Small, close-fitting hats with an international flare—there's an English boater, Spanish sailor, Florentine tricorn and shapes inspired by the Alabama mammy's bandanna—are what the women should wear this fall, the Retail Milliners Association of America suggests. The close fitting cloche, the tiny turban, the small hats with varied brims, and the sailor, all worn far down over the right eye, were shown at the association's annual fall show. Bows led as trimmings and a great many feather effects were shown, placed to the fore of the hat. The skull-shaped and beret crowns were favored with many folded, shirred, tucked and stitched effects featured. Brims were popular but they were narrow and often turned up close around the crown in a variety of new ways.

Felt, new crepe-like wools, velour cloth and some dull silks were shown for daytime. Velvets led for evening with shirred, transparent velvet and Chenille favored. Soleil felt, satin, and a number of feathered turbans were for formal wear. Black was the predominating color.

-B. C. FIG TREE—The following clipping will be of interest to friends of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Crosby of Banff, Alberta. The clipping is taken from a British Columbia paper and headed, B. C. Fig Tree Not Meant for Nudists. Light is thrown on mysterious planting. Nature had nothing to do with being kind to the Doukhobors in the matter of the mysterious fig tree on Pier Island, beyond dutifully encouraging it to grow during the past forty years, and it is now no mystery. Henry F. Seaton just out from England forty years ago landed on Pier Island and with a certain amount of nursery stock, which included the Garden of Eden's famous clothing emporium, and which he planted. The solution of the mystery was produced today by Henry Seaton's daughter, Mrs. Gertrude E. Crosby, of Deer Lake Hotel, Lake Louise, who writes as follows: "Not only does Mrs. Crosby remember assisting her father in planting the tree, but she has documentary evidence proving her statement, after some years farming on Pier Island, Mr. Seaton moved to Vancouver Island and then to the mainland. Mrs. Crosby emphatically states that her father did not plant the fig tree for the benefit of the Doukhobors." Mrs. Crosby's husband is a son of Mrs. Albert Crosby of Summerside.

The efforts of researchers to check bleeding of this type with a diet very rich in proteins and fats—diet composed of meat, milk, butter, marrow fat and the like. It was incidentally found, moreover, that gelatin increases the clotting power of the newborn babies who may be given to bleeding. The most acute forms of the disease can be controlled only by blood transfusion. In desperate cases the spleen must be removed. The second form of bleeding is due not to any deficiency in the blood itself but to weakness in the walls of the arteries and veins. Injuries of various kinds bring about this form of bleeding. The Czarevitch, for example, injured his leg as a child. Injection of the prostatic glandular extract reinforces the blood vessels throughout the body but does not correct any blood deficiency that may be present. From report of amateur performance: "The play was a success, even if one of the young ladies did suffer a lapsus linguae in the second act." The class had been told to make sketches of what they most desired and one girl handed in a blank sheet of paper. "Don't you desire anything?" asked the teacher. "Yes," was the reply, "but I can't draw it. I want a holiday."
