A FRIEND TO MANY IN THIS PROVINCE HAS PASSED AWAY

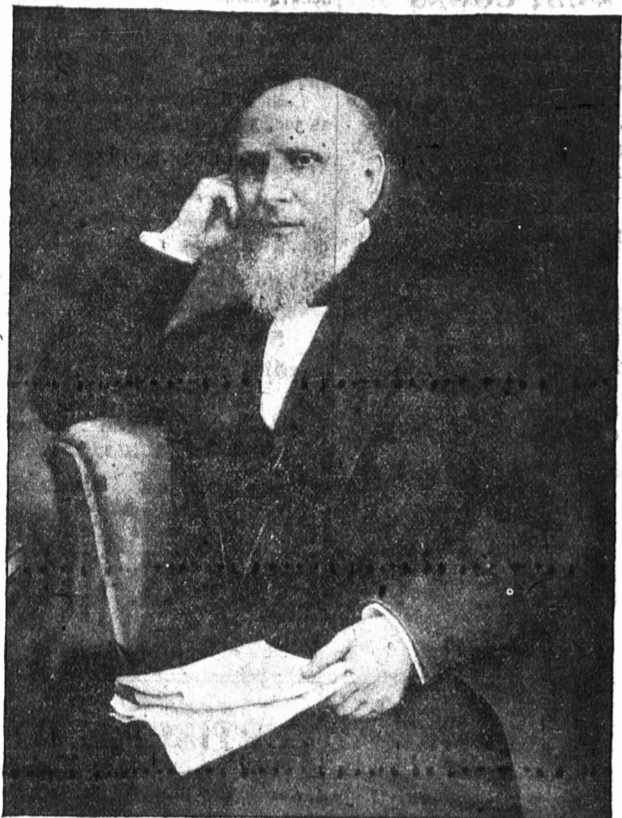

The Guardian presents its readers today with a portrait of the late Enoch Paige of Boston. Mr. Paige is well known to many in Prince Edward Island for he had spent the past eighteen seasons in this province where many had come to know and love the genial gentleman who had also formed a strong attachment for the "Garden of the Gulf."

Mr. Paige was nearly 88 years old when he passed away. The cause of his death was the culmination of a trouble which had afflicted him for many years, and ended as he had been warned by eminent physicians both at home and abroad: it must end. It could not be said that he died of "old age" for all his faculties were intact, and he had a wonderful amount of vitality to the last. He underwent a surgical operation three weeks before he died, and was in other respects well.

Mr. Paige was born in Dering, New Hampshire, 24th of February, 1817. He was of Scotch and English ancestry; on the paternal side he was descended from Samuel Paige, formerly Colonel in the English army, who came to this country in 1670, settled in Wrentham, Mass., and died in 1716. Mr. Paige was by nature an ardent patriot, born of a line of patriots, one of whom, Cornet Paige, carried the flag in a Company of Minute Men from New Bedford to Concord, April 19, 1775, a staffless flag, being composed of 13 gorgeous stripes. This flag is still in the family of the Paige descendants in New Bedford, Mass.

His eldest brother, George, was Captain in the war of 1812. His nephew John Ware Paige, was naval Captain in the Civil War under Farragut. Lieutenant Frank Paige (his brother George's son) was in the 42d Infantry and served through the Civil War and was honorably discharged. He re-enlisted in 1869 in the general service, in Philadelphia, and was finally discharged on account of impaired health in 1881, with a record of over twenty years' service and seven bullet holes in his person. During his service against the Indians he was a member of Gen. Sheridan's staff, and stood high in that Commander's esteem. He cherished as his dearest possession a sword presented to him by Gen. Sherman.

In 1838 Mr. Paige went into business in Boston, and accumulated a competency from various enterprises; chief of which was the manufacture of native wines. He came in time to control almost the entire business in the east, and for many years was located under the arches of the old reservoir between Bowdoin, Hancock, and Dorne streets, Beacon Hill. This reservoir was removed to make way for the extension of the present State House. He was a native grape wine pioneer of the east, as Longworth was of the west. He retired from active business in 1889, after a continuous experience of 35 years. He had resided in Boston 78 years, and was one of the old Hawes school boys in South Boston. For thirty years he had lived in the same house, which he had built for him on a corner of one of the pleasantest sections of the city, and he often declared that he could not be persuaded to change his residence for a gift of the newest and most desirable house in Boston.

Mr. Paige had been an extensive traveler, having crossed the Atlantic about thirty times, making his first trip in a sailing vessel in 1851, when he toured the continent, and visited the London exposition, returning home on the Unicorn, the first steamer that ever crossed the ocean from Liverpool to Boston. At the time of this visit there were no railroads on the European continent except within forty miles of Paris. He had visited every world's fair from 1852 until 1901, with the exception of the Chicago fair.

When quite young he married Miss Eliza Austin, of Portland, Maine, a near relative of the poet Whittier. She bore him one child, a son, Austin E. Paige, who survives him, and now resides at the Adams House, Boston. The son has a daughter, May Paige, who married John Malcolm, by that marriage Mr. Paige became a great grandfather to two children. He married a second time, in 1885, a daughter of the late Captain Donald Dockett, of Prince Edward Island. She survives him.

Mr. Paige never took an active part in local politics, nor was he in any sense a "club man." He used to say his home was his club; and his library, with no and then a congenial caller, made his life all that could be desired, in his later years.

Formerly he had led a busy and helpful life; in fact, up to the last he remembered the poor, and was more generous than even his most intimate friends know. His death brings sadness to the hearts of many both in this country and abroad; for he had a tender loving nature, which had not become hardened nor make severe by so many years' contact with the world. He met death fearlessly, almost welcoming it as a friend come to release him from a disease and pain-racked body.

A short time before his death he said to a friend:

"I do not know the moment nor the hour in which I shall go, but whenever the moment or the hour the journey will be cheerfully and fearlessly undertaken; for, though the door which opens into the great Beyond is closed to us now, and the passage is left dark, it was made so by the Divine will, and that is sufficient for us to know."

He left a large circle of friends; but there

An investigation was ordered.

R. L. BORDEN FOR QUEEN'S

The Montreal Herald Suggests that one of the Members Retire in His Favor.

The Montreal Herald, Liberal, discussing the Opposition leadership says: "If one of the Prince Edward Island Conservatives were to make way for Mr. Borden, the Liberals, we may suppose, would be disposed to facilitate his return to the House, for Liberals everywhere entertain a very high respect for Mr. Borden's many fine qualities, and would be loath to see his place taken by any one less courteous, less dignified or less gifted. The danger of his suppression comes not, and could not come from the Liberals, but from within his own camp."

TERRIFIC FIGHTING AT PORT ARTHUR SATURDAY

After Tremendous Cannonade the Besiegers Capture Important Ground Driving a Wedge into the Russian Centre—The Shojusan and Keekwan Forts Assailed—Brilliant Exploits—Russians in Underground Gallery Surprised and Fled in Confusion—Japanese Losses Not Very Heavy.

ASSAULT ON SHOJUSAN.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—(Special)—A special to the Chicago Daily News from Dalny, Nov. 6, via Kobe, Nov. 7, says:

After three days of continuous bombardment of Port Arthur which caused extensive destruction to the Shojusan and Neryusann forts in the west centre of the Russian line of defence and also to Keekwan fort, the right wing of the Japanese army assaulted Shojusan yesterday afternoon.

KEEKWAN ALSO ASSAULTED.

Having carried the approaches to that height the assailants entrenched themselves under the glacis of the forts.

In the evening the left wing delivered an assault on Keekwan, fighting its way to the lower parapet. There the Japs held the ground stubbornly in the face of Russian counter attacks.

HAND TO HAND CONFLICT.

Having been reinforced during the night the Russians charged down upon the Japs and a desperate hand to hand conflict ensued.

RUSSIANS WERE REPULSED.

The Japs beat back the enemy and destroyed two covered positions in the front moat.

FINE PERSONAL EXPLOIT.

A Japanese sub lieutenant with 30 volunteers then succeeded in making his way to the rear of the fort. There he engaged in a personal conflict with a Russian officer and killed him.

LOST ONLY TWO MEN.

Having discovered two more defences in the rear moat the sub lieutenant withdrew his force with the loss of two men.

TAKEN AND RETAKEN.

Later in the evening the advanced position of the Japs was taken and retaken twice.

The besiegers succeeded in holding the approaches and constructing trenches connecting them with their own army front parallel.

THE SCENE AT DAWN.

At dawn numbers of dead were visible on the slopes north of Fort Five where the new and old batteries in the line of defence were captured by the severe fighting of the night.

A WEDGE DRIVEN IN.

These operations have driven an effective wedge into the Russian centre. Severe explosions have occurred in the fortress within the last few days.

THE BUTCHER'S BILL.

The total casualties of the Japanese in the late attack were 1,100. More than five hundred were killed up to Oct. 29.

JAPS IN GREAT SPIRITS.

The spirits of the men are magnificent and the firing of all the guns is wonderfully effective.

A SUPERB SPECTACLE.

The climax to the late bombardment came between 4 and 6 o'clock Saturday afternoon. It was a superb spectacle. Every fort of the enemy was engaged and the fighting in the trenches was constant and severe. The outposts of the contending forces were only forty feet apart.

AN UNDERGROUND SURPRISE.

At 1 o'clock this morning one of the Japanese trenches collapsed into a Russian gallery and the enemy being surprised underground fled in confusion.

The Return of a Projectile.

The question is often asked, "Will an object thrown into the air, either from the hand, a volcano or even when shot from a rifle or cannon, return to the earth with the same initial velocity with which it left?" The answer is: A projectile thrown vertically upward into the air will return with a velocity less than the initial. In the air the accelerating force which acts during the descent is not equal to the retarding force during ascent. The retarding force is the same for the weight of the projectile and the atmospheric resistance, both acting in the same direction. In the descent the accelerating force is the difference of these two, since they act in opposite directions. In a vacuum it would be different. In that case, the weight of the projectile being the only force acting, this force would generate in each foot of the ball exactly the same amount of velocity that it had lost in its passage upward. Thus the final would find it with a speed equal to its initial velocity.—St. Louis Republic.
