Maternity Sweepstake Contest

ren, eight born since 1926. Living in a spotless home here in Toronto the Harrisons, a Canadian couple have perhaps the healthiest children of the families competing in the race. Mrs. Harrison isn't just sure what she would do with the

that they become members of the Jockey club within three years. Two crusaders, Hon. W. E. Raney, judge of the Ontario supreme court, and Rev. Dr. S. D. Chown, staunch opponents of race tracks and horses, became members of the money if she won. She will admit, however that she adores baby clothes. "If I win the money I will go down and buy a complete layette for my youngest baby," she says.

While the maternity race is the high light of Charles Miller's will it is not the only part which has stirred the public. A practical joker to the end, Miller left brewery stocks to ministers. The stocks of a Toronto brewery, a company in which were many Roman Cath-club but immediately let their membership lapse and turned the proceeds of the stock over to the Poppy Fund and a needy ex-soldiers' organization.

Legal authorities in Toronto feel that the picking of the winner will involve the biggest legal case ever to involve Canadian courts. Three years ago the Ontario government attempted to escheat the estate by passing an act of parliament. A flood of angry protests soon stopped this in its second reading and olics, were left to Orange lodges and Protestant ministers in Toronto. Of the 144 Orange lodges who were bequeathed the Catholic stock 103 accepted the shares which were worth about $56 each. Ninety-one ministers accepted the stock but almost without exception they sold it at once, turning over the proceeds to charity.

the government dropped the idea. None of the mothers want all the money for themselves. Mrs. Harrison suggested that the six highest in the running divide the half a million between them.

"That suits me," agreed Mrs. Kenny. "There's enough money for all of us. If I win I am going to give part of it to the other families anyway."
So instead of one mother taking the lump sum, half a dozen of them may share the winnings.

Vancouver Plans Air Race Across Canada

VANCOUVER, Oct. 31.—The stage was all set today for preliminaries attending the first air race across Canada. The Skyways trail will reach from Vancouver to Montreal to usher in Vancouver's Golden Jubilee celebration.

To the winner a pot of gold—$5,000—will be offered as first prize. A pot of silver or its equivalent will be awarded for second place. The race, under the auspices of the Canadian Flying Clubs Association, will be open to high-speed aircraft from all nations.

The event will mark a week's air pageant in connection with the jubilee scheduled to last from May 24 to August 15, next year. Original plans confined the "Derby" to Canadian-owned or built machines, flown by Canadian pilots, but the present intention is to open it to all comers.

Boy's Daring Feat To Rescue Lamb

An eleven-year-old Rhonda boy, Johnny Williams, descended a mountain crevice 40 feet deep and only 18 inches wide to rescue a lamb after three men who had worked for more than 60 hours to extricate it had failed.

The rescue of a pet terrier, which fell into the same crevice between Clydach Vale and Gell, led to the discovery of the lamb's plight. Several parties had tried to bring up the lamb, but the crevice was so narrow that only a schoolboy could make the descent.

Suspended by a rope, Williams, was lowered down the crevice, facing the danger of falling stones and lighting his way with a police torch. He succeeded in tying a rope round the lamb and both were hauled to the surface unhurt.

Surgeons Study Vitamin E

By HOWARD BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor
SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 31.—(A.P.)—Expectant mothers on relief, and many others besides, were listed as not getting the right things to eat in a summary on maternal nutrition reported to the American College of Surgeons today by Leigh-Ann C. Conn, Professor of Gynecology and Obstetrics at the University of Alberta, Medical School, Edmonton.

It is not sufficient, he said, to tell an expectant mother to be careful of her diet. She should be informed specifically what to eat. Dr. Conn held, and specified the following basic diet.

One quart of milk daily, fresh cheese twice a week, two cups of vegetables daily, one fresh if possible; one cup of whole cooked cereal supplemented two or three days a month by uncooked grain germs; one cup of fruit, including fruits or canned tomatoes three days a week; and one medium sized serving of meat, fish, fowl or eggs, with the addition of liver once each week.

The surgeons today were shown 1,000 milligrams of pure vitamin E, without which neither man nor animals can reproduce.

Described as at present the most priceless substance in the world, it is a glittering white substance that resembles fine table salt. It is composed of minute spike-shaped crystals.

The vitamin crystals were shown, along with the newly undertaken experiments in the laboratory of the discoverer of this vitamin and of the method of isolating it, Dr. Herbert Evans of the University of California.

The first experiment with the pure vitamin, the one shown to the visiting surgeons today, is to learn how much vitamin E is needed for reproduction. To learn this rats were given a diet in which the reproductive vitamin is completely

Royal Honey-mooners Coming To Canada

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 31.—A royal honeymoon couple on a round-the-world tour are due to arrive in the city this week, being the Prince and Princess of Asturias, travelling under the name of Prince and Princess Don Juan de Borbon. They disembarked recently from the S.S. "Bremen" at New York City, and after also visiting Philadelphia and Washington, will arrive here from the latter city on "The Montreuil" train of the Canadian National Railways, reaching Bonaventure station on Friday at 8.25 a.m. The royal couple are much interested in Canadian cities and scenic attractions and with this in view have planned to stay over two days in the Metropolis to become acquainted with its many historic and modern features before proceeding to points farther West. Leaving the city next Sunday morning their itinerary in Canada includes visits to Toronto, Niagara Falls and Winnipeg, from which point they will make Jasper, in Alberta, their headquarters for nearly a week, exploring the scenic beauties of the Canadian Rockies and surrounding territory in and adjacent to Jasper National Park. There they will take sightseeing drives along the trails and foothills frequented by visitors from all over the world during the tourist season. From Jasper they proceed to Vancouver to get a glimpse of Canada's Pacific Coast and then will visit Seattle, Los Angeles and San Francisco, from which point they embark for Yokohama, Japan.

'Vanity Fair' Once "A Pernicious Book"

BRIDLINGTON, Oct. 31.—The D. W. J. Lady Nunburnholme, opening the Pawcett Library at Hunmanby Hall School for Girls, near Bridlington, said that girls of today were freely offered books to read which were forbidden to girls of her generation.

She remembered her mother having a talk with Lord Roseberg, and they were discussing whether they should allow their daughters, whose ages ranged from 14 to 20, to read "Vanity Fair." After a long discussion they decided not to allow their children to read "that pernicious book."

"However, I had read it when I was eleven, and three times more before I was 18," she added.

Last Season Call At Mont. Port

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 31.—Another vessel of the Canadian National Steamships to bid adieu to the local port for this season will be the "Vagabond Cruise" ship Chomedy, when she sails on Saturday night, or possibly Sunday morning, having been delayed for about two days owing to taking on of heavy cargo this weekend. The Chomedy is bound via Halifax to Puerto Rico, Barbados, Trinidad, and British Guiana, on the coast of South America, and on this trip will make extra calls at Pointe à Pitre, Guadeloupe, and Port de France, Martinique, and St. Vincent on her southbound voyage, and will also make an extra call at Grenada north bound.

She will henceforth make Halifax her port of arrival and departure during the winter season. This will not be the last "Vagabond Cruise" ship to be seen at Montreal this season, however, for the Colborne is due here November 23rd, but when she leaves two days later on the same route she too will then say good-bye to the local port until next Spring, also making Halifax her port for the winter. In addition to passengers, the Chomedy will also carry a good cargo of automobiles, lumber, shingles, flour, feed, hay, cheese, footwear, packing house products and a quantity of Canadian manufactured articles for the Southern colonies.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—A large, highly-ornamented cabinet, with a sinister history, was on view at Selfridge's recently.

It was given to Lucrezia Borgia, the notorious "ma's" poisoner of the Renaissance period, by her brother, Caesar. It contains dozens of secret drawers in which Lucrezia is reputed to have kept liquors and wines. The most interesting feature, however, is the key, in the handle of which is hidden a needle which remained embedded in a deadly poison.

Lucrezia's enemies often attempted to open the cabinet, but their ignorance of the existence of the needle meant a swift death in terrible agony.

The cabinet was later given by Cardinal de Medicis to Cesar Alexander I, and remained in the possession of the House of Romanoff until 1917. It was often admired by Rasputin.

It is now owned by Baron von Landauer, and is for sale at 5,000 pounds.

In every case the rats became sterile. Giving them some of the pure vitamin restored fertility as a rule, though not always in old rats.
