—MAJOR MACNUTT ADDRESSES LEGION—A very enthusiastic meeting was held in the Town Hall last night when the members of the Summerside branch of the Canadian Legion and citizens heard a moving address by Major T. MacNutt, campaign manager for the war services campaign of the Island branch of the Canadian Legion. Mr. B. W. Robinson very capably presided and introduced the speaker. Major MacNutt after expressing regret at the unavoidable absence of Messrs J. O. Hyndman and Russell Chandler, outlined the object of the campaign. Major MacNutt emphasized the importance of the work that the Legion is undertaking for the men now serving in His Majesty's forces. The educational end of this service, which is to see to it that the young men can continue their education during their war service, so that they will be better fitted for civilian life on their return. This and personal service during war time are the two primary objects of the Legion and for which they are now organizing a drive for funds. The Legion is associated with the adult educational movement in securing the best teachers for the men. The Legion is performing a vital service both to the men in the forces and to the country as a whole by concentrating their efforts on these two objectives. Major MacNutt reminded the audience that this was the Legion's first public appeal and he felt quite sure that the public would respond. Everyone must be prepared to make some sacrifice so that the young men who are serving their country will be looked after. No one is better qualified to know the needs of the soldiers both at the front and on their return, than those men who fought in the last Great War, and they are calling on the citizens to help them to make the lives of the soldiers a little brighter and the future more hopeful than is the lot of many ex-service men. Mayor Campbell in moving a vote of thanks to the speaker, said, the work undertaken by the Legion could not be in better hands. He also commended the ladies on their splendid effort in contributing to the needs of the soldiers. Dr. J. A. MacPhee seconded the vote of thanks. Other speakers were J. M. Nicholson, R. L. Mollison, Mr. Goodwin, L. A. Moore, R. E. Ellis and J. F. Arnett. The meeting adjourned with the National Anthem.—S.

John Bull Says "Sshhh" To All

LONDON, Feb. 6—(CP) —John Bull put a warning finger to his lips in a nation-wide "Sshhh!" today.

While Prime Minister Chamberlain was telling the House of Commons that the death penalty was under consideration for persons responsible for leakage of important information to the enemy, London's "hoardings," subway and bus partitions and ancient brick walls flamed with posters bearing these phrases:—

"Keep it under you hat!" "lives are lost through conversation."

The anti-gossip campaign, designed to save lives of Britons on secret wartime work on land or sea, was launched against a motif of Adolf Hitler cupping his ear for vital information.

One especially grim poster portrayed a sinking ship with the blazing legend:—

"A few careless words may end in this!"

Others portrayed an intently listening Hitler and the rhyme:—

"Whether alone or in a crowd,
"Never write or say out loud
"What you are loading, whence you hail;
"Where you're bound for; when you sail."

Still another poster jingled:—

"If you've news of our munitions,
Keep it dark;
"Sailings or planes or troop positions, keep it dark;
"Lives are lost through conversation;
"Here's a tip for the 'duration';
"When you've private information,
"Keep it dark!"

Sir Kenneth Lee, Director General of the Ministry of Information, directed the campaign.

Rosyth Raid Gives Hero to The Navy

LONDON, Feb. 6 — This is the story of a great hero who, dying ignored death until he had given his last command and brought his ship safely to port.

This man, of whom the whole navy is proud, was Commander Richard F. Jolly, victim of the Rosyth raid. Today can be told the full story of his heroism.

The destroyer Mohawk was returning from patrol when a German bomber dived over her, spraying death-dealing lead along her decks. Men fell right and left.

The commander's legs were shattered. At his feet lay the body of Lieutenant O'Shea, his second in command.

Commander Jolly hung on to the rail, taking the weight from his legs.

"Open fire," he ordered in firm tones, and the guns spoke. The men who fired them stood among dead and wounded comrades.

Then the commander turned to the bridge messenger.

"Bring me a chair," he said. This was done, and he lowered himself into it.

His features contorted with pain, the gallant officer continued to take command of his ship.

He refused all assistance. "Bring that machine down, bring him down," he shouted. And the sailors, inspired by such magnificent courage, handled their anti-aircraft guns with uncanny skill.

Commander Jolly manoeuvred the Mohawk so that every gun she possessed could be brought to bear on the raider.

He had his reward when he saw the German bomber lurch away, badly hit. "That's the stuff, boys," he cried. "Now I'll get the ship home for you." And he did.

As the Mohawk steamed into the dockyard with a mortally wounded man in command, issuing his orders in a voice that was always becoming weaker, naval men hurried to meet her.

No Scottish dockyard has ever witnessed such a scene. Everything was forgotten but this little destroyer and her gallant crew.

From the dockside, the watchers saw the captain fall. Officers and men saluted and the ship's ensign lowered to half mast. A naval hero had died.

Minard's kills pain.

ernment's attitude."

Scotland Yard and police of Birmingham received annoymous warnings by telephone and mail about things that might happen if the executions should be carried out.

A Cork Irish Republican leader, Tom Barry, telegraphed Mr. de Valera asking him to request a four-day reprieve for the condemned men to enable him to place before the British Government "proof" that the condemned men are innocent. Details of this alleged proof were placed before the Home Secretary today.

Barry issued a notice stating that if the two men are hanged tomorrow there would be a mass meeting in Cork tomorrow night.

The Irish Union Association Sunday night telegraphed the Home Secretary that "the responsibility for what may follow these threatened executions will in our opinion be entirely that of the British Government."

The Lord Mayor of Coventry received and rejected an appeal for intercession from Mrs. Tom Clark, Lord Mayor of Dublin.

The first London explosion today occurred at Euston Station at 11.25 a.m., and the second 30 minutes later as mail bags were being loaded into a train for Birmingham. John Baker of Lincoln Crescent, Enfield, was injured about the eyes and taken to hospital. Four other men were permitted to go home, after being treated for minor injuries.

Other Explosions

Arthur Norrish, a clerk, received an eye injury when a package went off in his hands at the Birmingham post office. Harold Roberts, another clerk, was slightly injured. There was little property damage.

The Manchester explosion occurred in the Newton Street post office. Police started a search of neighborhoods known to harbor I. R. A. sympathizers.

An incendiary bomb found at Liverpool before it exploded was in the main hall of the ground floor of the general post office. Attendants dropped it in a bucket of water. A second unexploded bomb, found tonight in an autobus at London's Victoria Station, was found to be harmless because of faulty construction.

Recourse to the British Cabinet was the only avenue left for the convicted men. Their counsel continued to hope that they could obtain a postponement, if not a commutation of the death sentence. They argued that a stay was necessary to permit Richards to testify for Joseph Hewitt, who is awaiting trial in London on a charge of possessing explosives.

Tearful Blond Fails To Stop Wedding Plans

By Dale Clark
Associated Press Staff Writer

BALTIMORE, Feb. 6 —(CP)—The tearful plea of a comely blond who dramatically entered a temple to proclaim herself the "wife, muse and soul" of Ludwig Lewisohn and demand that "this wedding must stop" failed today to halt the marriage of the Jewish author to Edna Manley, former Rochester N. Y., newspaperwoman.

Lewisohn and Miss Manley stood before Rabbi Edward Israel, ready to take their nuptial vows, when Miss Thelma Spear rushed into Har Sinai temple, accompanied by her attorney, Bernard Sandler, and a six-year-old boy, whom she said she bore to Lewisohn.

Miss Spear, for years a concert soprano, cried out: "This wedding must not take place. I have been his wife, his muse, his soul!"

The 58-year-old writer and his 31-year-old fiancee slipped out of the room to avoid the unexpected commotion. Attorneys went into a lengthy huddle with Rabbi Israel, heard 36-year-old Miss Spear's tearful assertion she had been Lewisohn's wife for 16 years, and listened to the reading of an inscription from one of his books recognizing her as "my wife and mother of my son."

But this caused only a temporary halt in the ceremony. Miss Spear made her plea and departed to a hotel with her son, Jimmy. Lewisohn and his fiancee stood before Rabbi Israel again, took the wedding vows and caught a train to New York.

Following the ceremony, Sandler said he would "consult with my client about legal action in Baltimore."

"We are very happy," said Miss Manley, "I am sure that everything will turn out all right."

Lewisohn said nothing.

Tearful and hysterical, Miss Spear —registered at the hotel as Mrs. Lewisohn—told an interviewer she had travelled throughout Europe with the author, was married to him several years ago in Mexico, "and in all of his works I was his inspiration."

"He had the best of me, and now he doesn't want to pay the bill," asserted Miss Spear.

"All I want now is for him to marry me for Jimmy's sake, and pay off a $9.000 mortgage on my home (in Burlington, Vt.). He can divorce me then. I won't stand in his way."

The Vermont home was mortgaged, she said, to get funds to finance Lewisohn's divorce from his first wife.

Whistles Bisons To Their Deaths

WAINWRIGHT, Alta., Feb. 5 —(CP)— The modern record for slaughter of buffalo in one day is held by Sam Purshell of Wainwright, Alta., a Dominion government parks official.

Purshell who has killed more than 16,000 buffalo in various slaughters since 1923 set the new mark of 118 in one day in the last big roundup at Wainwright Park, 225 miles east of Edmonton.

Previous daily kill record was 80 but this mark was beaten early in the hunt begun last fall after the Dominion government ordered all animals killed.

In previous years slaughtering was done on a selective basis and it took longer for cowboys to cut out the desired animals from the herd. But the animals were killed en masse following the federal order and Purshells' rifle roared oftener.

The 53-year-old Purshell, a marksman from early youth, uses a high-powered rifle and only on rare occasions has he ever had to use more than one bullet for an animal. The animals are driven into a V-shaped shute by cowboys and Purshell picks them off.

The veteran plainsman has refused consistently to tell reporters details about his exploits, explaining it is against government regulations for employees to publicize the game killing and humane societies might raise objections.

"I try to get 'em between the eyes,' Purshell once said on giving his method of killing a buffalo. "If they are not looking at me, I whistle or make some other noise, and when they look around, I fire."

Asked if he ever missed Purshell replied: "Sure, but you know sometimes I've knocked down 130 without a miss. Other days I feel as though I couldn't hit the side of that slaughter house. I've taken as high as 10 shots to make a kill but that doesn't happen often.

After Purshell makes a kill, other workers quickly put the carcass on a stoneboat and hustle it to a crew of expert butchers, employees of a commercial packing firm. Under the watchful eyes of six federal government inspectors, the carcasses are prepared for shipment to all parts of Canada. The buffalo meat has to pass the same rigid inspection as beef and other meat going to market.

Russian Troops Bombed By New Attack Technique

Fifth Assault By 'Red' Forces On Mannerheim Line Driven Off.

HELSINGFORS, Feb. 6 —(AP) — Guided by the snow-reflected glare of hundreds of campfires, Finnish warplanes tonight bombed red army infantry concentrations before the Mannerheim line after repelling Soviet tanks and manpower which broke five times in attacks on a Finnish base.

This new technique of swift attack by the Finnish air force was begun last night, and was resumed after the early twilight fell today.

Couriers from the front lines said the campfires of the Soviet attackers were the key to the success of the raids. They explained that the Russians had massed great numbers of infantrymen in the Summa sector, 20 miles south of the Finnish city of Viborg (Viipuri), without adequate provisions for shelter against the cold and that the troops were forced to shiver about open fires.

These fires made splendid targets for the Finnish bombers. Other, farther-ranging planes meantime bombed Soviet troops columns with increasing frequency.

North of Lake Ladoga, on the left flank of the Mannerheim line the Finns played a waiting game with the trapped 18th Russian division. There was no confirmation of reports this division had been destroyed. The Finnish communique tonight said several hundred Russians had been killed in vain attacks in this sector, both on the coast and in the vicinity of the Pitkaranta Islands south of Kitela.

The 18th division, however, now is believed surrounded in the Kitela sector, in danger of destruction, with the Finns avoiding wasting manpower to complete the job, content to let cold and hunger do the work for them.

That the red army is able to continue its powerful frontal attacks on the Mannerheim line is proof of the extent to which it has reinforced its infantry and tank forces near Summa in a determined effort to break through the Finnish positions, military sources said.

Foreign observers consider that these attacks are proving costly to the Soviet armies both in men and munitions. The Soviet reserve forces still seem strong, however.

Monday the Finns said several attacks, supported by more than 100 tanks, were repulsed between Summa and Hatjanlahti Lake, with 22 tanks destroyed and "heavy" Russian losses.

There were continued reports of parachutes floating down behind Finnish lines, carrying spies and saboteurs. Troops dropped by this method, however, have been blocked by the highly mobile Finnish patrols.

Tonight's communique admitted "a few parachutes" were dropped by the Russians in Northern Finland, but "the places where they came down are known."

Gandhi Insists On Dominion Status For India Immediately

NEW DELHI, Feb. 6—(CP Reuters)—Mohandas K. Gandhi, Indian Nationalist leader, said tonight that Great Britain must allow India to determine her own constitutional status, otherwise Heaven help India, Britain and the world."

Reviewing the Indian situation after his inconclusive talks yesterday with the Viceroy, Lord Linlithgow, Gandhi said he was not disappointed that the negotiations had so far failed.

He said he and the Viceroy parted friends and that he was going to use the failure, "as I am sure he (the Viceroy) is going to use it, as a stepping-stone to success."

But if "success does not come in the near future," he added, "I can only say, Heaven help India, Britain and the world."

"I see no prospect whatsoever of a peaceful and honorable settlement between England and India unless England decides on the right course," Gandhi asserted, "namely, by accepting a position that the time has come when India must be allowed to determine her own constitutional status."

Gandhi said both he and the Viceroy recognized existence of a "wide gulf" between the position taken by the British Government and that of the Congress Party.

A communique issued after the talks said it had been decided to defer for the present further discussions after Gandhi said the Viceroy's proposals, which included a promise "to expedite achievement of Dominion status for India," did not meet in full the Congress demands.

Vital Difference

"The vital difference between the Congress and the Viceroy's offer consists of the fact that the latter's offer contemplates final determination of India's destiny by the British Government, whereas the Congress demand contemplates just the contrary," Gandhi said.

"The Congress position is that the test of real freedom consists in the people of India determining their own destiny without outside interference."

Once India has been permitted to determine her own constitutional status, questions of defence, minorities, the Princes and European interests will be automatically solved, he said.

On the minorities issue, he said, "India cannot evolve a stable constitution without the fullest satisfaction being given to the legitimate minorities.

Discussing defence, he said:

"Surely it is the primary concern of a free India to make her own arrangements—though possibly Britain's help will be wanted for the elaborate preparations which would be necessary.

"Unarmed India is wholly unprotected except by British bayonets and Indian soldiers which British power has brought into being. Personally I am not concerned, because if I carry India with me I want nothing beyond police protection against dacoits and the like.

"As far as defence is concerned, an unarmed and peaceful India would rely on the goodwill of the whole world, although I admit this is only a day dream at present."

Weather Tricks Dulls Migratory Instinct In Ducks

WINNIPEG, Feb. 5—(CP)—The exceptionally mild winter on the prairies has lured thousands of ducks from their annual southern jaunt. Flocks have been seen on lakes and streams in the three Prairie Provinces, the majority of them in Alberta.

Ray Benson, secretary of Ducks Unlimited, Inc., said in New York yesterday that a late breeding season last spring, forest fires, floods and a long warm spell had dulled the migratory instinct of the ducks. He said instead of flying to southern United States feeding grounds, the birds this autumn were remaining by the hundreds in the north and are faced with extinction.

Several thousand ducks have found so far that Alberta is a nice spot to spend the winter, with the largest flock, 4,000, obtaining winter feed at Inglewood sanctuary at Calgary.

Last year in Alberta birds were captured and shipped to Spokane and Seattle for movement south but this year this is unlikely because of the cost.

In southern and central Saskatchewan ducks have been seen defying the winter. Two hundred were seen at Shackleton, 300 each at Moose Jaw and Riverhurst.

Saskatchewan old timers agree the outlook is not a good one. The rainfall has been below normal and very little snow has fallen, all of which means a light water run-off in the spring, leaving dried-up sloughs and creeks in the south where millions of ducks formerly raised their young.

However, the ducks are expected to fly farther north for breeding grounds. No duck famine is expected.

A. B. Howell, chief game guardian of Manitoba, said there were a few birds in Manitoba waters, some being noticed on the Assiniboine River a little while ago but these have not been reported lately.

CANADA FOR OLD 'UNS

LONDON—(CP)—If you want to live to be really old, Canada,—or Ireland—is the place, according to tabulations of Claude Baker Gabb. His figures compiled from news reports show a great proportion of ancients in Canada and Ireland.

Tryon Credit Union

At the close of the meeting the ladies served a delicious lunch. The remainder of the evening was spent in games and amusements.

Mr. Fred A. Leard was elected President for the ensuing year.

Mr. Otto C. Johnson and Rev. Fred M. Young were elected to the Board of Directors. Mr. Sterling Lord to the Cedit Committee and Mr. C.D. Wright to the Supervisory Committee.

President's Address

This being the third annual meeting of our Credit Union a brief statement from the President is in order.

Like other great movements our progress is steady, especially in an educational way. Rev. Fred Young in charge of this feature, is doing a remarkable work. It is most fitting that a Minister of the Gospel should take a leading part in this movement, because this is a real Christian work. To help people to help themselves to retain their morale and independence is the duty of any one so qualified.

The Governments of our land are honestly trying to do for the people but, as yet, no measure has been introduced that has had the desired results.

People must be taught to be self-reliant, and shown how. Without good Christian co-operative effort the position of our rural sections especially, will surely suffer.

I must congratulate you on the progress attained. Let me urge you to give the same effort through the incoming year. Your savings have all been out on loan, no member has been refused a loan, and there has been no loss to report.

Let us all strive and sacrifice for the "Cause of Democracy", and pray that victory may go to Liberty and Justice, and defeat to Atheism and Barbarism.

I thank you, one and all, for your hearty co-operation.

Sees Producers Demands Losing Cattle Market

TORONTO, Feb. 6 —(CP) —Demands by Canadian producers for curtailment of United States exports of bacon to Canada may imperil the growing market in the United States for Canadian cattle, Hon. J. G. Taggart, Saskatchewan agriculture minister and chairman of the Canadian bacon board, said here last night in an address to the Ontario swine breeders association.

Export of Canadian hogs to the United States in 1936, 1937 and 1938 were equal in value to importations of United States bacon to the dominion in 1939 he said. In addition the value of Canadian cattle sales south of the border have been increased by $15,000,000 yearly.

"Do we want to import this because 29.000,000 pounds of pork came in from the United States in 1939," Mr. Taggart asked. "The imports of pork have not impaired the price to the Canadian farmer." Any move on the part of Canadian producers to cut down imports of United States bacon might be construed as a violation of the Canadian-United States agreement boosting American imports of Canadian beef, he said.

Mr. Taggart forecast that Canada's hog production will hit a new high this year after a record production in 1939.
