Happenings of The Week

Queen Mary, accompanied by her daughter-in-law, the Duchess of Kent, and two of her young grandchildren, the Duke of Kent and Princess Alexandra, Wednesday paid her first visit in more than 40 years to Madame Tussaud's wax-works.

Miss Anna Ross, R. N. and Miss Lumena Poirier, R. N. of the Provincial Sanatorium Staff left by plane Friday on a holiday visit to New York and Philadelphia.

Mrs. H. R. Hilsen left Wednesday on a visit with friends in Boston.

The Duke of Windsor paid a courtesy call on U.S. State Secretary Marshall last week. Accompanied by Baron Inverchapel, British Ambassador, the Duke conferred with the Secretary for about 30 minutes.

Hon. J. A. Campbell, M. L. A. was receiving the congratulations of his friends last Saturday, the occasion of his 68th birthday.

Home friends will be sorry to learn of the very critical illness of Mr. Frank Gardiner at his home in Windsor, Ont.

Mrs. Stewart, wife of Lieut. Col. J. D. Stewart left Tuesday on a visit to Boston.

A cordial welcome awaits Mrs. Harry Brown who is arriving home next week to take up residence after spending the winter months among her relatives in Boston.

Mrs. A. H. Mould left Wednesday on a holiday trip with members of her family in the Southern States.

Mrs. Robert Holman who has been in the P. E. I. Hospital for the past few weeks returned to her home on Thursday.

Mrs. T. W. Morris has come from Nova Scotia to join her husband now manager of the Queen Hotel. A former resident Mrs. Morris is renewing happy friendships.

Princess Elizabeth will accept the freedom of the city of Edinburgh on her return from the royal tour of South Africa.

Mrs. Morton Dew was hostess at a delightful four table bridge at her home, 106 North River Road Wednesday evening in honor of the members of Beta Sigma Phi several of whom are leaving in the near future on visits to Vancouver and the British Isles.

Mr. Alex H. MacKinnon of Montreal who was taken suddenly ill while visiting his summer residence at Meadowbank is convalescing nicely in the P. E. I. Hospital and expects to join Mrs. MacKinnon at the Charlottetown within a few days.

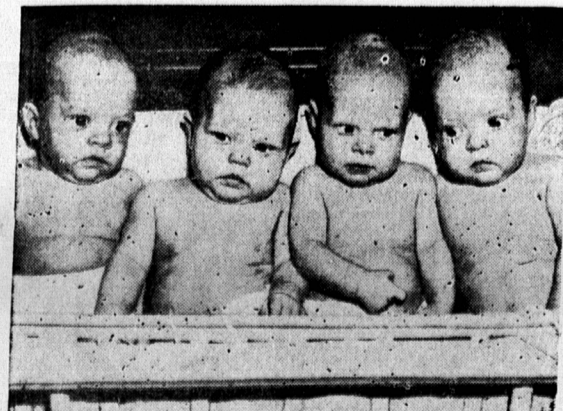

Rev. I. J. Levy and Mrs. Levy who are now nicely settled in their home in Moncton started their parish duties in First Baptist Church last Sunday and received a very cordial welcome. Mr. Levy succeeds Dr. Bruce D. Knott, who retired last October and is now living in Truro, N. S. During the interim the work has been carried on by Rev. L. K. Baker who will continue to serve as associate minister in this large congregation.

Rev. J. K. Fraser, D. D., and Mrs. Fraser are the house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clark, Alberton. Having spent the winter in Charlottetown Mr. and Mrs. Fraser plan returning to their summer residence at Cascompec in the near future.

Congratulations are being extended to Miss Elizabeth Adele Callbeck, whose engagement to Mr. James William Moreside is being pleasantly discussed by their friends.

Mrs. John A. MacEwen has joined Mr. MacEwen in Halifax for the week-end to attend the convocation exercises at King's University at which Mr. MacEwen will be a graduate.

QUADS FIND A PLACE IN THE SUN

Quadruplets of Baltimore, Md., line up for their daily sun bath near a window of their nursery in St. Agnes' hospital. They have been cared for by the hospital since their birth to Mrs. Charles Henn five months ago. Left to right, are: Tommy, Donald, Joan, the only lady in the cute foursome, and Bruce.

Ellen's Diary

By an Island Farmer's Wife

"What!" Jeanie said "house cleaning!" when she came this afternoon on an errand, from her house across the lane. And "You're not house-cleaning, are you, Ellen?" James asked me in mild surprise when just as the evening shadows were coming down to touch the hills, he returned from the "field" work at the other farm, having stopped on the way to have his supper at Rob's. I was engaged in doing a ceiling then, merely giving the one in my office-of-sorts a brushy warm water bath by way of removing odd traces of Winter's grime.

"The husband got so busy trying to meet the demands of the little goldiggers and their mother for toys, expensive cars, clubs and things, that the woman at the dollar became more important to him than the woman at home. So they just gradually drifted apart until they became strangers who didn't speak each other's language any more."

It was beats I carried. James about to leave for the "trimming up" at the other farm said when I had taken some vegetables to divide with her. At that moment she was polishing the stove with vigor, not, I thought, a Saturday's cleaning, but only a continuation of what she subjects it to on other week days.

Sympathy is extended to Mrs. J. A. Wilson of Charlottetown and Mrs. Herbert Clark of Alberton on the recent death of their sister, Mrs. R. H. Gordon of Alberton.

Modern Etiquette

By Roberta Lee

Q. Is it all right for a guest to offer suggestions as to where to take when riding in his host's automobile?

Q. When a young man makes a first call on a girl, should she present him to her mother?

Q. What two characteristics chiefly denote a well-bred person?

Better English

D. C. Williams

1. What is wrong with this sentence: "We are going to take in a show tonight."

1. Omit take in. Say, "We are going to a show tonight." 2. Pronounce the as in ran, the ch as in chew, not ranch. 3. Minutiae. 4. Scornful contemptuous. There was a disdainful reserve in his manner." 4. Rupture.

Morning Smile

It was a very tense scene in the film. The audience sat enthralled. Suddenly the hero slapped the heroine in the face.

In the stunner, silence which followed a little voice piped up. "Mammy," it said, "why doesn't she slosh him back like you do?"

Two women were talking after a recent air raid. One looked gloomy. "In the midst of life we are in death," she remarked.

"No," you've got it all wrong," replied the other. "In the midst of death we are in life."

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Married Life

Husbands, Wives Must Continue Romance Through The Years

After putting the hero and heroine through three volumes of agony, the old-fashioned novel used to end: "And so they were married and lived happily ever afterward." Very often the plot of a love story does end that way, but only too often if the novelist were realistic, he would write something like this:

"And so they were married and they settled down into the jog trot of domestic life. The wife didn't think it was worth-while to dress herself up and look pretty for a mere husband; so she became sloppy at home and dropped all the little coquetries that had made her so alluring. The husband was good, kind and devoted to his wife, but he said it with beef steaks instead of poetry, and she pined for flattery and kisses that didn't come out of cold storage."

"The husband got so busy trying to meet the demands of the little goldiggers and their mother for toys, expensive cars, clubs and things, that the woman at the dollar became more important to him than the woman at home. So they just gradually drifted apart until they became strangers who didn't speak each other's language any more."

"Then, all of a sudden—as it seemed to them—their children were grown up, married and gone, and they were just two lonely old people who bored each other almost to extinction."

"That is the way many a beautiful young romance ends 25 or 30 years later, and nothing more tragic can be woven out of the woof and warp of human blunders. For, after all, a middle-aged couple have many years to travel together and it is so pitiful when they cannot do it hand in hand."

"The situation is hard on them both, but the man has consolation in his work. The woman, however, who has been all mother has cultivated outside people, so she has no friends. She doesn't feel it worth-while to get up good meals just for her husband. She has no hobbies. She doesn't even know how to kill time agreeably. Therefore, she becomes one of the forlorn women who haunt doctors' offices or one of the pests who break up their children's homes by trying to run them."

Living & Leisure THE WOMAN'S REALM

MOTHER

I might have sung great songs today— My soul was in the Muse's sway. And yet, somehow I lost my soul; My hands were busy all day long.

I bound a hurt and throbbing finger, And dried the tears that tried to linger. I buttered bread, and baked a cake; I kissed two sleepy eyes awake.

My song is gone—but in my heart Is music that can never depart. The world will never hear its note Its sweet strains did not leave my throat;

But resting softly in their beds I see three tousled little heads, And, sweeter sound than any other, Come whispered words: "I love you mother!"

—Helen Young Snyder, in "The Christian Advocate."

PROTECT HANDS THAT MUST WORK The hands that must come through cleaning boufs with strong cleansers and hot water with cuticle intact and skin unshrivelled need the double protection of rubber gloves and creams.

Following their wedding in Washington, D.C., Rees W. Evans, 85, and his bride, 82, are seen. Rev. J. Montgomery, chaplain of House of Representatives, officiated.

That Body of Yours

DELAY DANGEROUS IN APPENDICITIS

A member of the family has an attack of indigestion or pain in the stomach, but as he is not very sick he or the family wait a number of hours before calling the family physician. Later, the pain shifts down to the right lower abdomen in the region of the appendix, but the patient and family think it is only gas and still the physician is not called. As the pain remains in the region of the appendix but the patient is not very ill, still the physician is not called. As the pain remains in the region of the appendix but the patient is not very ill, still the physician is not called.

Fortunately, most physicians do not wait for "all" the symptoms of appendicitis to appear before sending the patient to a hospital but some, trying to spare the family the shock and expense of operation, may wait a number of hours hoping for a favorable turn in the symptoms.

In an editorial on appendicitis in "Clinical Medicine," it is stated that the most common error made by the average general practitioner is procrastination delay. When the doctor is called to see the patient, there may have been a delay by the family in calling the physician or the physician may have appendicitis and might need an operation. The family insists that the doctor should be certain of the diagnosis. He will tell the family that he will watch the patient and come in the afternoon or the following morning or some other convenient time. This is a mistake on the part of the physician for two reasons: First, it is best to have the patient in the hospital for observation and diagnosis, rather than keeping him home and the family watch for dangerous symptoms. Second, it is much easier to obtain the consent of the family for an operation with the patient already in the hospital than when he is at home.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by splendid opportunity for change, dramatic moves, associations or adventures affecting the career, business and financial as well as public standing. The romantic interest is thrilling and inspiring, yet a sense of obligation, duty or loyalty to responsibilities might erect barriers to their full enjoyment and benefits. A practical course or understanding might avert regret or long-term burdens.

A child born on this day may have talents and opportunity for brilliant, romantic and adventurous career while also having stubborn obligations or opposition to meet.

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a rather curious turn of events in which some sort of sub-under-current or strange contacts might prove of over-powering allure with intrigue and unpredictable culmination. This affects the business and financial as well as social, cultural and romantic prospects.

For Sunday, May 11

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds augury of exceptional activity and keen interest on romantic, public, or creative or inventive lines, in which there might be sudden change of scene or associations. These might prove dramatic and spectacular, but at the same time might challenge stubborn opposition or create a sense of duty or obligation. A sane and well-considered course of action might be the means of obviating disappointment and obstacle.

Roasting Chicken When roasting a chicken, place it breast down in the baking pan for the first half hour of roasting. This allows the juices to flow into the breast, making it moist and tender.

Pearl Handles Pearl-handled knives can be cleaned by rubbing vigorously with fine salt and then wiping well with a chamolix to restore the luster.

Linens Half-bleached linen is stronger than the bleached and will become perfectly white after having been washed a few times.

BUTTER TARTS

1 cup raisins 1 cup brown sugar 2 tablespoons melted butter 2 eggs, slightly beaten 1/2 teaspoon vanilla Pastry.

METHOD: Cover the raisins with boiling water, drain, and dry thoroughly between towels. This helps to plump them somewhat.

Mix together the brown sugar, melted butter, and slightly beaten eggs, then add the prepared fruit and the vanilla. Line muffin pans with pastry and fill two thirds full with the fruit mixture. Bake in a hot oven (450 deg. F.) for 5 minutes and then reduce the heat to moderate (350 deg. F.) and continue baking until the filling is delicately browned. The filling should be enough to fill about 20 small tart shells.
