Small docket At Georgetown Supreme Court

Mr. Justice A. E. Arseneault, in his address to the Grand Jury at the July term of the Supreme Court in Georgetown yesterday referring to the rules as to those walking on the Highways, which will greatly assist motorists in avoiding accidents. We have revised the lists of Constables and Fence Viewers and brought them up to date. (Signed) Seymour C. Knight, for Self and Fellows.

ADDRESS TO JURY

The following address to the jury was delivered by Mr. Justice Arseneault:
"It is now twenty years since I first addressed a Grand Jury in this County of Kings.
"On the occasion of that first address there was one criminal case before the Court. It was alleged that this criminal was insane and therefore not responsible for his acts. A jury was empanelled to pronounce on his sanity and this jury found that he was insane and so, in pursuance to the practice in such cases, he was not required to stand trial but was committed to the Provincial Hospital for the insane.
"I am very pleased to say since then I have not had to try a criminal in Kings County. Some day, sooner or later, I will have to retire through resignation or death from my judicial functions. I sincerely trust that when that time comes it will be said that I had not been called upon to try a criminal in this County.
"This dreadful war, in which the British Empire is engaged, is still raging with all the fury which a ruthless enemy has put into it. The invasion of Russia by Germany has eased the pressure on the British Forces and it may well be that the desperate struggle in which Russia and Germany are now engaged will be the turning point and mark the beginning of Germany's defeat.
"But we must remember that Germany is immensely strong and powerful, and the British Nation has been warned that this is no time to slacken our efforts but that all our energies must continue to be directed to the common goal at which now together with Russia we are aiming, that is—the defeat of Germany.
"Prince Edward Island's contribution in men, in money, and in war service work, is admirable and we may well be proud of our accomplishment in this respect.
"A year ago I tried to point out to you our duty as loyal subjects. When England is at war it means, whether we want to or not, that the Empire is at war and that the Crown to which we as British subjects owe allegiance is in peril. They are there of their own free will, and I am here tonight to ask all young Canadians to come forward also and fight tyranny of their own free will.
"This should be sufficient to bring our young men to a sense of their duty to the King and Country. The King and Empire must be protected and saved at all cost and I believe that it will be done voluntarily and that our Canadian young men are loyal enough and have a sufficient sense of their responsibility in this respect to make compulsory service unnecessary. The volunteer who serves through a sense of duty is worth two who serve because they have been compelled to do so.
"The poet has said, 'Thrice is he armed who hath his quarrel just' and so, confident in the justice of our cause, our armies are fighting and will fight in a cause which, under the protection and decree of Divine Providence, will be made to prevail and it may well be that the present conflict between the Germans and the Russians is a part of such decree, and we sincerely pray that it is so.
"I am pleased that there are no indictments which you have to consider at this term. Your work will therefore be light.
"You will inspect the Court House premises and the Jail and report on what you find. At this term you will also appoint the County Constables and the Fence Viewers and having done this and made your report your work will be completed.
"I now leave you to the performance of your duties with confidence that it will be well done."

Grand Jury Report

The following report was submitted by the Grand Jury:
"To His Lordship the Honourable Mr. Justice Arseneault, Presiding Judge.
"We, the Grand Jury, heartily concur in the remarks of Your Lordship on the subject of our National War Effort. We have the most profound admiration for the manner in which the people of the British Isles, both soldiers and civilians, have acquitted themselves in withstanding the terrific onslaught of Nazi attacks. We recognize the necessity of building up the Empire's forces and equipment to a point which will enable Britain not only to ward off all attacks, but to achieve final victory through vigorous offensive action.
"The record of Prince Edward Island stands high, both in contributions of men and material to the national cause, and our County Capital of Georgetown is said to have provided the highest number of enlistments of any town in Canada, in proportion to its population. We strongly endorse your Lordship's statement that every citizen should endeavour to protect and serve his King and country by whatever means are in his power.
"We have examined the premises of the County Court House and

Must Obey Laws

"To be faithful to the Sovereign we must not only obey his laws, we must protect and defend him against his enemies; if we refuse to do this then we are not faithful to our oath, we are not loyal.
"Of course there are many ways in which we can show our allegiance. For those who through age, infirmity, or for other reasons are unable to fight the King's battles, they can help and show their loyalty by other services such as supplying his army with food, with clothing, with arms and munitions, or by supplying the money with which to purchase these, but as all of these would be useless unless we have an army to fight the battles and protect the Crown, then those who are medically fit must offer themselves for military service.
"One young man is under the same military obligation as another and those who have already enlisted and are doing their duty certainly have the right to expect that other young men will do likewise.
"The Minister of Justice, the Honourable Mr. LaPointe in a reciting address recently said:
"What are our young men going to do? Surely they would not like to feel that other men are flying the planes, sailing the ships, and shooting the guns that will save their own country, their families, their liberties and themselves? Those other men also like and want peace, as we all want peace. But they are willing to fight for it! They are there of their own free will, and I am here tonight to ask all young Canadians to come forward also and fight tyranny of their own free will.
"This should be sufficient to bring our young men to a sense of their duty to the King and Country. The King and Empire must be protected and saved at all cost and I believe that it will be done voluntarily and that our Canadian young men are loyal enough and have a sufficient sense of their responsibility in this respect to make compulsory service unnecessary.
