Interpreting The BRITISH War

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer
Italian arms, poured into North Africa to further Fascist dreams of a vast Mediterranean empire, are being turned against their erstwhile owners.

Captured in undisclosed quantity in Egypt and Libya in defeats which cost Italy 100,000 or more prisoners taken by the British forces, these made-in-Italy rifles, machine guns, grenades and field guns are already appearing in East Africa, where Ethiopian patriots are fighting their Italian conquerors.

Emperor Haile Selassie, the Lion of Judah, again has raised his green and yellow banner over Ethiopian soil. Arms wrested by British troops from Fascist foes in North Africa are quickly equipping Ethiopian natives for an effort, with British help, to sweep Italian forces out of all East Africa.

There are no official figures for the extent of British armament captures at Sid Barrani, at Bardia or at Tobruk. It is unquestionably very large. Cairo has reported great ammunition and supply dumps taken intact.

Those victories in North Africa have yielded Italian arms and ammunition suited to the base of Haile Selassie's warriors without tainting British reserves. Like Greek armament captures, those lost weapons deal Italy a double blow. They not only decrease her own powers of defence, but augment the offensive operations of her foes, and it is reasonable to suppose that the British command in Africa now has available from Italian sources fighting equipment for 50,000 or even more Ethiopian tribesmen.

Had the Lion of Judah's forces possessed such armament in 1936, the Italian conquest of Ethiopia might have been averted.

6 Cape Breton Sailors arrive At Glace Bay

SYDNEY, N.S., Jan. 26.—(CP)—A member of the crew of the former Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation collier Shekatika, torpedoed October 19, arrived here today by rail with five other Cape Breton sailors of the merchant marine.

George Clark, 25, of nearby Glace Bay, said the entire crew of the Shekatika had been picked up by British sloops after the torpedoing. They were taken to ports in England, he said.

Four of the other seamen who arrived here with Clark were paid off in England after helping convoy ships across the Atlantic last fall and up until recently had been awaiting the chance to return to Canada.

They were Frank James, of Glace Bay; James Higgins, 45, Reserve Mines; Alex. McNell, 27, New Waterford, and Joseph Whitewood, 20, Glace Bay.

Paul Coffey, of Sydney, the other man, went across on a freighter taken over in a Canadian port after the capitulation of France, and returned over to the French forces of Gen. Charles DeGaulle.

Fishermen's outlook Changed by war

OTTAWA, Jan. 26.—(CP)—War demands have brought changes in the economic condition of Canadian fishermen and Fisheries Department information tonight was that while markets such as that for lobster have practically disappeared, other export lines gained.

Another major gain was in sales of frozen cod, with exports to Great Britain worth $1,127,000 in 1940 against $67,000 in 1939.

"Total Canadian exports of all fish products in 1940 had a value of $32,559,000 compared with $29,641,000 in 1939. Last year's business with the United States was nearly $16,494,000 as against $13,861,000 for 1939.
