hurriedly, with this convenient device, as I pile them up for washing. Then I continue to use it to collect all the garbage in the sink and lift it into the garbage pail, thus refraining from touching it with my hands.
If ever any little things, such as lemon seeds or refuse from the dish water, get into the sink, I shove them over toward the drain, with the dish scraper, push them about until the liquid has drained out, then lift them out with this little convenience. Nobody likes to dive into the sink after such rubbish, with his fingers. It is easy to work the watery part of sour milk, a spoiled can of tomatoes or fruit or any other disagreeable thing thru the sink drain this way.
Each of the three Baltic republics, Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, is estimated to have 250,000 horses available in the territories, only about ten per cent of which has been harnessed.
