HOUSE OF HATE

CHAPTER XII

A moth flung itself endlessly against the screen. Even after the lamp was extinguished, Serena could see the steady thump-thump of its body against the mesh. She lay gasping for breath. Not a breeze stirred. At intervals, she heard her hot pillow, hoping for a momentary freshness. She felt trapped, suffocating. What was Paul thinking, she wondered, stretched out on the floor in the lower hall? Whatever happened, she must not allow herself to weaken. She knew that this life together was ended that had her only salvation was a quick escape. Surely, by morning, he would have realized it, too, and would want her to go. There could be no satisfaction in holding a woman against her will, in imposing one's law upon another. Or was she Paul's? Was she Paul's? She must hear the dog. She got out of bed and went to the window. In the half light, she could see the little dog behind the chain stretched taut, his nose pointing toward the house. Behind him rose the bulk of the make-up kennel to which he had been relegated, and beyond that, the darkened windows of the cottage where the Thurbers lived. What she wanted, lights went on in the cottage and Thurber came out on the porch. The man held a stick that he carried and brought it down viciously across the dog's back. The dog squatted with pain. A second later, crawling on all fours, he disappeared into the dog house. Serena was trembling with anger. For a moment she was tempted to cry out, as the man tossed the stick to the cottage, she fiercely resolved to confront him in the morning. If morning ever came, it seemed an eternity that she wandered around the bedroom. Would the dog ever break? For four hours she had been a growling menace. Flashes of lightning cracked the sky in a spectacular display but the thunder rolls were still remote. She drew a chair close to the window and rested her head against the frame. She was so tired, so desperately tired. Half an hour later, the blow fell. The heavens launched their anger in a bolt of flame that split the oak tree near the house. Serena, deafened and blinded, felt her way along the wall to the door. The rain had come at last. She could hear it. Somewhere a woman was screaming hysterically. There were shouts and the sound of padding feet. The hall and stairway were in complete darkness. Clinging to the railing, the various occupants of the house made their way to the lower hall. Outside, the burning

Fur Garment Styles Curtailed

OTTAWA, May 26—(CP)—Number of styles in which fur garments may be manufactured in Canada is reduced by one-third, effective for the coming fall season and each season thereafter, under an order issued by M. Morris, administrator of fur skins and fur garments for the wartime prices and trade board, made public today.

The order also limits the length of women's fur coats, prohibits the use of certain materials for linings, pockets and cuffs in fur garments and limits the use of boxes in packing for delivery.

The regulations were worked out by the board's division of simplified practice in cooperation with the fur industry.

The number of styles in any one range which any manufacturer may use in making garments for sale at retail during the fall season of 1942 and for each season thereafter is not to exceed two-thirds of the number of styles he used in the same range for the corresponding season of 1941.

Styles not to be affected to any extent, Mr. Morris said, "Manufacturers will continue to build both swaggar and fitted garments as in the past. Where garments were formerly shown with cuffs with separate linings, they will appear in future with cuffs wholly of fur, thereby saving the linings on cuffs, which in the use of silk or cotton, but maintaining the style feature by the use of fur."

Specifically, the order forbids the use of any separate or attached wool underfur, wool interlining, and wool cloth in inside pockets. No material may be used to provide the bottom of any garment with double lining, to provide any garment with more than 32 inches of fannellette from neck seam down.

Zippers on pockets are eliminated. Wool interlinings have been used in the past only when specially requested, and it is considered that fur garments are sufficiently warm without them.

Men's fur coats are not affected to a similar extent because they are no longer made in such numbers as formerly. Their manufacture has dwindled to perhaps 10 per cent of the number made 20 years ago.

The order prohibits manufacturers from selling, delivering or otherwise disposing of fur garments on consignment. They may ship on approval to retailers, but such articles are not to be in possession of any retailer for more than three days.

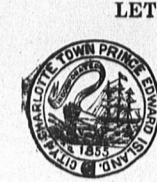

"Garment" for the purposes of the order means any coat, jacket, cape, scarf or muff, the outer surface of which is made wholly of fur. The restrictions apply to remodelling of new or used garments.

In respect of paperboard boxes, it is estimated that the new regulations will affect a saving of 35 per cent. Manufacturers are not to pack garments in boxes for city deliveries, and for outside deliveries the sizes of boxes for one, two, three and four garments are prescribed.

A bushel of soybeans produces approximately 49 pounds of soybean meal.

CLEAN UP WEEK MAY 25th - 30th

The citizens of Charlottetown are called upon to observe "Clean Up Week" from May 25th-30th. If we wish visitors to return to their homes well-pleased with their sojourn here we must have our city looking its best. It is a matter of civic pride to repair and paint our homes, to make our lawns and property attractive, and to keep our streets and driveways clean, but it is also a matter of health to do so. The mayor and councillors of Charlottetown request all citizens to observe Clean Up Week to the best of their ability and to make their city the most attractive in all Canada.

LET US CLEAN UP IN "CLEAN UP WEEK."

Air Battle Score In North Africa

NEW YORK, May 26—(AP)—The air battle score in Africa now is three German plane losses to every British plane downed, but the Axis powers still hold superiority in the number of fighting planes by 50 per cent, an Australian airman said here today.

"Almost all the enemy planes are German, and manned by Nazi pilots who are still going strong," said Squadron Leader Olive Robertson Caldwell, an ace of the R. A. A. F. "They come in superior numbers and are not lacking in ability, but in the end we manage to beat them off."

The Australian did not discount the speed and flying ability of the new German Messerschmitt, 109 f's, which, he said, can attain a speed of 420 miles an hour with a new gas-line compression mechanism, permitting sudden great bursts of speed.

This new German fighter, he said, has three gun mounts and is reported to be able to reach a ceiling of 45,000 feet.

BLUE ROOM HAS SERENITY

Designed for restfulness is a blue room from tip to toe, which is both pretty and practical—not to mention the quiet serenity which is the special attribute of that particular shade of French blue.

The rug is a soft blue broadloom of twist weave, so that it doesn't show foot marks, and the wall paper is a misty pattern in very faint blues with gray and white.

The furniture is mid-century of Stierston design and accessories are of blue and white Wedgwood china. The spread and sheer curtains are of a fine white dotted net while the over-drapes are of gray-blue slipper satin lined with a flowered chintz on a blue ground.

These are interestingly made—the lengths were cut jabot fashion with one outer edge straight and the other inner edge bias. Thus when they are hung to the floor in pleats they fall in graceful cascade that shows the lining. The same flowered chintz is used to cover a slipper chair and chaise lounge.

If you are eligible for NEW, USED or RETREADED TIRES -

the Firestone Dealer will show you how to make out the necessary application for a tire ration permit

Under the latest Government Tire Restrictions, new or used tires and tubes and retreading service can only be sold to certain defined operators.

Such operators must fill out an application form which must be accompanied by an Inspection Report from an authorized Tire Dealer. These are submitted to the Regional Office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, which issues the Tire Rationing Permit now necessary for the purchase of any new or used tire or tube or retreading service.

Official Tire Information

Your nearest Firestone Dealer has the necessary forms and official information. He will gladly advise you which category you are in and what you are able to purchase, will help you fill in the application, furnish the Inspection Report, and do everything he can to assist you.

Even more important, the Firestone Dealer will give you the advice and help on how to get the utmost mileage from your present tires. For a quarter of a century, Firestone has been selecting and training dealers so that they could help you get the greatest mileage from your tires, with the greatest safety and at the lowest cost per mile. This experience is now invaluable to you. Whenever you need tire advice, or tire service, go to your nearest Firestone Dealer first—he will serve you better and save you money.

How to Get the Most Mileage from Your Present Tires

- 1. Have the Firestone Dealer estimate the number of miles left in the tires—then ration your mileage to so many miles per week. 2. Limit your driving to essential transportation. If you drive to work, take others—and rotate trips with them. 3. Have air pressure checked every week. Underinflation is the greatest enemy of tire life. 4. Drive slowly—avoid quick starts and stops that grind off the tread. Go easy on curves and use gears instead of brakes on steep hills. 5. Park with care—do not scrape sidewalls or bump the curb.

THE FIRESTONE DEALER CAN HELP YOU BY:

- 1. Completely inspecting tires and tubes at frequent intervals for cuts and bruises. 2. Rotating the tires every 5,000 miles to even the wear. 3. Checking wheel alignment and brakes. No needless or unnecessary expense—work done only when required.

SEND FOR FREE BOOKLET

A copy of Firestone's "Tire Saving Guide," explaining in detail how you can increase tire mileage, will gladly be sent upon request. Write today to Firestone Tire & Rubber Company of Canada Limited, Beach Road, Hamilton, Ontario.

ALL THE HARDER As two men stood chatting in the street, a third, known to both of them, passed by. "What's wrong with Jack this morning?" asked one. "He looks worn out and worried to death." "He's been contesting his wife's will," the other told him. "His wife's will? I didn't know she was dead." "She isn't!" was the brief reply. A. M.
