1ST SOURIS PARTY

In celebration of Boy Scout Week, S.M. Wally MacKenzie had planned a party but due to unforeseen obstacles it had been postponed until March 5th. The afternoon before the event P.L. Alan MacDonald and his Second, Basil MacDonald (Fox Patrol) had brought in a birch log from the woods, cut it into suitable lengths, and together with A.S.M. E. MacLean, made an indoor campfire of it, using red tissue paper and 100 watt bulb for the artistic touch. P.L. Jack Poole and P.L. Kent Ellis (Wolves and Crows) liquified four cases of pop at the stove that had frozen too hard for drinking purposes.

At seven o'clock the party commenced with S.M. Wally MacKenzie, P.L. Cyril MacDonald (Beavers) and Stanley Paquet (Foxes) all playing guitars. Suddenly a string exploded on Stanley's guitar but he managed to steal another and the fun continued. After singing while, sandwiches, drinks, and cakes were served up. The 1st Souris is very grateful for the use of Mr. MacLean's cake.

Numerous toasts were drunk to the patrols, to the troop, and to everything else in creation. Jim Steele (Fox Patrol) soaked up seven bottles of pop, which is now the Troop record. P.L. Jack Poole and P.L. Kent Ellis (Wolves and Crows) put on a skit and the Foxes did also. Cyril MacDonald recited "The Cremation of Sam McGee" and Raymond MacDonald recited a long ballad about the Mounties. The party came to an end about half past nine.

TOO MUCH HURRY SPEEDS AGE

The older we grow the more important it becomes to recognize the aging effect of an impatient "hurry-up" attitude. Look to your own acquaintances for good examples. You probably know at least one woman who is always in a hurry. She hurries through housework, she rushes to market, she frowns at any delay, however minor it may be. The pressure of her pace is mirrored in the furrows in her brow, in the tense, set lines around her mouth and eyes. The pace she sets for herself may, in fact, be adding years to her appearance. The woman, on the other hand, who deliberately cultivates a serene attitude towards the little things in life as well as the major events can accomplish as much with far less strain on her nervous system. The trick lies in organizing her time and concentrating on the job at hand. She will, for example, plan a weekly schedule of housework and allot plenty of time for each task. When she plans menus, she has her cookbooks and nutrition charts at hand and writes out marketing orders at the same time. She focuses her attention on the menus. She doesn't let her mind wander to other things she might be doing.

NATURE'S REPAIRS

If the human body did not repair itself, all the skin would roll off, the nails grind down, the hairs split and fall and the muscles and nerves would be worn out with fatigue.
