

COMPLIMENT for the hostess... COMFORT for the housewife

nemo FOUNDATIONS

Look better. Feel better. Work better! BUY WAR BONDS The Lingerie Department MOORE & McLEOD Limited

Steinbeck Finds U. S. Soldiers Growing Vegetables in England

Says Gardens Around Airfields and Barracks Help Maintain Morale and Provide an Outlet For Imagination of Agricultural Experiments

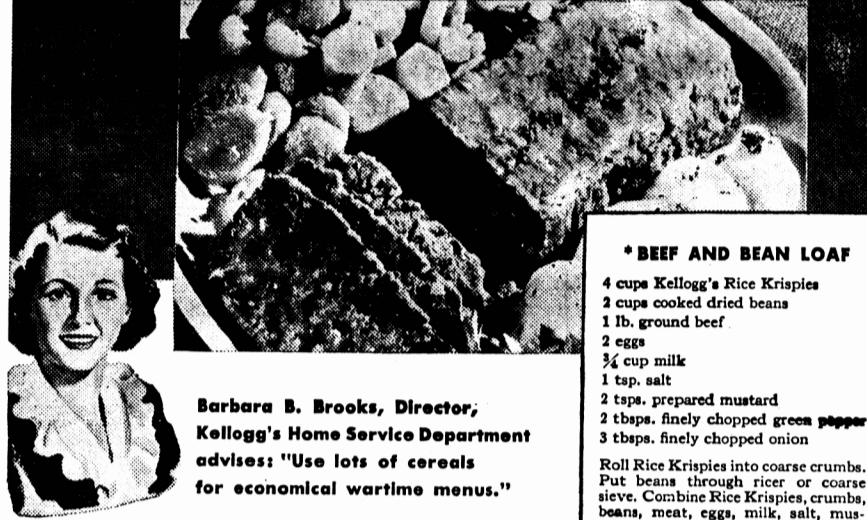

Special to the New York Herald Tribune and Charlotte-Town Guardian. Copyright 1943.

By John Steinbeck LONDON—On the edges of American airfields and between the barracks of troops in England it is no unusual thing to see complicated and carefully tended vegetable gardens. No one seems to know where the idea originated, but these gardens have been constantly increasing. It is fairly common now that a station furnishes a good part of its own vegetables and all of its own salad greens.

Season Short and Cool The things that the men want to raise most, in order of choice, are green corn, tomatoes and peppers. None of these do very well in England unless there is a glass house to build up sufficient heat. Tomatoes are mature and ready to eat. The idea, which had as its basis, probably the taking of some of the free time of men where there were few entertainment facilities, has proved vastly successful. The gardens are run by the units and worked by the groups, but here and there a man may go out on his own and try and raise some strange seed which is not ordinarily seen in the gardens. In every unit there is usually some man who knows about such things who advises on the planting, but those master gardeners are bursting with juice. It is a short, cool season. Green corn has little chance to mature and the peppers must be raised under glass. Nevertheless, every care is taken to raise them. Men who are away from home and homesick seem to take mighty pleasure in working with the soil.

The gardens usually start out ambitiously. Watermelons and cantaloupes are planted and they have practically no chance of maturing at this latitude, where even cucumbers are usually raised in glass houses, but gradually some other grows out of the confusion. Lettuce, peas, green beans, green onions, potatoes do very well here, as do cabbages and turnips and beets and carrots. The gardens are lush and well tended. In the evenings, which are very long now, the men work in the beds. It does not get dark until 11 o'clock, there are only a few movies to be seen. English pubs are not exciting, but there does seem to be a constant excitement about the gardens. The produce that comes from that patch of earth is taken to the canteen in the open market. The gardens are a certain amount of latitude short of the English, but the men are very happy and content. The amount of the equipment of the gardens is a certain amount of the essential character is maintained. No one has yet explained this innate fear the English suffer from a revolt of the vegetables. The going American attitude of allowing the vegetable a certain amount of latitude short of the English is looked upon by the English as a luxury and degenerate. In the American gardens certain staples have reported they have seen American soldiers pulling and eating raw carrots and turnips and onions. It is strange to an American that the English, who love dogs and cats, should be so fond of vegetables. It is just one of those national differences which are unfortunally.

Make meat go further with this delicious BEEF-AND-BEAN LOAF

Barbara B. Brooks, Director, Kellogg's Home Service Department advises: "Use lots of cereals for economical wartime menus." Wartime cooking, with so many normal foods hard to get, gives you special opportunities for trying out new, intriguing recipes. Fortunately, Kellogg's wholesome and delicious cereals are still plentiful in a wide range of choices, to bring tempting new flavours to your table, as well as helping to stretch our scarcer foods. Try the Beef-and-Bean loaf soon!

SAVE TIME, WORK, FUEL! Of course you'll find Kellogg's ready-to-eat cereals more popular than ever at breakfast time. Or at any time when you want a quick, easily served snack. Ready in a jiffy, with no pots or pans to wash up afterward, they save many precious minutes every day. Yes, Kellogg's save time, save fuel, save work! Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada. Try the other Kellogg favourites—Corn Flakes, All Bran and Variety Package.

Advertisement for Kellogg's cereals: BRAN FLAKES, ALL-WHEAT, PEP, RICE KRISPIES, KRUMBLIES. Includes images of cereal boxes and text describing their benefits.

Desert Destiny

By Joseph Chalwick

(Continued From Page 2) body in the village. A man like you—"What you mean, a man like me?" Jim's nerves eased up. He judged his man aright. Jose was big, rather handsome, and he was vain. "I mean, Jose, that you're the biggest man in the village, and it doesn't go good for you to frigate your people." "Si, Senor," muttered Jose. "I am the biggest man here." "So you don't need a knife or a gun—" killed you—maybe wounded you in the leg, but nothing more. The way he talks, it sounds as though whole thing was a build-up to give him a chance to run you. Jim thought of Helene Garrison. She had baited him, challenged him to come to the village and tackle Jose. Had she been a part of a plot? Jim swung on Jose. "Talk so I can savvy," he ordered. "Who told you I'd come here—and that you should shoot me?" "I cannot talk, when I know nothing," Jose muttered, his dark eyes welling over. "I drank too much tonight, but I am sober now. If I tried to shoot you, Senor, I am sorry. I beg you to forgive me." Jim wondered if Jose could be made to talk. But while he was gripped by indecision, a car came racing into the village. Tracy Hayden was at the wheel, and Pete Donohue was with her. The two jumped out as soon as the car stopped, and some hurrying forward. Jim glimpsed Tracy's face; it was pale and her eyes avoided him. The writer, Pete Donohue, looked curiously from Jim to Jose. Tracy said, "Is it all right?" Her voice was curiously flat. She still didn't look at Jim. "You had no trouble?" "It's all right, Miss Tracy," Pete Saba told her. "There was a bit of trouble, but he's—"

P. E. Islanders In Camrose Action

The following Prince Edward were: L. R. Pavillard, Lieut. RCNVR, Halifax, N.S.; James Conway O/Stw, RCNVR, Halifax, N.S.; Spencer Crane, P. E. I.; Murray Durni, S. A.; RCNVR, Cambridge N.S.; Francis Emmett, A. B.; RCNVR, Truro, N.S.; Francis Hennessey, O/Smn, RCNVR, Tignish, P. E. I.; Lloyd Gallant, A. B.; RCNVR, Bear River, N.S.; James Graves, A. B.; RCNVR, P. E. I.; George Watson, O/Smn, RCNVR, Cape Breton, N.S.; Clifford McGilivray, O/Stw, RCNVR, Cape Breton, N.S.; Alden McKenzie, A. B.; RCNVR, RCNVR, Cape Breton, N.S.; George Watson, O/Smn, RCNVR, Cape Breton, N.S.; George Van Tassel, Slg., RCNVR, Saint John, N.B.; Graydon Vickery, SPO, RCNVR, Maccan, N.S.; Reginald Watson, O/Smn, RCNVR, Saint John, N.B.

BOY IS DROWNED

QUARRYVILLE, N.B. July 13 —(CP)—Fifteen-year-old Ivan Astle, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Astle, was drowned today in the Miramichi while bathing. Young Astle, with two other companions had gone swimming in the river, and, according to his friends left from a rock and drowned. The body was recovered some time later.

For Foot Ailments CONSULT H. J. A. BROWN, D.F. CHIROPODIST

143 Great George Street CHARLOTTETOWN, P.E.I.

TILLIE THE TOILER — NOT A DEPENDABLE LIGHT,

IN MEMORIAM

STEPHEN W. CLARK

There passed away on June 12 at his home in Long Island City, New York, after illness, Stephen W. Clark, formerly of Emerald Jet, the son of Mrs. William Clark and the late William Clark. Mr. Clark was a resident of the United States for many years and for the past fifteen years was employed by the Brooklyn Manhattan Transit System where he will be greatly missed. His kindly and cheerful disposition having endeared him to a host of friends who will sincerely regret his passing.

CONSCIENTIOUS OBJECTORS

OTTAWA, July 12—(CP)—Mobilization Boards received 1,727 applications for postponement of military service on grounds of conscientious objection from March 20, 1941, to April 15, 1943, the Department said in a return tabled today in the House of Commons for Rev. E. G. Hansell (N. D. MacLeod). In the same period, 4,747 were granted postponement as conscientious objectors. The number of conscientious objectors in alternative services work camps was reported to be 808. By provinces, the applications for postponement with number granted in brackets: Ontario, 1,970 (1,872); Quebec, 89 (37); Nova Scotia, 24 (22); New Brunswick, 13 (0); Prince Edward Island, 5 (4); Manitoba, 1,574 (1,358); British Columbia, 447 (421); Saskatchewan, 941 (483); Alberta, 678 (942).

Hanson Is Critical Of Foreign Policy

OTTAWA, July 12—(CP)—Hon. R. B. Hanson (Proton, Con. York, Sunbury) today said in the House of Commons that the government's Foreign Policy under the leadership of Prime Minister Mackenzie King had been so negative as to constitute "isolationism." He said the Prime Minister's speech on foreign affairs last April had never been consulted on war strategy or world planning in respect of the actual fighting in the present war. Mr. Hanson spoke in the continued debate on Mr. King's estimates, as secretary of state for external affairs, which were laid before the committee of the whole last Friday.

War—25 Years Ago Today

By The Canadian Press JULY 15, 1918—Germans opened second battle of Marne on front of 50 miles east, and west of Reims, being held by the French on east; on west Germans crossed Marne between Chateau-Thierry and Verigny. Haig declared war on Germany. CALLED UP TWO - YEAR - OLD LONDON, (CP)—Reginald Hill, aged two, received his call up papers but officials admitted it was all a mistake when the boy's mother took him round to a registration office.

Advertisement for HART batteries. Features a large image of a battery and the text: 'HART THE BATTERY YOU CAN TRUST'. Includes the name 'By WEBSTER'.

Turkish Press Hails Invasion

ISTANBUL, July 11 —(Delayed)—(AP)—Istanbul 14 newspapers, which circulate throughout Turkey, were today in full agreement that the invasion of Iraq with huge headlines today and editorially termed the action the turning point of the war. The news pushed everything else to the front pages. Since 3 A.M. Saturday Italy has begun to reap the fruits of her alliance with Germany, proclaimed the pro-democratic Yurt Sabah. The myth of discord between Russia and her allies has disappeared.

Advertisement for Ogilvie Flour Mills. Text: 'Farmers' own records prove that greatest egg production is secured by the use of these "Miracle" Poultry Feeds. They often get as high as 75 eggs daily per hundred hens. And hens lay longer at seasons when eggs are scarce. If it's Ogilvie it's good! LAYING MASH & LAYING MASH SUPPLEMENT. OGILVIE FLOUR MILLS COMPANY LIMITED.'

Advertisement for Ogilvie Flour Mills. Text: '"MIRACLE" LAYING MASH & LAYING MASH SUPPLEMENT. OGILVIE FLOUR MILLS COMPANY LIMITED. Men from every province of Canada shared in HMCS Camrose's Mediterranean action. Maritime's Mediterranean action.'