READING LIGHT

It has been frequently claimed that reading light must come from over the left shoulder to be most effective.

It has been determined by experimentation that it matters not from where the light comes, provided there are no shadows cast upon the page, and provided the rays from the light do not enter the eye.

The light should be at least 26 degrees away from the direct line of sight, and should be so placed as to avoid direct reflections from the glossy pages so commonly used.

The best reading light is that termed "indirect," in which the source of light is hidden and the rays thrown on the ceiling This is similar in effect to daylight.

Island Artists Show Work At Gallery

Art lovers in Charlottetown are fortunate this fall in the variety of opportunities offered in their particular realm. The extensive exhibition of Canadian paintings and the splendid lecture by Professor Stanley Royle has been closely followed by Miss Doull's and Miss Watson's combined exhibition which is at present showing in the Harris Memorial Gallery.

This pleasingly arranged exhibition by two well-known and versatile Island artists occupies a large space in the Gallery and covers a wide scope in the various fields of art There is a large number of oil and water-colour paintings by each artist —portraits, flower studies and scenes the subjects of which range from typical Island views to Parisian studies.

The group of miniatures by Miss Doull done in water colour or ivory is particularly fine, the painting of the minute detail in some having occasioned the use of a magnifying glass. Miss Watson's design groups also show painstaking and intricate detail and very effective colouring; and the charcoal and black and white studies of both artists have much of skill and interest.

Miss Doull's well-known pottery made from Island clay provides substantial contrast to the paintings, and the glowing colours and diversity of shapes and sizes add much to the attractiveness of the display.

There are also groups of china and block prints —a pleasing variety that will afford interest to all who visit the Gallery.

N. Y. FINANCE

leaving New York.

It developed, too, that Coster at one time in his life had even a third identity — that during the Great War he was an investigator in the Attorney General's Office, engaged principally on crimes of espionage under the name of "William Johnson."

From the description of Art Gorman, assistant United States Attorney, on the visit of the Federal men to Coster's home, it appeared the elderly promoter had made his last decision just before their arrival.

"I arrived about noon in company with about 10 other men connected with the United States Marshal's office in New Haven," said Gorman.

"We had come to take Coster into custody for the purpose of raising his bond before the U. S. Commissioner in New Haven.

"As we stood at the door we heard a shot from upstairs. The household was in turmoil. I have seldom seen such hysteria or heard such weeping as was set up immediately.

"Marshal Bernard Fitch ran upstairs and found the body of Coster in the bathroom, a bullet through his head. He was dead—thoroughly dead when Fitch found him.

Widow Hysterical

"Mrs. Coster was panic-stricken and hysterical almost beyond control.

"With us was Dietrich. When he heard the shot he suddenly became a broken man. He wept pitifully and carried on when he had learned what he had suspected.

"Mrs. Coster kept repeating 'he told me he wouldn't do this. He swore he wouldn't.'"

It developed that Coster had threatened suicide three weeks ago and that three of his pistols had been hidden in the estate's garage by a chauffeur.

Just before the arrival of the officers, Coster had sent a servant for a highball which he never drank. He pulled the trigger as the servant left his presence.

The financier had ended not one life but two—that of Coster and the old life of Philip Musica which he had successfully put out of the memory of men for two decades, but which was brought back into the open at the time of his arrest some days ago.

As the authorities last week took the fingerprints which he must have known would bring Musica back, he made but one comment:— "This is testy," he said.

The troubles he could not endure started Dec. 6 when an application for a reorganization of McKesson and Robbins—which he had helped build from its beginnings as a little hair tonic company—was filed in Hartford, Conn.

Things moved rapidly after that in a patter of disaster piled upon disaster for Musica-Coster.

Securities and exchange commission men got busy, and found that McKesson and Robbins either had overestimated its assets by $18,000,000 or that that much disappeared.

Fruit stains on washable materials may be removed by soaking in warm glycerine. Rinse in clear warm water. If the stain is still visible, repeat the process. Occassionally stubborn stains require bleaching. Use a solution of two teaspoons of sodium perborate to a cup of water and soak the spot until it has disappeared. Rinse thoroughly before washing with hot water and suds.

Splendid Cough Remedy Easily Mixed at Home

It's So Easy! Makes a Big Saving. No Cooking.

To get quick relief from a distressing cough, mix your own remedy at home. Once tried, you'll say it's your favorite cough medicine, and it's so simple and easy.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. A child could do it. No cooking needed.

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a compound containing Norway Pine in concentrated form, well known for its prompt action on throat membranes.

Put the Pinex into a 16 ounce bottle, and add your syrup. Thus you make 16 ounces of very efficient remedy, and you get four times as much cough medicine for your money. It tastes fine and never spoils.

And for quick, blessed relief, it is splendid. You can feel it penetrating the air passages in a way that means business. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and eases the soreness. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep.

Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

WIDESPREAD CHANGES ARE RECOMMENDED

Seeking To Improve Protestant School System In Quebec Province.

(C. P. by Guardian's Special Wire)

MONTREAL, Dec. 16—Sweeping changes aimed at improving the Protestant school system in Quebec Province were recommended today in the report of the educational survey committee to the Protestant committee of the provincial council of education.

Completing more than a year of study and examination of witnesses, the committee, under Dr. W. A. F. Hepburn, director of education at Ayrshire, Scotland, suggested complete reorganization of the Protestant committee, a new financial setup and modernization of teaching methods.

After discussion of the recommendations, the Protestant committee referred them to a subcommittee that convened at once to consider all phases of the report and decide what action should be taken.

The report calls for the present public high school grouping to one of primary school, junior high school and senior high school. Primary would include grades I to VI, junior high grades VII to IX and senior high grades X to XII.

It suggests a wider scope for teachers and pupils by advocating a less slavish following of textbooks and rigid routine, and asks abolition of external examinations until grade XI at least.

The 11-man committee suggests compulsory schooling until the age of 14, to bring school laws into line with provincial legislation on child labor, and holds out the hope that later the age limit would be raised to 15 years.

If the recommendations are followed, the present committee would be reorganizezd throughout. It would have complete control of allotment of money ear-marked for Protestant education, but actual spending of the money would be largely in the hands of 10 local boards, one for greater Montreal and nine in designated provincial districts.

Free text-books to students and free tuition in primary and junior high grades are recommended, the committee adding that even in senior high, inability to pay fees should not be made a deterrent to students wishing to continue their education.

More rigid qualifications for teachers, and a higher salary scale for the teachers are recommended. The report suggests greater use of school buildings to develop extra-curricular activities and adult education, adding that "shutting out of the public from the schools saves trouble and expense, but diminishes the value of every dollar spent on education."

Parley Seeks Reduction Of Trade Barriers

(By ANDRUE BERDING)
(Associated Press Foreign Staff)

LIMA, Peru, Dec. 16 —(AP) — Pan-American conference declarations for reduction of international trade barriers and for the solidarity of the Americas against any foreign war threat appeared assured tonight.

The United States delegation obtained unanimous consent among the delegates of the 20 other nations represented for the trade barriers resolution and it was expected to receive formal conference acceptance.

On the solidarity measure, State Secretary Hull, head of the Washington group, was said to be convinced that all could agree on a "dynamic draft of a declaration."

Such a declaration, Hull was said to believe, could be framed —and adopted —merely by linking together sentences out of anti-aggression speeches by himself and other delegates.

This evening all delegates gathered to hear Francisco Castillo Majera, Mexican Ambassador to the United States and Chairman of the Mexican delegation, declare that all American nations must follow the way of democracy.

The delegates —some of whom have been avoiding the subject— listened in silence or applauded as Majera declared:—

"Democracy in substance and spirit is the very being of America . . . in the popular conscience of all our peoples democratic aspirations are deeply imbedded and nothing and nobody will succeed in preventing them from developing . . ."

As for a mutual defence measure, Hull had ruled out the possibility of anything in the nature of a pan-American League of Nations or a military pact.

Drama Writing For Maritimes Given Impetus

(By JOHN MOSHER
Canadian Press Staff Writer)

SAINT JOHN, N. B., Dec. 17—(CP)—The flowering of the Little Theatre movement in New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island has produced dramatic writing that rivals any being turned out elsewhere in the Dominion.

At the last Dominion festival—held in Winnipeg—two Saint John writers divided the prize for the best play written by a Canadian. Jean Sweet wrote "Small Potatoes," while J. H. Thurrott of the University of New Brunswick scored with his "La Tour."

Prince Edward Island likewise has contributed to the dramatic literature of the Maritimes. In 1936, a play called "Nocturne," written by Harry Foster of Charlottetown, was adjudged the best in the New Brunswick-Prince Edward Island region. It later was placed in Dominion competition at Ottawa.

Until this year only one regional festival wash eld for the two provinces. Owing to increased entries Prince Edward Island had its own festival this year, but in adjudication the two provinces still are considered as one region. Next year the adjudicator will spend two days judging productions. This year he spent a single day.

Oldest among the New Brunswick groups is the Theatre Guild of Saint John. Others include the Saint John Community Drama League, the Little Theatre Guild of Moncton, the University of New Brunswick Dramatic Society, the Little Theatre Society of Mount Allison University, the Black's Harbor Drama League and the St. Andrews Music, Art and Drama Club.

In the six years of Dominion festivals, the Theatre Guild of Saint John has won the regional contests four times. Charlottetown and Mount Allison University won on the other two occasions.

Encourage Children

Already the Maritime players are looking toward London, Ont., where next year's Dominion festival is to be held. One of Mrs. Sweet's plays, "The Ends of the Earth" will be among those considered for entry in the next regional festival.

The Saint John group believes in looking to the future for a supply of talent. Under its auspices a children's theatre with 90 members is operating this fall. New Brunswick's adult education work, carried out for the last two years by Mrs. Elizabeth Haines, also is having an effect on dramatics in the province.

Charlottetown has an enrollment of 400 members and eight theatre nights arranged on this season's program. The Little Theatre Guild at Summerside also plans an ambitious season. Two other groups, the Liguorian Players and the Trinity Players, competed in this year's regional festival.

The Charlottetown Guild was formed in the Fall of 1935 but that same year carried off second award in the rezional contest. Its production of Eugene O'Neill's "In the Zone" was adjudged the best play produced on the Island in this year's sub-regional judging.

difficulty in raising bail immediately.

The Cape Breton group was taken through the same procedure —fingerprints at the city police headquarters, arraignment before Magistrate B. W. Russell and setting of bail at $3,000.

The ninth Cape Bretoner, Joseph Coady of Little Bras d'or, is expected to arrive here under escort tomorrow.

Only Jack Crighton and Thomas Rossiter of Halifax and Joseph Wolfe of Lower LaHave remain to be arrested of the 24 charged.
