

Had a Severe Cold Coughed Incessantly

Mrs. C. Fehrman, Selkirk, Ont. writes: "Last winter I suffered from a very severe cold. I coughed incessantly which irritated the glands and caused sore throat.

"I tried several medicines without any luck; but one day I picked up your almanac and read about Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup

"I got a bottle and after taking a couple of doses felt much relieved, and when I had finished it my cold had simply disappeared."

Sheriff's Sale

BY VIRTUE OF A WRIT OF STATUTE EXECUTION to me directed, issued of His Majesty's Supreme Court of Judicature, at the suit of Eleanor B. Lyons, Administratrix of the personal estate and effects of Charles Lyons, deceased, intestate, against Barbara Walker, I have taken and seized all the estate, right, title and interest of the said Barbara Walker in and to ALL THAT TRACT PIECE and parcel of land situate lying and being on Town Lot number 20 in the first hundred of Town Lots in Charlottetown in Queen's County in Prince Edward Island, bounded and described as follows, that is to say: Commencing on the west side of Prince Street, at the northeast corner of property formerly known as the Davidson property, running thence northwardly along Prince Street a distance of 46 feet 6 inches or to the southern line of property sold to Stephen McDonald, thence westwardly at or about right angles with Prince Street along the line between the dwelling-houses and a line in continuation thereof 65 feet 7 inches, thence southwardly parallel with Prince Street 10 feet 6 inches, thence westwardly parallel with King Street 20 feet to the division line between said Town Lot number 20 and Town Lot number 19 in the first hundred, thence along said division line southwardly to a line in continuation of the north boundary of said Davidson property and thence eastwardly to the place of commencement, subject to a right-of-way reserved for all reasonable purposes for the present and successive owners of the adjoining property sold to Elizabeth Fraser and Mary Fraser over the yard and gang-way of the said property hereby conveyed to Prince Street. And I do hereby give public notice that I will on Tuesday the 17th day of July, A. D. 1928, at the hour of twelve o'clock noon, at the Court House in Charlottetown in Queen's County, set up and sell at public auction the said property or as much thereof as will satisfy the levy marked on said execution being the sum of $412.61 besides Sheriff's fees and all legal and incidental expenses.

PLENTY HOMES FOR TWINS

EDMONTON, Alta., Dec. 31.—"Have you any twins to spare?" The demand at present is very heavy, according to Chas. B. Hill, of the department of neglected children. A recent advertisement for a home for year-old twin sisters brought a hearty response. Had there been twelve more pairs available, they too could have been provided with parents and homes. All of which goes to show that not all people consider twins a burden.

SONIA

By VIDA HURST

Oh, the awful stillness of Maxine! It seemed hours before the ambulance came, hours during which Sonia tossed in a sea of regret! Why had she come? Every instinct had warned her not to. But it was too late now. Too late to have Maxine, who had cried a week ago because the party had been postponed. Sonia remembered her words when they started to work on Monday, "How can I ever stand the unending monotony of another week?" It was ended now. Cut off as it had never been. Sonia shook uncontrollably. The future terrified her. She would never feel safe again. Tragedy had come swooping on her out of a clear sky. She would never be able to force herself to another decision of any kind. Then she saw the gray ambulance rolling down upon them. It might as easily be the hearse to carry her away. For one sick, guilty moment she wished it were. No more problems to meet. No more temptations which could produce such unexpected, portentous results. She shook her head obstinately when they approached with a stretcher. She was not going to a hospital. She was able to walk. She staggered up from the ground and started off dizzily, then something in her tortured brain snapped. She felt herself crumpling into a deep, soft unconsciousness. Pain, pulling at her nerves like hundreds of tiny wires, forced her back. She was lying in a white, narrow bed. Strange faces were about her. Strange voices in her ears! Not one soul she knew! She could not endure the aching loneliness. She felt that she would sink into a bottomless pit if some one did not hold out a familiar hand. Whose hand was it that was so comforting? So strong that it could hold her firmly on the very verge of dissolution? She began to mutter between set teeth, "What is it?" asked a nurse, leaning over the bed. Sonia closed her eyes and repeated over and over, "Dr. Don Stillwater. Send for Dr. Don Stillwater," adding his uncle's telephone number, which she had called on Saturday night a week ago.

INSTALLMENT XXII.

At the sound of Don Stillwater's name Sonia felt reassured. He would straighten this tangled snarl she had got into. She fell back upon her pillows as if she had already shifted her burden to his broad shoulders. Almost immediately she fell asleep. She woke to darkness and the comfort of his gentle hand. "Don?" she whispered, even before she had opened her eyes. "Oh," she cried, blinking up at him. "I wanted you so badly. Did you come right away?" "The moment they telephoned me." She lay quietly, trying to gather strength to tell him everything. "Maxine's dead." "I know." At the awful memory of the scene on the road she began to cry again. "Try not to think of it. It can't be helped now." "But I wanted to go fast." "You weren't to blame, dear. Go to sleep, if you can. We'll talk about it some other time." Slow, painful tears were rolling down her cheeks. "Am I hurt badly?" "Only bruised, Sonia. It's been a severe shock." "That's the reason I feel so queer and all to pieces?" "Yes, you'll be all right in a few days." His voice was soothing as if he were speaking to a child. She wrapped her fingers tightly about his. Only his touch kept her from screaming as she had screamed in the afternoon. She must have something firm to cling to. Swirling waters seemed to be sweeping over her. His hand the one chance of rescue. "Don you're so strong." He smiled, sadly. "I wish I might have saved you from this. Sonia." After a moment she faltered, "Do you know where we were going?" "It isn't necessary for me to know." Her face was drawn with pain. "But I want you to understand how reckless I really am." "Don't tell me, dear. I'm sure you wouldn't have done anything wrong. But you've been playing with fire." She remembered how she had boasted to Walter Henderson that she wanted to burn her fingers. She had not dreamed that the attempt would involve Maxine. "That's the trouble," she moaned. "You think it's only yourself who will be affected, but it may hurt a number of other persons." "That's it, exactly, Sonia. No one is free to do absolutely as he pleases." Her eyes stared into his kind face. "We were going to Franklin's shack in Lake county for the week-end." His clasp did not weaken. "The four of you?" "Yes, it would have been better if I had gone alone." "Don't say that. There is justice in everything, even if we can't see it." "But I knew I shouldn't go. I went, deliberately, with my eyes open." Then he asked her a question which seemed to be forced from his quiet lips.

LETTER OF SYMPATHY

Mrs. Hamilton Shaw, Brackley Point: Dear Sister:—We, the members of the W.M.S. desire to convey to you, sister our deepest sympathy in the loss of your beloved husband, father and brother, and feel that we would like to say a few words of comfort but we realize that words are a poor solace in the hour of loneliness and affliction. Your sorrow is hard to bear but you have some consolation in knowing he has gone to his "Heavenly Home." To that "World" we shall all go sooner or later, and it is there we shall meet our loved ones. We trust, therefore, while your hearts are heavy in longing for the sound of a voice that is stilled, you may look to Him, who is too good to err, and too wise to be unkind." How apt are we to feel as though the grave hides our dear ones; but there is one reason we have for our belief in a glorious reunion: for at the grave we hear the glad message "He is not here," "He is risen." We again extend our sincerest sympathy in this, your dark hour, feeling that the God of your dear husband will indeed be your comforter.

THREE CANADIAN WOMEN REGAIN THEIR HEALTH

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Every Suffering Woman Should Be Interested in Reading Their Letters

Sussex, King's Co., N.B.—"I have taken your medicine and find that it does just what you say it will do. I am the mother of four boys and they are all healthy. When I was carrying my first baby I was suffering from bearing-down feelings and could hardly get up to do my work. I would have to be quiet for a good deal of the time. There was not a great deal to do, so I managed for six or seven months by lying down several times a day. I saw in one of your little books what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for women in my condition, so I said to my husband, 'I am going to try this medicine.' He got me a bottle and it gave me great relief. I got so I was able to stand on my feet and get around at my work. Now, I have my own work to do, as I am a widow. I always recommend the Vegetable Compound to my friends and tell them just what it has done for me. I have recommended it to my neighbor and she says she is feeling some better since taking it."—Mrs. PHOEBE ANDERSON, R. R. 2, Sussex, King's County, New Brunswick.

Women pay attention to what their neighbors say regarding health matters. In this way the results of taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound are circulated in every neighborhood. Barrington, N. S.—"I had terrible feelings, headaches, back and side aches and pains all over my body. I would have to go to bed every month and nothing would do me good. My husband and my father did my work for me as I have two children and we have quite a big place. I read in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and then got a little book about it through the mail, and my husband sent to Eaton's and got me a bottle, and then we got more from the store. I am feeling fine now and do all my work and am able to go out around here. I tell my friends it is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that makes me feel so well."—Mrs. VICTOR RICHARDSON, Barrington, Nova Scotia.

The Advice of Friends

Shebo, Sask.—"I was irregular and had severe pains in my left side during my periods. Through the advice of friends I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now have more regular periods and am without pain at those times."—Mrs. F. E. DARLING, Shebo, Saskatchewan.

the Rectory, where practically the whole Parish assembled for what has become an annual gala occasion. At eight o'clock a short voluntary program was carried out by the children, towards the close of which the sleigh bells of "Old Santa," were heard in the distance, and he shortly appeared in the regulation costume with a huge pack upon his back. Then the unloading of the Tree is an event that always causes amusement, and much pleasurable enjoyment for the children, as well as many of the older people. After the children had been made happy, Mr. Leroy Howatt, as a member of the choir, read an address of appreciation to Miss Ethel Inman, the Church Organist, while Miss Florence Profit presented her with a purse of money. Next, the Sanctuary Guild presented the Rector and his wife with a beautiful mahogany Table Lamp, and the Rector had only finished thanking the Guild for their present, when the Vestry Clerk, Mr. Robert McDonald, stepped forward to read a very eloquently written address to Mr. and Mrs. Rand, signed on behalf of the Congregation by himself and the Wardens, Messrs. Crisp Moore and H. R. Profit, in which was emphasized the steady, but marked progress of the Parish; the complete harmony and good-fellowship prevailing; and the cheering optimism that obtains; while Miss McKenna presented them at the close of the address, with a purse containing one hundred dollars. The Rector in his reply warmly thanked the congregation and briefly outlined some of the contributory causes for the present healthy condition of the Parish, chief of which was that very spirit of harmony and good-fellowship that has prevailed all through the present incumbency. But the pleasant surprises were not over yet, as the Secretary of the W.A. came forward to read an address to Mr. A. Stewart Dickson, who has spent so much time and hard work in bringing the play "The Importance of Being Earnest" to such a successful issue. He also was presented with a purse of money. After lunch had been served, the company dispersed, feeling sure that the Christmas Spirit has a strong grip on the hearts of St. John's Congregation. Keep Minard's Liniment near at hand.
