Cigarettes were sent at Christmas and the members were reminded that letters are always welcome. LEADERS—in international talks on the future of Europe.

The statement made it clear that the political discussions were just getting under way at the time it was dispatched and that left open the possibility of a call to the French leader.

Another point which has been speculated upon is the need for closest kind of co-operation between the Anglo-American armies advancing into Germany in the west and the Russian armies invading from the east. The announced "complete agreement for joint military operations" was immediately interpreted to mean that machinery for the co-operation had been achieved.

This interpretation was supported by the statement that "the military staffs of the three governments now are engaged in working out jointly the detailed plan."

Notably missing from the military paragraph of this statement was any ultimatum to the Germans to surrender.

The emphasis was on continuing military pressure until Germany is crushed. There was no use of the phrase "unconditional surrender," but all the United Nations are pledged to that objective.

In the political field the largest problem before the Big Three is to work out a system of boundaries and settlements of centuries-old European problems which will at once satisfy the security demands of the great powers and yet not transgress on vital rights of the small countries. Otherwise, there is little hope among diplomatic officials here for the accomplishment of what the statement called "firm foundations for a lasting peace."

There was no reference in the statement to the possibility of Russian participation in the war against Japan. Yet that possibility was not barred and it is not the sort of thing which would have been reported on, even though some decision may already have been reached.

STREET COSTS

Charlottetown has over ten miles of storm water sewers, over 27½ miles of concrete sidewalks, nearly twenty-nine miles of concrete curb and gutter and more than 17 miles of asphalt wearing surface. The following detailed figures in this connection, representing the total quantity of the City's permanent work, were given by the City Surveyor H. A. Messervy, in his report tabled at Thursday's annual meeting of the City Council:

Street maintenance cost the City $26,897 in labor and material last year, according to the report. Of this sum, $14,056 was for labor; $6,668 for officials' payroll; $2,358 for gas, oil, grease, etc., and $1,135 for lumber.

Extensive replacements and reconstruction of worn out asphalt surfacing was carried out under capital account at a cost of $10,715. Other work included the cleaning out of the bed of Spring Park stream from the north end of Brighton culvert to its source, and the drains along Connolly, Valley and Upper Queen Streets.

Twenty-one building permits were issued by Mr. Messervy in his capacity of building inspector during last year. Of this number, fourteen were for residences and seven for buildings for other purposes. The total value of this construction was $283,670. Two only of these permits were for buildings in the fire zone, one being for interior alterations and renovation in a retial shoe shop, the other for renovation for auction rooms after a fire.

POPULAR FOR HOTELS

Bodega is the Spanish name for a wine storehouse or cellar, but the name has been adopted in many lands to designate a place where wine is sold.

School Building Plans Held Up

SAINT JOHN, N.B., Feb. 7 — (CP)—Shortages of labor and building materials stand in the way of any immediate replacement of old schools here, according to word received today from J. Gerald Godsoe Ottawa, co-ordinator of controls and chairman of the War-time Industries Control Board of the Department of Munitions and Supply. At present, permits for building or renovating schools are given only when essentially required, he said.

SOURCES OF IVORY

Can handle some more live fowl for about another week. Judging from the stock now arriving, most of you have some hens that are unprofitable.

My allotment of coal-burning brooders is six. They are expected shortly. Farmers who were negotiating with me for brooders and chicks please write again.

Keep nagging away about your brooder coal until you have it in your own cellar.

I need twelve Barred Rock cockerals, government banded from disease free flocks.

By the looks of things I will have to do most of my own hatchery work. You have no idea how much time and labor you can save a hatchery man by sending in early orders.
