

Delicate Children Vinol is What They Need

More than eight thousand druggists recommend Vinol because it contains in deliciously palatable form the oldest and most famous reconstructive tonics known to medicine. During the last sixteen years it has brought health and happiness to thousands of puny, ailing, anaemic children.

HERE IS PROOF

Middletown, Conn. "I used Vinol for my little girl five years old for a rundown, nervous condition. She was thin, irritable all the time and had no appetite. In a week I noticed an improvement and now she has a good appetite, has gained in flesh and strength and is much pleasanter."—Mrs. C. B. Wilkinson.
Manville, R.I. "The whooping cough, and later the measles left my little boy of eight years with no appetite, thin, frail, delicate and tired all the time. After everything else had failed Vinol gave him a hearty appetite, restored his strength and he is now as well as ever."—Mrs. James H. Hall.

Vinol Creates Strength

A. E. Foster, Central Druggist, Charlottetown. Vinol is sold in Montague by H. J. Mabon and at the best drug store in every town and city in the country.

RETURNING CANADIAN AIRMEN COMPLAIN

MONTREAL, May 20.—The Canadian airmen to the number of 900 arrived on the steamship Canada which docked in Montreal on Saturday, had certain grievances which apparently would not have existed if the proposal for a Canadian air force had matured. The men had two complaints, first, that they had been kept waiting for repatriation for about five months, and, second, that when they were sent home, the accommodation was not such as they as officers were entitled to.

CASTAWAYS RESCUED.

ST. JOHN'S, May 20.—The steamer War Nipigon, bound across from Halifax with a cargo of seals, put into St. John's in a leaky condition, and will undergo repairs. While on the way across she picked up four French fishermen who had gone astray from their schooner on the banks. The men had been four days adrift and were almost dead from exposure. On arrival two of them were sent to hospital and the other were sent to the Seamen's Institute. One of them is severely frost bitten.

WHAT ELSE CAN WE DO BUT SIGN? YOUR KNEES ARE ON OUR STOMACHS

VERSAILLES, May 20.—A distinct impression among some of the subordinate members of the German peace mission that the Germans will sign the peace treaty, is reflected in the remark of one of the secretaries, who is quoted as saying: "What else can we do but sign? We are on the ground, your knees are on our stomachs and your thumbs in our eyes."

THANKFUL FOR SOCKS

A letter received by Mrs. John McRae, Rollo Bay West, from Sgt. C. E. Belyea, Somewhere in Russia says: "Dear Mrs. McRae, Please accept my sincerest thanks for the lovely socks which happened to be issued to me, so am now taking this liberty of writing to you. Naturally you would hardly realize while knitting same that they would be received by one of the boys in Russia but as the old saying goes, you never know, you know and the world is not so large after all. Again thanking you for such an acceptable gift and hoping to have a word or two from you in the near future. Kindest thoughts, I remain your friend, CHAS. E. BELYEA."

A ready weapon against pain.—There is nothing equal to Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil when well rubbed in. It penetrates the tissues and pain disappears before it. There is no known preparation that will reach the spot quicker than this magic oil. In consequence it ranks first among liniments now offered to the public and is accorded first place among all its competitors.

POSED AS "LORD" AND MADE QUITE AN IMPRESSION.

TORONTO, May 20.—If any war veterans here have recollections of a man in the Canadian Army named Richard Siegel they will doubtless be amused by the manner in which he has got into the limelight in Chicago, where the authorities evidently believe in the abolition of titles.

He was a "lord" and a "sir," and an accomplished English gentleman. With characteristic English restraint he proved this by letting it be known that he could hold a 350 pound man on his throat and drink a pint of water at the same time.

All of which impressed the guests of the State hotel. It also impressed the police and the British provost marshal, Maj. Brunt, with the result that "Lord Sir" Samuel Richards Siegel, after a hearing in the Morals court was conveyed to the federal building.

"His lordship" was a sullen listener when Agnes Turner, known to her family and friends in Laval, Wis., as the companion of "Lady" Siegel, told the court of the doubtful advantages of this position.

The Ancestral Estates "His lordship," who wore the Canadian uniform, had explained that the family party would not return to the estate in England—Kenworth Manor—until they had completed this sight-seeing tour of America, Miss Turner declared. She said she accompanied the party to "restaurants so poor she couldn't eat in them," even working with "Lady" Siegel while "Lord" Siegel was serving as "dinner man" at other restaurants. And whenever they took her to luncheon she was obliged to pay her own check, which, according to Miss Turner, seemed pretty queer—especially for a lord.

After "Lord" Siegel had himself to the contents of her purse she lost sight of the pair. In the course of her association with them, Miss Turner declared, Siegel took her last 50 cents. Then she met Arthur Moss, a wag-on in the American army, she said, who persuaded her to leave the Siegels, but she was arrested as co-defendant with Siegel. She said "she found out that 'Lady' Siegel was not Lady Siegel at all, but Hazel Cramer, of Madison, Wis."

"Why did you take the name of Lord Siegel?" asked Judge Jarecki. "Because I knew it was funny," was Siegel's answer. "I will recommend deportation in this case," said Major Brunt, as he led the boy away to a conference with Judge Landis. "He will be sent back after waiting in the county jail here until the papers are made out. After that he is liable to punishment and a heavy fine for wearing a Canadian uniform longer than thirty days after discharge from the army. Both America and Canada place penalties on offenders of this class."

In answer to inquiries at military headquarters here, it was stated that nothing had been heard from the American authorities in regard to the lad.

CHARLOTTETOWN & SUMMERSIDE

THE MANUFACTURER AND THE RETURNED SOLDIER.

Replying voluntarily to a circular letter sent out by the Director of Repatriation, many of the large employers of labour in Canada explained—without being asked to do so—what they were doing, not only to re-employ former employees who went to the front, but also to give positions to other returned soldiers.

The questionnaire sent out by the Repatriation Committee drew attention to the importance of employers absorbing into industry the 15,000 disabled Canadian soldiers and employing them in suitable, useful and self-respecting positions.

The spirit of generous patriotism exhibited in these letters from employers indicates that the work of demobilization is going on without friction and with much satisfaction. Extracts from some of the letters will be found to be interesting.

1. The policy of our Company is to re-employ every returned man who left our employ to become a soldier, whether he returns physically fit or not, and our foreman and employment officers have been so instructed. 2. For the purpose of training disabled men for mechanical positions we believe it would be better if vocational training institutions were established at many points throughout the country, where men would receive fair treatment and work under pleasant surroundings. This would be better than having disabled men learning a trade among other men in factories, where the training could not be as well given nor as close supervision exercised. 3. Most of the employers in our city are patrons of the Great War Veterans' Association, and as a result co-operate with the Secretary of that Association in finding satisfactory employment for all returned men. 4. We are constantly in touch with the representative of the Department of Soldiers' Service and Information Bureau, and state that the returned men we have taken on are doing as well as can be expected, and are bound to become useful and dependable members of our staff. We put these men on work that will fit their condition. 5. One of our travellers joined the British Service and has just come back loaded with honors, the Legion of Honour and the Crown of Belgium, as well as other decorations. We have held his place for the last four and a half years. We realize that great patience should be used in the handling of returned men, and we believe that most employers realize this fact and are sympathetic. 6. Every man on our place who was fit enlisted voluntarily for overseas service. We are taking back every returned soldier who was in our employ previous to the war, whether he is disabled or not, in addition to those we are placing as many other returned soldiers as possible. I am a returned soldier myself and most of the men in our place enlisted with me, hence the strong bond of sympathy between employer and employees.

7. Fifty per cent. of the men in our factory are returned soldiers. I have found that the best plan is to take a personal interview with every one of them as often as possible. If they cannot be spoken to individually, they should be spoken to in groups. 8. We had sixty-eight employees join the forces, and we have so far made places for all who have returned, offering advanced wages to them. If this principle of advancing wages were followed, it would not be difficult to absorb returned men. 9. We have found that indoor workers get restless for a time and want to get outside for air, stating that they could not stand it. We have instructed them to go outside whenever they felt like it, with the result that in from ten days to two weeks they were all right and back to pre-war methods. It is only necessary to be patient and reasonable. The returned men do not ask for nor expect special favors.

10. We have looked after our men while they were away by paying them half their salary and keeping their jobs open for them, and as they return we are trying to make positions for them without discharging any of the men we have had to take on in the meantime. 11. Our own boys have all been taken back as they returned, and these returned men are given the full privilege, the same as our old employees, of entering into our profit-sharing scheme, and are treated in the same way as if they had been in our employ for some time. 12. The writer has control of the employment of all people engaged in the manufacture of boots and shoes for this Company, and he being a returned man has the interests of the returned soldiers at heart, and will see that they are given every encouragement in this concern. 13. We have taken back every man to apply who left us to enter military service; consequently, if anything, our staff is over-manned. 14. Where returned men have applied to me for positions and I have not been able to place them, I have made it a point—and have been successful—to place them with other concerns and business houses. 15. We have trained one or two men for customers who are buying our machines. 16. We are trying to do all we can to get those who left our employ to go to the front back to their old positions. By letting them have a little more of their own way at first they will gradually get used to the work again and fall into line with the other employees.

17. We have found that indoor workers get restless for a time and want to get outside for air, stating that they could not stand it. We have instructed them to go outside whenever they felt like it, with the result that in from ten days to two weeks they were all right and back to pre-war methods. It is only necessary to be patient and reasonable. The returned men do not ask for nor expect special favors.

Minard's Liniment used by Physicians

WHEN I HAVE TIME. When I have time, so many things I'll do To make life happier and more fair For those whose lives are crowded now with care; I'll help to lift them from their sad despair. When I have time!

When I have time, the friend I love so well Shall know no more these weary toiling days; I'll lead his feet in pleasant paths always. And cheer his heart with words of kindly praise. When I have time!

When you have time the friend you hold so dear May be beyond the reach of all your fair intent— May never know that you so kindly meant To fill his life with bright content. When you had time!

Now is the time! Ah! then no longer wait, To scatter loving smiles and words of cheer To those around whose lives are now so drear; They may not need you in the distant year— Now is the time! —Anon.

The man who prefers praise to money is happiest when he is working for the good of others. If some men are to accuse themselves of being liars, lots of their acquaintances would believe them.
