GERMAN THREAT AGAINST THE DUTCH

AMSTERDAM, June 11—The Dutch public today was bitterly discussing the latest reported German threat against its neutrality. From a reliable source it was learned that a high German official connected with the Administration of Belgium, speaking to neutral diplomats, said: "We admit that Ostend and Zebrugge are temporarily useless as submarine bases. In the event they are permanently useless, we will make use of the Scheidt as a base, despite the cost. We have got to have a base near England; even should it add another country to those arrayed against us."

The Scheidt River flows into the North Sea through Holland.

200,000 FRENCH PEOPLE TRIED TO MURDER BRITISH MISSION

MADE HOMELESS

TORONTO, June 11—The Star publishes the following significant despatch from F. A. MacKenzie:

LONDON, June 8—While the last German offensive has apparently reached its limits, it is impossible to indulge in excessive optimism over the outlook. The last advance inflicted very grave disaster upon France, rendering 200,000 homeless and placing PParis within the possibility of bombardment from guns of the type of Big Bertha which shelled Dunkirk. Guns whose destructiveness is infinitely greater than the long range cannon hitherto used. More over the termination of advance is leaving Germans in possession of territory that will help for their next move whether offensive or defensive.

The Germans have utterly failed, however, either to separate Allies or injure the spirit of France. Clemenceau's government, which stands for resistance to the extreme end, is firmer than ever.

We must anticipate an early renewal of the battle possibly upon the Amiens front. The Germans still possess vast available reserves. The recent fighting proved advantages of unified command. The spirit of the Allied troops is still amazingly good. Everything indicates that the demand for men, munitions and money will become growingly insistent during coming months.

We are entering upon a period of anxiety and strain when every effort must be redoubled.

ALTHOUGH THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT GUARANTEED SAFE CONDUCT

LONDON, June 11—Circumstances surrounding the sinking of the Koninkgen Regentes are in the highest degree suspicious and suggests an atrocity from which it was thought even the Germans would shrink. The Koninkgen Regentes, the Sindh and the Zealand sailed together—all Dutch ships having a safe conduct from the German admiralty and starting from Boston for Lincolnshire according to the agreement. The Koninkgen was the most comfortable ship of the three and the British commission of 11 persons going to Holland to confer with a German commission on the repatriation of prisoners of war would in the natural course of things have been expected to sail in her. But for some unexplained reason they went in the Sindh.

The Koninkgen was sunk about 1 a. m. either by a torpedo or a mine when off the Dutch coast.

The ship's carpenter, C. Baar, said he was on deck soon after 1 a. m. when he suddenly saw an object approaching the vessel at great speed on her port side. He took this object for a big fish and called the attention of a sailor who was near to it. When it reached the vessel a big explosion immediately followed. A mine would not approach a ship at great speed, and a mine almost invariably strikes the bow or forward part of the ship.

Accounts are incomplete, but the fact that the principal ship of a convoy, on which the British mission, including Home Secretary Cave, would ordinarily have been, was apparently torpedoed, and that the sailing of these ships and their routes were arranged with the German Admiralty, constitute, when taken in conjunction with what is known of the enemy's methods of warfare, a chain of circumstances urgently demanding explanation.

WHY BEAUTY FADES

The girl who returns home from school or from work thoroughly tired out will be fortunate if she escapes a physical breakdown, because this getting tired so easily is probably the first warning symptom of a thinning blood that must be regarded if her health is to be preserved.

When the blood becomes thin and impure the patient becomes thin, pale, haggard and angular. She not only loses out easily but suffers from headaches, palpitation of the heart, dizzy spells and a loss of appetite. This condition will go from bad to worse until perhaps fatal consumption sets in. If prompt steps are not taken to increase and enrich the blood supply. To make the rich, red blood that brings the glow of health, no medicine yet discovered can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. If given a fair trial their use brings rosy cheeks, bright eyes, a good appetite and good spirits.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have made thousands of pale, languid girls active and strong. On the first sign of poor, thin blood mothers should insist upon their daughters taking a fair course of these pills. They will not only restore health, but will save further doctor bills.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can be obtained from any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CROSS TRAVESTY ON JUSTICE

LONDON, June 10—Rarely in these days do the British newspapers agree unanimously on a subject, but they see eye to eye the Billing case, and without exception they condemn the trial as the grossest travesty on justice, calculated to injure the country and to bring the Allied people, not to mention the unfortunate impression created in enemy countries.

Justice Darling's handling of the case is criticized sharply in every organ of public opinion. Conservatives, Liberals and labor units in protesting against the indelment of British statesmen, for such is the effect of the verdict after the innocuous.

Maud Allan as Salome is of little consequence in the world of art, but the impression that British public officials are not above grave suspicion is highly unfortunate. Plans are already being considered to clear the British statesmen of the charges growing out of the trials.

The Billing case was really a Bolshevik upheaval and outburst, following a long campaign directed at British officials. It is needless to say that there is not a shred of evidence against Asquith, Viscount Haldane, Viscount Grey or the host of others involved, but the charge of the pro-Germanist was made so recklessly and so freely it was an easy matter for Billing to create a suspicious atmosphere.

The British masses have been fed with so many claptrap sensations that they are ready to accept the wildest charges without the least consideration of the merits of the case. Certain sections of the press have been permitted to indulge in sensationalism and now the harvest is being reaped.

Those who respect the British law and institutions either hang their heads in shame or attack the judge who allowed the mass of irrelevant matter to be introduced in the case. What is worse, Justice Darling was acting for the chief justice, in the absence of Lord Reading.

Americans must understand that there is not the least justification for the charges, or a scintilla of evidence against the British leaders, and that, as the Westminster Gazette declares, "the court has been in a madhouse."
