Commodore Norah

By ANGUS MacVICAR

She sent for Dr. McNeil, who was a quick, pragmatic man with a pointed grey beard. He possessed of almost every person in inverton, and he had brought the younger of Archie in the world, the ex-archbishop, and took a swab of his throat.

Later in the evening he returned to the house.

"Diphtheria, Miss Mathieson," he said in a low voice.

On the following day Archie had a raging fever and was partly delirious. The nearest hospital for infectious diseases was situated over fifty miles away, and to remove the boy to it was out of the question. Mary Mathieson, who had dealt with diphtheria before and had suffered no ill effects, was the only person besides the doctor—allowed to go near his room.

"Do you think I should wire for Miss Norah," she asked anxiously when the doctor called at mid-day.

"Perhaps you'd better," agreed Dr. McNeil. "But she won't get home until tomorrow afternoon at the earliest, and the crisis will probably be over by then. He should either get better or worse some time tonight."

Flushed and breathing quickly, Archie lay in the cool bedroom at the front of the house. Sometimes he did not recognize Mary Mathieson when she sponged his forehead at frequent intervals, and he spoke to himself often, in such a weak little voice that the tears would start on his nurse's cheeks.

Hector Mentelth learned of the boy's illness and carefully refrained from exposing his own person to infection at the house; but he sent a messenger to bring back news of the patient's condition.

As the evening wore on Dr. McNeil remained in constant attendance at Archie's bedside, for the fever was growing in intensity, and the boy's life seemed to hang on a slender thread. His little body and brain were disturbed and restless. He tossed from side to side, muttering strange scraps of talk about boats and nets and the strap he so often got at school.

"If only he could get a good night's sleep he'd be better," said the doctor, with a frown. "But I can't risk giving him an injection at the present stage. It might affect his heart."

Mary Mathieson, who had had no rest for thirty-six hours, wiped her eyes surreptitiously. The strain of constant work and anxiety was beginning to affect her calm courage.

Then, about nine o'clock, Archie began to speak more loudly.

"I want Mr. McGregor. Where's Mr. McGregor? We're friends — he and I. When I'm twenty-one we'll run all the boats together. Where's Mr. McGregor? I want to speak to him. He'll tell me a story. I — I'm awful hot. I want Mr. McGregor to tell me a story."

His voice trailed away, and he lay panting and flushed against the big pillows.

Dr. McNeil and Miss Mathieson looked at each other, and the same thought occurred to both of them.

Recently he went on a vacation alone, something he had never done before, and they met and spent the time together. They were gone a week, and when he returned he told me he loved her and wanted to marry her. She has three children, but he said he had weighed in and decided to divorce her, for I love him too dearly. Am I wrong in keeping him from ruining his business and breaking up our home? Can he in a week's living with her really love her more than his family? I want only his happiness, and I am wondering if I am making a mistake in staying when he wants his freedom.

HEARTBROKEN WIFE.

Answer: On the contrary, you are doing your husband the greatest possible service by standing pat and refusing to give him a divorce, and thus keeping him from throwing away a life that he has spent his life building up, and the day will come when he will thank you for it.

Just now he is suffering from a brain storm that strikes a lot of middle-aged men and wrecks them unless their wives have sense and courage enough to protect them. Right now your husband may think that he is willing to give up you and his children, forfeit the respect of all who know him and ruin his business for the sake of this woman. But when he has time to think it over and count the cost he will wonder how on earth he ever could have been crazy enough even to consider such a thing.

The best cure for an old love that has got to be a sort of sentimental hangover is to have some time with the heroine of one's boyish romance. Your best play would be to urge your husband to go and spend a month or so with a week with the lady, and especially with her children. The chances are a hundred to one he would come home perfectly cured. Any way, a vacation isn't the right time to test love. Everybody is silly and the moon is shining and the flowers are blooming and it is aching over with sentimentality.

Try it out in good, snappy winter weather, and let me see how the stars of the stock market instead of your heart.

If you want your husband, make a fight for him, but let any predatory lady walk off with him right under your eyes, without your lifting a hand to defend your property.

Put Up A Fight For Your Husband

Dear Miss Dix—We have been married some twenty-odd years. Have two children and have had a happy married life. A few years ago, however, my husband contacted, an old sweetheart and has been corresponding with her, but I have not seen her for many years because she lives so far from us.

The WEEK at S. D. U.

The annual meeting of the Athletic Association took place on last Saturday night. The following officers were elected for the year 1940-1941: President, Kenney Mooney; Vice-President, Hubert O'Hanley; Secretary, Francis MacAulay; Basketball Representative, Howard Hogan; Track and Field, Frank P. Aylward; Hand Ball Representative, George MacDonald; Baseball Representative, P. Francis MacDonald; Tennis Representative, Jacques Hebert; Auditors, Clarence Coady and John Horgan. It was decided at the meeting that in future the senior football and hockey teams will elect their respective representatives who will hold positions on the S. D. U. A. A. At a meeting held on Thursday Joe Chisholm was elected as football representative, and Vince Grant as hockey representative.

On Monday afternoon the Inter-Class Softball League got under way. Four teams representing the Seniors, Juniors, Track and Field and Sophomores, and High School entered the league. The keen interest already shown in the league points to a successful softball season. The following is the line up of the Seniors: Tom Holland, Dr. Johnson, Joe Maher, Rev. A. O. Murphy, Albert Dupont, H. Landry, Peter Pronko, Roland Deschamps, Len Connolly, James McCaughey, Jack Coyle and James McCarthy.

Rev. A. A. McAulay, P. P. St. Peter's was a welcome visitor to the College during the week. Though in his seventy eighth year he seems to have lost none of his youthful enthusiasm. Father McAulay claims the distinction of having introduced football at St. Dunstan's. He will celebrate the Golden Jubilee of the Priesthood this summer.

Messrs. Martin Kenny of the dept. of Transport, Ottawa, W. C. McEachern, Director of Postal Service, and Richard Johnston ex '91, Boston, also were visitors to the College during the week. Mr. Kenny is a native of Morrell, and Mr. McEachern of Souris, N. B. Johnston, a brother of Mr. J. J. Johnston, Charlottetown, is a prominent Boston lawyer and a member of the Massachusetts Legislature for six years.

A meeting of the Students' Council was held on Thursday evening. The President, Dr. Connolly, ex-

GET THE POWER AND SMOOTHNESS OF AN "EIGHT"!

WITH GREATER ECONOMY THAN A "SIX"

*In the 1940 Gilmore-Yosemite Economy Run—306.5 miles across mountain ranges in sleet and rain—an 85-hp. De Luxe Ford V-8 surpassed the two other volume-production cars in its price class (both "sixes"), and turned in a record of 29.88 miles per Imperial gallon of gasoline!

Engineers know that at least 8 cylinders are desirable for power, smoothness and flexibility. As proof, consider the fact that the highest-priced cars of most manufacturers have 8 cylinders or more.

V-type engines—"the world's most modern automotive engine"—hold unsurpassed records on land, sea, and in the air. This is the type of engine chosen for several of the highest-priced cars in the world.

Yet the 1940 Ford—the only low-priced car with an 8-cylinder engine, or a V-type engine—offers greater economy than the two volume-production "sixes"! (See information in panel).

Of course, performance and economy aren't everything. And in the Ford V-8, you'll find comfort and quiet... luxury and style leadership... roominess and a level, stabilized ride to match the plus-performance of the Ford V-8 engine!

Ask the Ford-Mercury-Zephyr dealer to put a Ford V-8 at your disposal, while you discover for yourself how much value low Ford prices represent. You'll like everything about this truly modern "eight"!

"A SPRING LYRIC"

Spring comes, and bustling buds break out in leaf. With warmth of air; the scent of damp fresh ground. The green of sprouting grasses all around. The honk of wildgeese high above in Heavens. Where straight and fast their way they Northwards make. When Nature smiling lifts her snowwhite blanket. And whispers soft to all,—time to awake. The cheerful chirp of birds from woodland branches. Long hushed by winter's trip, to southlands far away. The murmuring waters song through winding pathways. Chirping of old man's covering all in regal swag.

seconded that all bills be paid connected with it. The president reported a letter from Daniel Gass about tuberculosis was left over till next month.

The sick committee reported no calls having been made. All in good health.

The questionnaire on Public Health and Child's Welfare was filled out by Mrs. David Imman and discussed in meeting. Mrs. J. T. Inman invited the members for next meeting, roll call to be answered by each member taking part, singing, reading, etc. Lunch committee Mrs. Jas. Sherrin and Mrs. McNevin. The program for the evening was a debate that the pioneer woman contributed more to the welfare of the home and community than does the modern woman. Both sides debated well but their being some of the debaters absent there was no vote taken. Meeting closed by singing God Save the King. The hostess served a lovely lunch with the lunch committee in charge. Receipts of evening 70
