MANY BALL TEAMS NEED ROGERS HORNBY'S SERVICES

Giants Were Said To Have Offered $200,000 For Him Last Year—Likely To Be Spirited Bidding For This Star If He Is Placed on the Market.

By HENRY L. FARRELL (United Press Sports Editor) NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Despite the insistence of the owners and manager of the St. Louis Cardinals...

The outcome of the pennant race in the National League next season may be influenced in a very large degree by what means the St. Louis club decides upon in solving the problem caused by the rebellion of Hornsby.

For several years, Hornsby has acted like a satisfied player with the Cardinals, and as long as he seemed to have no objections, the statements made by the club owners when the Giants were said to have offered $200,000 for him...

Hornsby, from all indications, is not satisfied now. His act in taking a poke at Branch Rickey indicates that he was not in sympathy with the policies of his manager and his refusal to play in one of the late games of the season practically established that indication as a fact.

As long as he is dissatisfied and in a state of open disagreement with the management, Hornsby's playing must necessarily suffer and his value to the club will decrease not only by the effect it will have upon him as an individual, but because of the demoralization that it is bound to work with the whole club.

Perhaps the owners do mean it now when they say that they will not dispose of him, but they will not be wise in taking that stand.

With Hornsby on the open market the club should be able to get enough material in a trade to make the club at least stronger than it is now.

New York, Chicago and Pittsburgh probably will engage in spirited bidding for Hornsby, if he is placed upon the market.

Late in the season, John McGraw said that he did not want Hornsby and that he was not prepared to make any offers for him.

It does not stand to reason that the Giants would refuse to make room for the best ball player in the league, when his presence in the lineup would increase the drawing power of the Giants as a gate attraction, even if he figures that he would not increase the playing strength of the team.

Because of the protest that would arise if the Giants outbid the other clubs and for the reason that baseball generally might be hurt by another stroke of "pennant buying," perhaps McGraw will not go after Hornsby, but that is the only logical reason that would cause McGraw to pass up the chance to acquire such a valuable player.

There is no doubt that the baseball heads figure that it would be unwise from a business standpoint to allow the Giants to become any stronger than they are by the use of cash.

The Chicago Cubs, in addition to being strong financially, are also in a position to offer the Cardinals some very fine materials in a trade. Charley Hollocher, the Cub shortstop and one of the best in the league, is said to be on the market, and it is a cinch that he would not be out of place in the St. Louis infield.

It is not certain that the Cubs want Hornsby so bad that they would be too liberal in offering terms for him. Bill Killefer, although he has almost as much money as the Giants back of him, is not of the buying kind.

The Cubs are a coming ball club. They are being built surely and soundly and Hornsby would surely increase the strength of the team.

Two years running it has been shown that the Pittsburgh Pirates cannot win the National League pennant with their present team. The Pirates want a pennant and here is only one way to get it.

Rabbit Maraville, the one time star shortstop of the club, is in bad with the team and it is generally known that he will not be with the team next year if the management can find some better means of disposing of him that giving him away.

The Rabbit is not through as a ball player and perhaps a change of scenery would do him good. He hasn't the temperament, however, that would fit in with Rickey's policies of management and perhaps the Cardinals manager would not consider him as an addition to the team.

The football game between Summerside and P. W. C., which was supposed to take place at 3.30 yesterday, didn't get away until about five o'clock, due to the late arrival of the "Westerners," who experienced more or less car trouble on the way to the Capital.

The visitors were hopelessly outclassed and beaten by a score of 9 to nil.

Owing to the late hour of starting, it was decided to play two ten minute periods.

There was nothing spectacular to the game with the exception of the way the college squad started business by rushing the play into the visitors territory and scoring two touchdowns before the first half was over.

In the second stanza the Summerside team were again on the defensive, and the best they could do was to hold the locals to one additional touch.

None of the counters were converted and the game ended 9 to 0 in darkness and a down pour of rain.

It was regretted that the Summerside boys were unable to get to the city on time in order to play a full game; but nevertheless the gameness and determination shown by them during the short contest is commendable and will make a good team as the material is there and only needs development.

Frank McDonald capably handled the game.

MONTREAL, Oct. 25.—Montreal High School and Westmount High Juniors won their games in the Inter-school Rugby League yesterday, the former over-whelming Strathcona 82-1, while Westmount earned a 36 to 1 victory over Lower Canada College.

Westmount were scored against for the first time this season, while Strathcona Juniors scored their first and only point in the league fixtures to date.

Sporting Comment

Though beaten in two out of three meetings for the Halifax International Fishermen's Trophy by the hardy sailormen of Lunenburg, Gloucester's hopes have arisen and their confidence is now placed on the Columbia, pride of the American fleet, which they think will take the Bluenose's measure in the series of races, starting Monday morning, Oct. 29th.

A second race will be sailed Tuesday, Oct. 30th and a third Wednesday if necessary, the trophy being decided on the basis of two out of three.

Since the meeting of 1921 the contending schooners have been much the same size, though the only schooner fishing out of Massachusetts Bay that really is as large as the Bluenose is the Mayflower. However, the Columbia is only about three feet shorter over all than our champion Bluenose, and her waterline length of 105 feet is correspondingly shorter.

The chief dimensions of the defender and challenger are:

Mike McTigue May Retire From Ring

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—The boxing firm of McTigue & Jacobs, consisting of Mike McTigue, world's light-heavyweight champion, and his manager, Joe Jacobs, is facing dissolution.

Champion and manager will journey their separate ways next August, unless a radical change for the better is effected in the present relations between the two.

Reports of this have been current for some time, but not until yesterday was this verified. When Manager Jacobs admitted that while everything was satisfactory right now, it was probable he would sever relations with the boxer when his contract with McTigue expires next August.

The reason for the break, Jacobs said, is McTigue's desire to return to Ireland and enter upon a business career there.

In the ten months remaining before the contract expires however Jacobs plans to keep McTigue busy. He has signed McTigue for a world's light-heavyweight championship bout against Gene Tunney, American champion, in Madison Square Garden on December 10.

Jacobs also is planning to open negotiations for a bout between McTigue and Georges Carpentier here, providing the title holder beats Tunney in their Garden battle. Several other matches also are under consideration by Jacobs.

Both Boxers Are Preparing to Go

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Mike McTigue and Gene Tunney today posted weight and appearance forecasts for their fifteen-round match at Madison Square Garden, December 10, for the world's light-heavyweight title.

Under the agreement both are to make the class limit, 175 pounds at two p. m. the day of the fight. Both McTigue, whose title will be at stake, and Tunney who holds the United States light-heavyweight crown, are preparing to begin training.

GENARO AND MARKS TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Frankie Genaro, American flyweight champion, a title won from Pancho Villa, present holder of the world's srown at the flyweight limit, will defend his title against Georgie Marks of California at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Genaro, since winning the American title from Villa, has not been active because of an injured hand. He fully has recovered from those injuries and will challenge Villa for the world's title if he beats Marks. Marks came from California a little over a year ago and was matched to meet Abe Goldstein, to whom he lost. The lad had not become acclimated and went home determined never to come back.

Bluenose All Canadian

The forthcoming international race for fishing schooners which is scheduled to take place on Oct. 29, will in itself be a very interesting event. What could be more fitting on an occasion such as this than that Canada's defender, the "Bluenose," should be rendered more seaworthy by being protected with the Canada Paint Company, Limited, of Montreal, true Canadian manufacturers, have supplied their Marine Paints and Varnishes with which the "Bluenose" has been entirely finished.

Special Boat-bottom Compound will give her more speed, Spar Varnishes will brighten up her masts and make them more durable, deck paints will protect her deck, waterproof and extremely durable hull paints will seal her pores in the wood and insure against leakage. Everything possible is being done to put the "Bluenose" in "ship-shape" and make her worthy of the pride of her admirers.

All eyes in Canada are on the "Bluenose" of whom we feel justly confident will again be victorious. She is manned by able men tried and true and who have the right sporting spirit to bring her to the finishing line leagues ahead of her competitors.

Here's to you "Bluenose." Go in and win, we are with you.

BLUENOSE CHEERED LUNENBURG, Oct. 25.—The schooner Bluenose, Captain Angus Walters, sailed at eleven thirty this morning for Halifax, where she will meet the Columbia of Gloucester in the first of the International contest series Monday next.

Crows thronged the waterfront to give the Bluenose a farewell salute worthy of a champion.

Last night in the L. of C. Alleys the Eskimos won from the Egg Candler by a good safe margin. The new pins are bothering most of the bowlers, and they find it difficult to make high scores.

P. Coyle of the Eskimos made highest single score since opening of this series, 197 pins.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 25.—The indefinite suspension of Pitcher "Chief" Bender and Catcher "Lena" Styles, of the Baltimore Internationals was announced today by Jack Dunn, managing owner of the Orioles. Dunn said he took this step because he was displeased with the conduct of the two players at a banquet given the Kansas City and Baltimore clubs here last night.

Papyrus Sails For Home on Aquitania

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—The closing scenes of the equine drama in which Papyrus and Zev played leading roles were enacted today on the Cunard Line pier, when the big liner Aquitania pulled out.

Zev was not there to bid adieu to his erstwhile rival but the minor characters, Basil Jarvis, Steve Donoghue and Dr. Pride-Jones, lined up along the starboard rail and waved a farewell as they received good-byes from a little company of well-wishers.

Down below, on the E. deck forward, Papyrus was quietly munching his hay in his palatial boxstall as the gangway was lowered, oblivious of the fact that his box would be a pitching, rolling prison as soon as the ship plunged into the northeast storm on her way up the coast.

He is the hard luck horse of the year, his whole great adventure having been one series of mishaps and misfortunes.

Basil Jarvis asked the press representatives to deliver a message to the American people. "I want to thank the American people and more especially the American horsemen for the wide spread interest in Papyrus, and for the hearty welcome our party was given the unfailing courtesy, generosity and kindness displayed throughout our stay. Americans have proved themselves wonderful sportsmen throughout the preparation for and the running of this great event."

"There is not the slightest reason in the world why a first class horse cannot be sent to the United States, leaving home in fit condition coming on a fast ship and training well a few weeks here and then go in and win his share of his races. He should be able to beat every horse that goes against him that is not as good a horse as he is."

"I have had my experiences on this first trip, and I have learned many things. On my next trip I will have had the benefit of those experiences."

"We haven't one single excuse for our defeat. But I do feel sorry that in the weeks we were here we had not one bit of rain and then on the day before the race to have a downpour. I am sorry that Papyrus could not run on that track and give the American people a better race."

Steve Donoghue Real Gentleman

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Steve Donoghue has made quite an impression on the Americans who have interviewed him. They expected to meet a blatant, over-dressed, cocky fellow who would immediately proclaim his own superiority, take a rap at the Volstead Act, and declare his intention of having Papyrus ride Zev into the ground. Instead they found a mild mannered little chap, a bit older than anticipated, who was as interested as a boy in all he saw around him.

Donoghue just promised to do his best, complimented his rival Sande on his great skill and reputation, and declared it would be a great honor to defeat the American rider and Zev. Beyond that he had nothing to say. Old-timers recall the rash behavior of Tod Sloan when he was the reigning sensation in England and was sweeping all before him. It is recalled that when riding for the late King Edward, then the Prince of Wales, he wore an American flag for a sash. Incidentally he won the race. Damon Runyan tells of that event in a fine bit of verse. Sloan was a great flag waver in those days.

There is no doubt that the baseball heads figure that it would be unwise from a business standpoint to allow the Giants to become any stronger than they are by the use of cash.

The Chicago Cubs, in addition to being strong financially, are also in a position to offer the Cardinals some very fine materials in a trade.
