John Gresham's Girl

By Concordia Merrel

At that, Billy stopped dead still; dropped his hand to his side, stood a moment with an expression of terror in his eyes, then turned away a queer, low cry breaking from him, and went off into the thick of the woods, going over the roughness with a sort of animal lightness and ease.

Lucy let fear have rein then, and blindly made her stumbling way towards the narrow, rutty lane, running as fast as her legs would carry her, but with the feeling that comes sometimes in a dream, that she was running without getting any further. Suddenly, at the end of the lane just where it met, and turned into the road, she saw a tall figure approaching. Just for a second, confused and frightened, she thought it was Billy again. But another look brought her to a standstill, staring incredulously. Then:

"Jim!" she cried unsteadily. "Jim! It's you!" Her heart was beating out paeans of gladness and relief, but this did not get through to her voice, for the reaction from her fear, and to her utter astonishment at seeing Lee, put a curious, shaken note into it, which entirely cut out the ringing joy she felt. And, he completely unaware of the strain she had been through, and very full of his own peace-destroying thoughts and questions, came towards her, so dark-faced, dark-eyed and grim-lipped that even the relief and happiness her heart had felt seemed to go suddenly cold, when she saw him close to, and even in that moment, all that lay between them rushed confused through her memory, and she halted slightly, and went slowly for the rest of the little distance that separated them.

As he stopped before her, he looked down rather strangely into her face; and after a second asked abruptly:

"Are you alone?" She nodded, her lips so shaky that she couldn't control them. He saw, then, how pale and near to tears she looked, but still had not the faintest notion of what had caused it.

"What's the matter?" he asked, abruptly still.

"It's all right. . . Only I've had a rather. . . queer adventure. Have you the car? Was it your car we heard? Can you take me back to the hotel?" The words were tumbling rather incoherently from her lips, but he didn't answer her questions immediately. He stood and looked down at her for a moment; then:

"We heard? You said you were alone. Who's we?"

"Silly-Billy. . ." she stammered. He frowned, puzzled and surprised.

"What?" he asked.

"Take me back, Jim, and I'll tell you," she implored, with a catch in her voice.

"All right. Come along," he said, briefly. They went in silence to the car.

CHAPTER XV

When Lee had started the car, and they were on their way towards Newchester, he asked:

"Now tell me. Who's this Silly-Billy? Is it an idiotic pet name for. . . anyone?" His tone was so curiously brusque, that it suggested that he'd be glad to hit someone, or something. She sitting beside him in the front of the car, recovering fast from the fear she had been through, glanced up at him, a good deal puzzled.

INSTALLMENT 21

"A pet name? Jim, I wonder if you've ever seen him? You may know him quite well. . . He's a

When they reached the hotel he had a suitcase taken in and the car garaged, and followed Lucy up to her room. Just inside the sitting room door he stood a moment looking round, as if he half expected to see someone besides themselves there. Then he flung down his hat and got out of his light overcoat. She stood for a while, too, looking at him; then drew a shaky little breath and laughed unsteadily.

"You're an utter surprise. . . I've been so terrified by Billy that I follow severe cold epidemics, and so-crazy glad at being rescued from him that I've hardly had time to wonder what made you come here. What did,

"May I not have business in Newchester as well as you?" he asked.

"What business, though?" "Have you forgotten that I am 'Inforts'?" "But 'Inforts' are not here." "No; but Gresham's are." It took a moment for the significance of that to sink in, then she said slowly:

"So you are. . . spying on Gresham's? Is that it, Jim?"

crazy creature. The village idiot of these parts. I imagine. . . Silly-Billy was the name he gave himself. . . And he's fairly terrified the wits out of me, this afternoon, I can tell you."

Lee sat a silent moment, thinking back through nearly four years to the time when he lived at Brady's Cottage. His tone had lost something of its brusqueness, as he said:

"Why, that must be Billy Brady, old Mother Brady's half-witted nephew; son of one of her brothers-in-law. . . A great hulking fellow? With an awful squint?"

"Yes. He's a monster, Jim. There's something terrible about him." She shuddered slightly.

"How did you meet him? How did you happen to be here, anyway?"

"I came to see the cottage. Where you used to live," she told him, a touch of uncertainty in the words.

"Were you alone?"

Again she looked up at him, puzzled.

"Yes. Untl I met Billy."

"All right. Well, what did you come here for?"

She hesitated; then:

"Jim, has it ever occurred to you that the really effective thing to do is to prove your innocence of that hateful business three years ago?"

He looked at her quizzically.

"Why are you so convinced of my innocence?" he asked, rather as if her faith plagued him.

"I am; that's all."

"If I am innocent, do you think it can possibly have failed to occur to me to prove it?"

"I wondered; hate and revenge seems to have blotted out. . . other thoughts," she said, in a low voice.

"If I am innocent," he said again, "you may be sure I shall do my best to prove it at the proper time."

"I wanted to attempt it at once."

"How were you going to set about it?"

To The Electors Of The City Of Charlottetown

Unable to turn a deaf ear to the very many individual citizens from all parts of the city who have spoken to me, and to a largely signed requisition of others of my fellow citizens, requesting that I should offer as a candidate for the Mayoralty, I have decided to comply with their wishes.

The financial condition of the city causes much anxiety. If its credit is to be saved from destructive impairment, the city's financial budget must be made to balance. I am in hopes, however, that by the adoption of methods of economy and the elimination of all waste, it will be unnecessary to impose any addition to the existing rate of taxation.

All shams and pretences must be put an end to. All valid civic by-laws and all laws for the protection of life and property should be rigidly enforced. All classes must be treated fairly but favoritism should be abolished. If there be favors to spare, these should be given to the most needy and not, as in the recent past, to the least needy. I shall use my best endeavors to accomplish all these ends.

I respectfully ask the citizens for their support and confidence. A house to house canvass is impossible as well as undesirable. The intelligence of our citizens is quite high enough to enable them to decide whom to vote for without undergoing the indignity of being coaxed, urged or badgered. In any case, come out and vote. If according to your best judgment you can't vote for me, vote against me. I would rather be defeated by voters willing to fulfill the highest duty of citizenship than by the stay away conduct of laggards who have not yet learned to place a real value on the high privilege of the franchise.

I have the honor to be, etc., W. S. STEWART.

ELECTION CARD

TO THE ELECTORS OF WARD FOUR

I respectfully ask the support of those who feel that I am capable of representing them in Ward four and the city in general.

FRANK S. CURRIE,
532-2-5-51

To The Electors Of Ward Five

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN: At the request of a number of the electors I yesterday nominated for Councillor.

I have property in three Wards and if elected your interests will be mine. I am not making a canvass as I believe in everyone having their freedom to vote for who they think best, so please do not be offended if I do not call on you. Asking your help and vote, I remain,

Yours faithfully,
ROWLAND L. DAY.

ELECTION CARD

TO THE ELECTORS OF WARD FIVE: Ladies & Gentlemen:

It is my privilege once again to offer my services to Ward Five and the citizens in general as Councillor.

Having been one of your representatives for the past six years in the City Council, I have endeavored to give you the best services within my power. Everything in connection with the betterment of the City consistent with our revenue will receive my hearty approval. It is not my intention to make a personal canvass; my record is before you and I take this opportunity of soliciting your support on election day. Thanking you for your support in the past and anticipating a continuance of same on February 10th.

Respectfully yours,
SAMUEL KENNEDY.

The Mayoralty Contest

To The Electors of the City of Charlottetown.

Ladies and Gentlemen: Having served as a member of the City Council for the past eight years, and believing that you have confidence in my stewardship, as expressed by repeated endorsement at the polls, I have consented to place my name in nomination for Mayor of our City at the forthcoming Election.

My long experience at the Council board and record as chairman of the streets and finance committees should qualify me for the position, and will the better enable me to look after the best interest of the City. I therefore take this opportunity of soliciting your support.

You are evidently aware that the past two years have been very trying ones, especially from a financial standpoint, and like most other cities Charlottetown has come in for its share of depression. During this period as Chairman of Finance Committee I have endeavored to improve our finances, not only in theory but in practice, as disclosed in our annual financial reports. Adequate Sinking Funds will be, as far as possible set aside for all borrowings over and above the limit of the City's borrowing power fixed by law to five times the annual revenue collected during the year, and I have every hope of being able to do this without any increase in the existing rate of taxation.

I promise with the co-operation of the Council to adopt such economic methods as will enable the upkeep of the city to be carried on in a competent and satisfactory manner. And will advocate and support all measures for the betterment of civic government. I have always been a firm supporter of Labor and my best efforts will be continued in its behalf, bearing in mind that favoritism must not be countenanced and all classes of citizens be treated justly and fairly.

With these pronouncements before you, the case is now in your hands to be dealt with as you see fit. Service, if well rendered merits recognition, and to this end I make my appeal. If you elect me to the honourable position of Mayor, it shall be my firm and steadfast purpose to maintain for the City of Charlottetown the enviable position it now enjoys from every viewpoint.

Thanking you in anticipation of your support on February tenth.

Respectfully Yours,
E. A. FOSTER

ELECTION CARD

To the Electors of Ward One Ladies and Gentlemen: Complying with the request of a large number of the Electors I have nominated to contest Ward One in the coming Civic Election. If elected I promise to support all measures that may come up for the good of the city consistent with the revenue, to safeguard the interests of the working man, to urge for a reduction in our electric service charge, and rates. Now that valuation of property has been increased I am in favor of a lower percentage of taxation.

There may be some voters that I will miss seeing personally in my canvass, and I earnestly solicit their support on Election Day. If you do me the honour of electing me I will work for the best interest of the city and Ward One in particular.

Respectfully yours,
JOHN T. DOYLE.

ELECTION CARD

To the Electors of Ward One Ladies and Gentlemen: I have been requested by many of the voters in this ward to nominate for City Councillor. In placing my name in nomination I wish to work for the best interests of the city, watching out for economy in all departments. I am a business man, carrying on business in Ward Three, also a property holder. As a member of the City Fire Department for many years, I have endeavored to give my best services to the city.

Thanking the many electors for their courtesies and asking for your support at the polls on Wednesday, the tenth instant, I remain,

Yours respectfully,
FRED H. TRAINOR.

ELECTION CARD

To the Electors of Ward 4, Ladies & Gentlemen:

Having had the honor of representing you for the past four years at the Council Board, I have again nominated to contest this Ward at the forthcoming election. As your representative I have always endeavored to serve you to the best of my ability; and feel I have assisted in accomplishing many things of benefit to the Ward and the City.

One matter which has received my earnest attention has been the Electric Light question, and during the tenure of the incoming Council this important matter will be dealt with in a renewal or alteration of the contract in the interests of the citizens. The securing of the very best possible contract—particularly the reduction of the Service Charge and the Power Rates—will be strongly urged by me.

General and Special Civic interests will receive my most careful attention. Strict economy consistent with efficient service and the safeguarding of workmen's interests will ever guide me.

Thanking you for your anticipated support, I am,
Respectfully yours,
B. R. HOLMAN.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE CITY OF CHARLOTTETOWN

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—

At the request of a great many of our prominent citizens I have consented to place my name in nomination for the office of Mayor of our City of Charlottetown. As it will be impossible to call personally on all electors, I am taking this opportunity and method of respectfully soliciting your support in the coming election. For a number of years I have been your representative, as a member of the City Council, and as chairman of some of the most important committees.

My support shall be given to all measures for the betterment of the City, such as impartial enforcement of all laws, no further increase of taxation, cheaper lighting, both civic and domestic, the promotion of Public Health Service, and better sanitary conditions. Economy shall be the watchword throughout all our service.

If elected to the high and honorable position of Mayor of this City it shall be my aim and earnest endeavor, throughout this term of office, to promote in every way the progress of the City, and the interests and welfare of all its citizens.

With gratitude, in anticipation of your kind support, I remain,
Very respectfully yours,
J. E. BLANCHARD.

ELECTION CARD

Electors Ward 3. Ladies & Gentlemen:— Having been waited upon by a large number of Electors of the Ward, including many of the leading business men of the City, I have placed my name in nomination as Councillor.

All my life I have been associated with business and finance and therefore believe I am qualified to attend to the affairs of the City in such a manner as to give the Citizens satisfactory service.

Thanking you in anticipation of your kind support. I am,
Respectfully Yours,
B. C. VanDerstine.
