Invasion Sweeping To First Great Climax

By Ross Munro

WITH BRITISH AND CANADIAN FORCES IN FRANCE, June 15 (CP Cable)—This campaign is sweeping to its first great climax and big battles, which would bring large armored formations into combat over the Norman farmlands, may be approaching rapidly.

A deep wedge was driven into German held territory south of Bayeux by the thrilling dash of an Allied armored formation met Tilly Sur Seules and on toward Villers-Bocage, about six miles south of Tilly. It has been a vitally important thrust.

This thrust was slowed down as the Germans threw in armor and guns to block it but a salient had been created which, if developed, could outflank Caen from the west.

There has been stern fighting on this battleground south of Bayeux and the enemy could stop it only by drawing troops from distant points and hurling them into battle.

On the immediate Caen sector to the east of this salient, the Germans still have their bulge in the beachhead line.

But Canadian and British forces in this Caen perimeter maintain the initiative and the enemy has taken up strictly defensive positions for the moment. But in the beachhead there is sound confidence in the Allied position.

roar over the area from dawn to dusk.

On no other battlefield have I seen anything like these continuous sweeps of our low flying fighters, which blast with cannon and machine-gun fire and bombs anything in the enemy zone that moves.

The Germans are making a strong effort to prevent the two prongs from reaching off from the beachhead on the east and west of Caen and pinching off the city—an important rear communication centre. Once it falls, the Germans will be forced to make a major withdrawal.

It seems possible, though, that they will make one of the greatest efforts where their forces now are in contact and the battle of Normandy, curtain raiser for the battle of France, may be fought along the present jagged front.

German reserves were reported moving up and Field Marshal Rommel may be preparing his final counter-blow. But in the beachhead there is sound confidence in the Allied position.

Since the landing in France, vast amounts of ammunition and supplies and masses of troops have flooded into the beachhead from England. Convoys over the channel have operated like a ferry service and the build up behind the initial attacks has been an outstanding success.

Moreover, weather has been good the last four or five days and that helped enormously. When you drive through bases areas here toward the front, you are staggered by the immense collectors of armor and guns. There hardly seems to be enough space in the beachhead for it all.
