Why Lost Limbs Ache

(Special to The Guardian)
 WINNIPEG, March 29.—The Hudson Bay railway line has been surveyed as far as Fort Churchill. Surveyors reach Ft. Churchill, report mild winter.

(By British United Press)
 PARIS, March 29.—It is common knowledge that after a limb has been amputated the patient continues to feel pains or other sensations in the leg or arm that has been cut off. Strictly speaking, the sensations are an illusion, but no less painful for that reason.

In medical accounts of cases of amputation there "false pains" have been noted, but now, probably for the first time, a physician, Dr. Lobligeois, has studied such a case from personal experience of the phenomena and given an account of his sensations in "Le Monde Medical."

Dr. Lobligeois, in the course of his work as a radiologist at the Bretonneau Hospital, so injured his right arm with X-rays that it had to be amputated.

He can hardly believe his arm is no longer attached to his body at times, he writes, for his sensations are so strong and definite. Usually he feels the arm as if it were bent at the elbow and his hand resting between the buttons of his waistcoat, as he was accustomed to rest it when it ached. He can put it behind his back, but, strangely enough, he then has the feeling that the phantom arm goes right through his body, instead of around it.

He can say exactly the position in which he feels his wrist and his fingers to be, and he often finds them in an involuntary raised position, as if he were holding a pen or an imaginary arm to help his less efficient left arm.

The doctor describes other sensations—such as the feeling of opening or shutting the lost hand—and, although these are not unpleasant, he has others—burning pains, cold shivers and sharp prickings—that are hard to bear.

The most convincing explanation of all these various illusions which furnish the nerves to the severed member remained in the stump, and these centres can be irritated by the tissue of the scar, and this irritation transmitted to the brain, arouses, from habit, the image of that part of the body which the irritated nerves served.

Would Modify Immigration Laws
 NORTH ATTLEBORO, Mass., March 27.—A strong plea for immigration legislation which would allow more than a million residents of this country, who entered the United States prior to the passage of the alien registration law, to become citizens, has been made by Representative Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of this city. Mr. Martin's plea was made in a letter to Chairman Albert Johnson of the house naturalization committee.

FARM BUTTER MAKING
 Butter-making on Canadian farms has improved considerably in the last few years, but there is still room for advancement. An account of the widely scattered, and in many instances the isolated, conditions of the farm butter makers, it is difficult to take steps which would result in an improvement. If this improvement is to take place and be of profit to farm butter-makers, it is necessary that greater attention be given to the factors affecting the quality of butter. The fundamental facts and principles concerning butter-making should be learned and applied, and careful attention given to the small as well as to the large details in connection with the business.

SKIMMING THE MILK
 The cream separator is the most economical and best way of skimming the cream from the milk. Care must be taken not to mix warm cream with that on hand. This is a very important point and should be carefully attended to; when cream is added to the whole should be mixed thoroughly. Higher temperatures are usually required in winter than in summer.
 The following factors influence churning:
 1. Temperature. The higher the temperature the less time required.
 2. Character of butterfat. When the hard fats predominate, as they usually do in winter, a higher temperature is required to unite than is necessary when the soft fats are in abundance.
 3. Richness of cream. In rich cream the fat globules are closer together than in thin, and unite more readily.
 4. Amount of cream in the churn. The quantity of cream that will churn the quickest is a churn about one-third full.
 5. Speed of the churn. The speed should be such as to produce the greatest amount of concussion. This can be learned by listening to the sound produced by the cream in the churn. Speed too slow or too fast prolongs the time required for churning and often injures the grain of the butter.
 6. Abnormal fermentations. Slimy orropy cream is very gummy, and consequently hard or impossible to churn.

SALTING
 The butter should be salted immediately after the removal of the wash water. Use a fine, dry, pure salt. The rate at which the butter should be salted will depend upon the market requirements, varying as a rule from one-half to three-quarters of an ounce of salt to the pound of butter, but not more than one ounce to the pound. The best method is to weigh out the butter and the salt if possible.
 In salting, spread the butter evenly over the bottom of the churn and sift on part of the salt. Tilt the churn to cause the butter to lap over, sift on more salt, then tilt the churn back again and sift on the remainder of the salt. But do not revolve the churn slowly until the butter is gathered in a mass, and allow it to remain in the churn for fifteen to twenty minutes, so that the salt will be dissolved before working. If the room is very warm, it may be necessary to work it up at once to prevent the butter from becoming too soft.

Triple Week End Feature Bill At The Capitol
 THE POPULAR WESTERN ACE, TOM MIX, THE FINAL CHAPTER OF "HAWK OF THE HILLS", AND THE NEW SERIAL, "THE MASKED MENACE".
 Again Tom Mix scores a triumph with a thrilling romantic drama of the West, "Daredevil's Reward," which had its first showing at the Capitol Theatre yesterday.
 Some new stunts in daring riding as well as an unusually fine story shot with many laughter provoking episodes make this latest Fox feature an outstanding entertainment.
 Mix is cast in the role of a Texas Ranger detective and as such assumes various disguises but all of western type. One of these is that of a doctor of a medicine show, who is forced to pull a tooth for one of the men he is trailing. Tom pulls the wrong tooth and then the fun commences.
 Natalie Joyce has the leading feminine role and gives a splendid performance. Others in the cast are Lawford Davidson, Billy Bliet, Harry Cording and William Welsh.
 The story and scenario are by John Stone who wrote the tale especially for Mix and Tony Cedeno. Forde is the director of this, probably the best picture in which the Western Ace has yet appeared.
 The final chapter of "The Hawk of the Hills" and the opening chapter of "The Masked Menace" the new Capitol serial make up one of the best week end bills seen at this popular theatre for some time.

LIVESTOCK MEETING
 The first annual meeting of the Eastern Kings Live Stock Shipping Club was held in Montserrat, St. John's, on March 16th at 2:30 p. m. President James Mullaly in the chair. A large number of members were in attendance and all spoke well for the success of the club.
 When we consider the short time that this club is in operation, we must readily conclude that shipping clubs have demonstrated beyond a doubt their usefulness as a marketing agency and with the backing of those clubs that are destined to become the greatest organizations the farmers have for the benefit of the Live Stock Industry.
 The gross amount of live stock shipped through this club since it started last fall amounted to $10,040.23, net to farmers $9,941.23.
 After the adoption of the manager's report the following directors and officers were appointed for the coming year:—
 James A. E. McDonald, Little Pond; John Geo. McDonald, Little Pond; J. Reid Underhay, Red House; Wood, Red House; Douglas Aitken, Bay Fortune; Ed. Reid, Rollo Bay; Andrew F. Peters, Rollo Bay; Joseph E. Deagle, Bear River; John H. McKinnon, Bear River; John Doyle, Souris West; James Mullaly, Souris River; Wm. Whelan, Souris River; James Manning, Zealand; James Keays, Hill Road; Frank McAulay, Line Road; John A. McPhee, Big Pond; D. F. McAulay, Norris Pond; Atres Campbell, Little Harbour; Nelson Stewart, Red Point; Freeman Stewart, Red Point; Daniel J. Campbell, Campbell's Cove; James Robertson, Kingsboro; John A. Fraser, Munn's Road; Wallace McDonald, South Lake; Stephen McDonald, N. Lake.
 The following officers were re-appointed:—
 President—James Mullaly.
 Vice President—Jas. E. Deagle.
 Sec'y. and Manager—P. A. McIsaac.
 Auditor—Wm. Hughes.
 Nine members were then put in nomination for delegates to attend the convention at Moncton next July. A ballot was taken with the following result. Delegates to convention Wm. Hughes and P. A. McIsaac.
 Alternates John H. McKinnon and Joseph E. Deagle.
 Mr. C. E. McKenzie then gave an interesting talk on the Dairying Industry, imparting some very interesting information and helpful suggestions.
 The resolution, re exhibitions and the Government Bull loaning policy was next discussed, and the following resolution was unanimously adopted:
 "It has been brought to our attention that the Government proposes withdrawing the grant from the local exhibitors and expending the money so obtained, in organising Bull Clubs in an endeavour to improve the cattle of the community."
 "While well aware of the advantage to be derived from the use of improved bulls, it is our belief that the change above mentioned would not have the desired effect."
 "We suffer not from a lack of suitable bulls but from a lack of appreciation of the benefits to be derived from their use."
 "We believe that our local exhibitors are the best means of acquainting the farming community with the benefits to be derived from the use of pure bred bulls."
 "We recommend that the grants to local exhibitors be continued and moreover that every means be taken to eliminate the scrub bull from our midst, and that advantage be taken of the next T. B. inspection for this purpose and all inferior bulls be condemned."
 The meeting then adjourned.

THE CHURN AND ITS PREPARATIONS
 The plain barrel style of churn without any interior fittings is the one to be desired above all others, preferably of a size that will hold three times as much cream as requires to be churned.
 A churn should be thoroughly scalded with hot water when preparing it for use. If it has become very dry since the last churning, rub well in side with salt to fill up the pores in the wood, after which rinse with cold water. When the churn has been cooled it is ready for the cream to be added. Prepare the worker, lades and printer in the same manner.
 All cream should be strained into the churn through a fine wire sieve. This removes the possibility of particles of dirt or dried cream getting into the churn and being incorporated in the butter. Butter color, if required to secure a proper shade, is added to the cream after it has been strained into the churn.
 During the first few minutes of churning, the plug should be put through a strainer and the butter generated to escape. When the particles of fat have united to such an extent that they begin to be visible in the cream, the butter is said to "break" and the completion of the churning operation is near. When the butter is sufficiently gathered, the cover is then removed and the butter examined. If there are no small particles of butter on the sides of the churn, the churning is finished; otherwise a few more revolutions are necessary.
 The buttermilk is now drawn off through a strainer and the butter rinsed with a gallon or more of cold water which is allowed to escape from the churn. The outlet is then closed and the wash water added; the churn is revolved for two minutes and the wash water drawn off. If the butter is firm or washing is necessary it is usually preferable, however, to wash twice.

Annual Ice Patrol In The North Atlantic
 BOSTON, March 27.—The International Ice Patrol has again embarked on its annual task of safeguarding shipping in the ice berg infested section of the North Atlantic east and southeastward from Cape Race to the tail of the Grand Banks. The Coast Guard cutter Mojave left the Charlottetown Navy Yard recently, and is today somewhere along the steamship lane. Her relief ship, the cutter Modoc, is due to leave New York April 1. The vessels remain on duty fifteen days at a time, putting in at Halifax during relief periods.
 Each vessel carries a crew of approximately 100 officers and men. In addition there is an oceanographic staff of three, who will see no relief periods, transferring always to the vessel on active duty. The men who will remain on the patrol until it ends, July 1, are Lt. N. G. Ricketts, oceanographer; his assistant, A. A. Touchette of Franklin, N. H., and Chief Radio Operator E. G. Holden.
 Their duty will be to locate ice bergs and report their location to shipping and to shore radio stations. Reports of atmospheric and other conditions received before the patrol began indicated that a greater number of bergs might be expected this year than usually. The cleanup will move westward as reports from the oceanographic staff indicate the movement of ice.
 Salinity machines, two of the only three in existence, which determine the amount of salt in the water, are used very successfully on the cutters in locating ice bergs. As ice bergs are formed of frozen snow, the majority of them are from the Greenland Ice Cap, and therefore fresh and not salt, the salinity machine is of much value in tracing currents along which the melting bergs float.
 The ice patrol is conducted by the U. S. Coast Guard, but the expense is borne by fourteen maritime nations, in proportion to their shipping tonnage.

 —PLAY ENJOYED—The cast of the play "Oak Farm" met at the home of their director, Mr. Linus McDonald, Cross Rivers, on Friday night and presented Mr. and Mrs. McDonald with two easy chairs as a token of their appreciation of their work in producing this play. The presentation was made by Miss Helen McIntyre and Mr. Celestine McLeellan, while Miss Kathleen Fraught read the following address: To Mr. and Mrs. Linus C. McDonald, Grand River, P. E. I. Dear Mr. and Mrs. McDonald: The cast of "Oak Farm" have taken this occasion to express their appreciation of your splendid work in the production of that play. If "Oak Farm" was a success, and it is generally admitted that it was, the credit for that success rightly belongs to you. Your innate acting ability together with your past experience in producing dramatic presentations has proved of incalculable service to us, while your tactful directions and with criticisms made our rehearsals not only educational, but also most enjoyable. And if to you, Mr. McDonald must go the lion's share of credit for the successful direction of the play, to your amiable partner, Mrs. McDonald, we owe a debt of gratitude for her work in preparing costumes and attending to the minor details so essential to the play's success. To each of you we tender our sincere thanks and as your work during the preparation of this play has been most arduous, we offer you these easy chairs, in the hope that before next St. Patrick's you may be sufficiently rested to undertake the direction of another one. Signed by the members of the Grand River Dramatic Club of 1928, Bertha Morrison, Irene Morrison, Kathleen Fraught, Helen McIntyre, Carl McDonald, Angus Gillis, Harold McIntyre, Arnold Fraught, Celestine McLeellan, Willard McLeellan, Will Gillis, Mr. McDonald in behalf of Mrs. McDonald and himself thanked the donors most heartily for their beautiful gifts. He spoke very feelingly of the pleasure they had derived from their association during the preparation of the play with these entertaining and enthusiastic young ladies and gentlemen and said he was glad to know that the cast had enjoyed the rehearsals as much as he and Mrs. McDonald had. A dainty luncheon was then served by Mrs. McDonald and the remainder of the evening spent most joyfully with vocal and instrumental music.
