To Reside In Charlottetown

Her many friends learned with regret that Miss Tottie Mawley is leaving Summerside to take up her residence in Charlottetown at the Charlotte Ladies Home.

Miss Mawley has been associated with the business and social life of Summerside for many years. Her father and mother, the late Edwin and Sarah Mawley opened the Clifton House, which was built by a Mr. Campbell in the early days of Summerside. This hotel remained in the hands of the Mawley family, until quite recently, Mr. M. P. Titus is the present proprietor. The Clifton House has always been associated with the commercial and social life of Summerside. Under the management of the Mawleys it was known to the travelling public as one of the nicest family hotels in the Maritime Provinces. On the occasion of the visits of the Governor General of Canada to Summerside the Clifton House was the scene of many brilliant functions and many noted and distinguished people have slept beneath its roof.

The Mawleys were an old English family and resided in Charlottetown before coming to Summerside. On the death of their parents, Miss Georgie, now deceased, and Miss Tottie carried on the Clifton House and their two sisters, Janie and Carrie ran the Mawley House, which is now under the management of Mrs. Bruce Davidson.

The Clifton House is one of the oldest establishments in Summerside and has always been one of the many fires that have visited the town. It came very near to being burned when fire wiped out a section of Water Street about eighteen years ago. Besides the Clifton House, the oldest buildings now standing in Summerside are the Nurses Home, which was Summerside's first hotel and was known as Summerside House. This was built by Joseph Green and was later occupied by Mrs. James Reid. Mr. George Williams' home on Granville Street, is claimed to be the first residence built in Summerside and was occupied by a branch of the Green family.

The departure of Miss Mawley from Summerside has recalled to many of the older residents of the town, the early history of the place. Miss Mawley will be missed by her friends, which are many. She will also be missed in St. Mary's Church, of which she has been a member since it was built.

Her friends wish her every happiness in her new home. L-3715-1-22-25-11.

Closing C.Y.M.L. Card Party

The concluding party of the C. Y. M. L. auction forty-fives tournament was held on Friday night and was featured by the largest attendance yet in this season. This was the first card party before Lent but they will be resumed after Easter. When these card parties began last fall it was promised that they would be the best in town. And that that promise has been fulfilled is evidenced by the fact that they have been held every Friday night without exception for over four months and on no occasion has the attendance been unsatisfactory.

A great deal of credit for the outstanding success of these parties is due to Mr. Joseph Gaudet, the energetic chairman of the committee under whose management the whole program of parties has been carried out.

The members of the Catholic Young Men's League appreciate very much the patronage they have received and look forward to receiving the same generous support when their annual play is presented.

The prize winners at the final card party are as follows. Ladies first, Mrs. Sam Grady; ladies' consolation, Doris Gallant; men's first, M. J. White; men's consolation, Mr. Purves; freeze-out, Mrs. Isaac Arsenault. The winners of the tournament prizes were: ladies, Mrs. John C. Arsenault; men, Buddy Doucette. The second highest scores were held by Mrs. Felix Gallant and Mr. Mosele Biquiere who also held second high score in the last tournament.

The lucky ticket prize for the tournament was drawn by Mrs. John Murray. L-3715-1-22-25-11.

P. E. Island's Claims Recognized To Extent Of 3 Million Dollars

pect of the retrospective feature of the claims.

"We have, however," the majority report continues, "like the Duncan Commission, taken this retrospective feature into account in making our recommendations and also the fact that the increased subsidies which we have recommended are to begin in the fiscal year 1935-36 and not as of the fiscal year following the date of the Duncan report."

The annual additional subsidies represent on a five percent per annum interest basis, capitalized sums of: Nova Scotia, $26,000,000; New Brunswick, $18,000,000; Prince Edward Island, $5,000,000.

Stresses Fiscal Need

Chief Justice Mathieson gives as his reason for dissent that the report minimizes the importance of "fiscal need" as a guiding principle. The first requisite for the early days to granting additional aid by the Dominion to a Province, he states, is proof of fiscal need arising from causes for which the province was not responsible. He also expresses belief the proposed increase would give only partial and temporary relief.

"It was made clearly to appear on this inquiry," Chief Justice Mathieson states regarding the question of treatment accorded to different provinces, "that one of the major problems facing Canada today is the devising of some general plan for adjustment of Dominion and provincial financial relations. The practice which has existed from early days of dealing with single provinces or groups of provinces without due regard to the interest of all, may bring about a condition of grave unrest not free from danger to Canadian unity."

OFFICIAL SUMMARY

OTTAWA, March 4—Following is the official summary of the report tabled in the House of Commons by the Royal Commission on financial arrangements between the Dominion and the Maritime Provinces.

Under the terms of reference the commission was required to take into consideration and deal with the recommendation of the Duncan Commission that should be:

- (1) Annual grants for the support of their provincial governments and legislatures in aid, the Maritime Provinces advanced the argument that "fiscal need" was a factor to be taken into account in any revision of the financial arrangements between the Dominion and any or all of the provinces of Canada. This theory was most strongly pressed by the Premier of Nova Scotia, who claimed that financial necessity of the provinces had been the basis of most, if not all, subsidies of every kind provided for by the British North America Act.

In all revision of subsidies he argued that the object should be to trace back to financial necessity of the provinces and the willingness of the government of the day to yield when the situation was sufficiently exigent.

Special Grants

The report admits that financial necessity has lain at the basis of most, if not all, of the revision and special grants of subsidies to provinces since confederation. But while admitting this, the view is expressed that this policy which has prevailed should not be deliberately adopted as a rule of action generally applicable in the matter of the financial arrangements between the Dominion and the other provinces, as it would lead to conditions harmful and dangerous in the extreme.

To the contention of the Premier of Nova Scotia that "fiscal need" might be fairly applied, it could be shown that the functions which the province was discharging were necessary; that such functions were being economically carried on; and that the province had exhausted all available sources of revenue, the report states:

"When any province is in such a necessary condition, with its own credit exhausted, it is, of course, proper for the Dominion Government, if it deems the maintenance of provincial credit to be of national importance, to come to the aid of that province by way of a guarantee of its temporary borrowings or of a direct loan to be repaid with interest as soon as, by reason of improved conditions or of economies effected by the province, its credit has been restored and it is thus enabled to extricate itself from its financial difficulties.

But this is quite different from saying that, in such a case, the Dominion should assist by voting a special subsidy in aid, because such a subsidy is a gift and not a loan and would be provided at the expense of all the people of Canada and not solely by the people of the province in question.

"For the foregoing reasons we feel obliged to reject this proposed test of 'fiscal need' and proceed to consider upon other grounds the claims of the Maritime Provinces for increased subsidies."

Other Arguments Weighed

With a view to ascertaining whether there was anything unfair or inequitable in the whole situation as regards the Maritime Provinces, when compared with the other provinces of Canada, the report carefully weighs other arguments advanced by the Maritime Provinces, including a lack of increase of population as compared with other provinces taken as a whole; low per capita wealth and taxable capacity; comparison of costs of government and finances of the Maritime Provinces with those of the other provinces. In the matter of greatly increased public debt the Maritime Provinces were not singular among the provinces of Canada.

It is pointed out, however, that the further aid recommended, no matter upon what claim or claims it is founded, will find its public account and assist to that extent these governments in the immediate and urgent task of endeavoring to balance their budgets. It will also enhance the public credit of the Maritime Provinces.

At Confederation the Dominion assumed responsibility for the debts and liabilities of each province excepting Confederation and fixed a debt allowance.

Maritimes' Contentions

The Maritime Provinces contend that the greater part of their public debt at the time of Confederation represented railway construction and when the Dominion took over their railway property they charged against the provincial debt allowance the bonds of the provinces issued for railway purposes. They, therefore, argued that they were entitled to have that portion of their debt eliminated in determining the amount to which the debt should be a reduction. The report states that the original arrangements have been so altered by readjustments of debt allowances that it is not possible to make an accurate comparison according to the various provisions in that regard, although admitting some basis for the claims.

At Confederation

Of the original parties to Confederation the Maritime Provinces, along with the Dominion, were to have the territory and claim that in the early years of the Prairie Provinces the money to meet the cost of administering their natural resources must have come from the older provinces. The natural resources have now been returned to the Prairie Provinces. The Maritime commission, which dealt with the case of Manitoba, recommended a refund of over $4,500,000 and also the continuation of the annual subsidy, in lieu of public lands. Two commissions are now dealing with the case of the Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan. The Maritime Provinces claim that the portion of the territory granted by reason of the Dominion, particularly in the case of Ontario and Quebec.

Special P. E. I. Claims

To this and to the special claim of Prince Edward Island, which never had extensive crown lands, due weight is given. With reference to the fixed sums expended by the Dominion upon the construction of trans-continental lines and local branch lines in the western provinces, the report asserts that these were in accord with the policy of all governments to link east and west by railroads and were hereafter not so much to the benefit of the Western Provinces as to Canada as a whole.

MAJORITY REPORT

The full text of the recommendations of Sir Thomas White and Mr. Nesbitt follows:

"It is recommended by the Duncan Commission that a detailed determination and assessment should be made of these various claims of the Maritime Provinces so that the actual amount as well as the reasons and purposes attaching to it can be recognized by the rest of Canada as fair and equitable. The briefs and arguments submitted on behalf of the provinces and the Dominion and the documentary and other evidence adduced before us have enabled us to make the suggested detailed examination so far as it is practicable to do so.

"An assessment in detail of each claim is not possible as the claims are for the most part based upon broad and general considerations of fairness and equity having regard to the treatment enjoyed by other provinces under the same headings and to the economic disadvantages to which the Maritime Provinces are peculiarly subjected owing to their isolated geographic position in relation to the central and western parts of Canada towards which the trend of Canadian development has continuously and increasingly set ever since the establishment of the Dominion. Such claims are by their nature not susceptible of detailed appraisal by any process of mathematical calculation as the basis for accurate comparison is wanting on account of the diversity of conditions and circumstances of development of the several provinces.

Claims In Aggregate

"As an assessment in detail of each of the claims presented before us, for the reasons given, manifestly impracticable, we adopt the only course available to us, viz., to consider equitably the claims in the aggregate assigning to each its due weight according to our best judgment and making our recommendations in the form of special additional annual subsidies to the Maritime Provinces, respectively, commencing in the fiscal year 1935-36 and the interim annual subsidies recommended by the Duncan Commission should cease at the end of the fiscal year 1934-5.

"The additional annual subsidies which we recommend are as follows:

To Nova Scotia	$ 1,300,000
To New Brunswick	900,000
To Prince Edward Island	275,000

Annual Subsidy Plan Commended

"We agree with the Duncan Commission that it is preferable to make our recommendations in the form of annual subsidy payments only and not in the form of part of a fixed sum in respect of the retrospective feature of the claims. We have, however, like the Duncan Commission, taken this retrospective feature into account in making our recommendations and also the fact that the increased subsidies which we have recommended are to begin in the fiscal year 1935-36 and not as of the fiscal year following the date of the Duncan report.

"The annual subsidies which we have recommended and which are to take the place of the interim annual subsidies recommended by the Duncan Commission, represent, on a five percent per annum interest basis, capitalized sums as follows:

Nova Scotia	$ 26,000,000
New Brunswick	18,000,000
Prince Edward Island	5,500,000

"Honorable Chief Justice Mathieson finds himself unable to concur in the recommendations to our report. His memorandum of dissent is attached hereto.

Claims On Merits

"In concluding our report we deem it advisable to say that in reaching our conclusions we have endeavored not to be influenced by conditions in the Maritime Provinces at the present time, but to base our contentions on the part of other provinces whose governments were not so favorably regarded, would surely follow the acceptance of even this modified test of 'financial need' in the case of provinces seeking further subsidies in aid of their Dominion treasury. With all due respect, let me say that it was to obviate such objections and to answer these questions that the Duncan Commission and this Commission were appointed and empowered.

Case Aply Presented

"There can be no advantage in re-arguing or stating more fully now the questions which were so ably presented by the representatives of the Maritime Provinces before the Commission and so strenuously opposed by counsel for the Dominion, but I may shortly state my opinion on the result, which is: that vital questions referred to this Commission remain undetermined by this report, and that the question of subsidies proposed will give but partial and temporary relief. The lapse of more than eight years since the Duncan Report went into effect granting provisional subsidies only, has witnessed such necessary increase in government expenditures in the case of all the provinces as will quickly absorb the present proposed increases, and still leave them in a position to compel diminution of necessary expenditure on provincial services, or a further increase of provincial debt or of taxation, or of all three combined.

"These old British colonies that formed the Atlantic bulwark of British North America, after bearing their full share of the cost of Canadian organization and development, should not be treated with less justice and consideration than is being accorded the provinces whose lands they helped to purchase, to protect and equip for settlement.

Absence of Equality

"The evidence produced before the Commission showed from early days a total absence of equality in the treatment of the different provinces in Canada, both in regard to money grants by way of subsidy and in the gifts of vast areas of Dominion lands to some provinces without any uniform plan and without any compensation to provinces that did not share in the partition of the common property.

"It was made clearly to appear on this inquiry that one of the major problems facing Canada today is the devising of some general plan for adjustment of Dominion and provincial financial relations.

Unsatisfactory Practice

"The practice which has existed from early days of dealing with single provinces or groups of provinces without due regard to the interests of all, may bring about a condition of grave unrest not free from danger to Canadian unity. It is to be noted in my expression of appreciation of the courteous and competent assistance of Mr. Payne, Secretary of this Commission, and also of my old friend, Mr. MacCormac, of the Parliamentary Library, whose kindnesses now and then far more days I recall with gratitude."
