Canada has the finest inland fishing known today, but these splendid food and game fish require plenty of clear, cold water in the streams in order to ensure prolific reproduction. Forest fires help to destroy this possibility by causing drought, erosion, and absence of shade. It therefore behooves every fisherman, says the Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior, to make sure his fire is quenched after the noon lunch and that it is always safest to do his smoking in the boat or canoe.

NYAL CREOPHOS

This valuable remedy possesses unusual value in run down conditions showing a loss of flesh and a tendency toward weak lungs. Creosote is a most valuable antiseptic and in this combination will be found most effective in chronic bronchitis, lingering deep-seated, stubborn coughs and asthmatic conditions. Nyal Creophos also fortifies the system enabling weak constitutions to successfully combat the inroads of disease germs. Gives appetite, increases flesh and improves the general condition. Price $1.00 a bottle.

World War. Economic and financial conditions in the Republic were alarming. What was the first step taken at Washington to restore national prosperity? The adoption of a protective policy and the repeal of the reciprocity treaty.

That was sixty years ago, but is still within the memory of many elderly Canadians. What has happened in the States since then? Sixty years of unexampled prosperity, a growth of eighty millions in population and the Republic now leads every other nation in manufacturing industry, in production and wealth. It has built for itself, not of necessity at all, but for the glory of possession the greatest navy in the world, overtopping in effective strength that of Britain, which for a century had been the proud Mistress of the Seas.

ined that the Master had made a mistake, or that they had heard him incorrectly. At any rate they all passed over the saying. But Paul did not. He who had abandoned a social position and an assured career for the service of the Galleen, he who had given more than any of them, he heard the words and remembered. He understood.

Are they empty words? Do they bring destruction upon a business which regards them seriously? Is a man a fool to let them be a guiding influence in his life? I talked one day with H. G. Wells after his Outline of History had appeared. I said: "You have stood upon a mountain and viewed the whole panorama of human progress. You have seen the captains and the kings, the princes and the prophets, the scientists and the adventurers, the millionaires and the dreamers—all the billions of human atoms that have lived and loved and struggled their little hour upon the earth. In this vast army what heads rise above the common level? Among all those who have fought for fame, who have actually achieved it? What half dozen men among them all deserve to be called great?"

He turned the question over in his mind for a day or two, and then gave me a list of six names, with his reasons for each. An extraordinary list! Jesus of Nazareth, Buddha, Asoka, Aristotle, Roger Bacon, Abraham Lincoln. "Think of the thousands of emperors who have battled for fame; who have decried themselves immorally into monuments of brick and stone. Yet there is only one emperor, Asoka, on the list; and he is there not because of his victories but because he voluntarily abandoned war, after his success, and devoted himself to the betterment of his millions of subjects. Think of the hosts who have struggled for wealth, fretting over figures, denying their generous instincts, cheating and grasping and worrying. Yet no millionaire is on the list, excepting again Asoka. Who sat on the throne in Rome, when Jesus of Nazareth hung on the cross? Who ruled the hosts of Persia when Aristotle thought and taught? Who was King of England when Roger Bacon laid the foundations of modern scientific research?"

The tumult and the shouting dies, The capitals and the kings depart. And when the historian, looking over the field where they contended for the prize, seeks for something which has endured, he finds the message of a teacher, the vision of a scientist, the vision of a seer. "These six men stood on the corners of History," said Wells in his picturesque way. "Events hinged on them. The current of day they have made the wall higher and higher.

We are not enamored of the very high tariff across the border. From the days of McKinley to Fordney it has been aimed at Canada, to cripple as far as possible Canadian industry and production. Today there is no country under the sun that really needs high protection less than the United States, because the abundance of their natural resources and the wealth of their manufacturing industries, the extent of their home market, shut in to themselves and the prodigious scale on which they have established mass production. Canada with a common boundary of three thousand miles against this great rival, needs a protective tariff wall much more than the Republic needs it.

And what has Canada been doing during recent years in tariff matters? Little by little since 1921 the Dominion has been lowering its tariff and increasing its imports from across the border. There we buy coal, cotton, tobacco, iron, steel, and semi-tropical fruits to the tune of hundreds of millions of dollars yearly. There we have sent since 1921 half a million of our Canadian people to better their condition by finding employment under a protective tariff, because employment is denied them at home. In the process immigration to Canada has fallen off to half or a quarter of what it was in the days when our farmers and producers were better protected than they have been of late. And immigrants from the world have been thronging the gates of the United States, only to be shut out by the quota law.

Better protection for Canadian farmers is promised by the Meighen Government and was recently put in force by order-in-council against the dumping of foreign farm products. That measure alone will be worth millions to Canadian farmers within the present year. There has been much lying during the election campaign about Mr. Meighen's tariff policy. "Brick for brick" is his announced policy on farm products only, as he has repeatedly stated. On other goods, manufacturers and products he has never proposed high protection, but "adequate protection" always. It is a poor cause that needs to be supported by misrepresentation.

"Brick for brick," equal rates of duty on both sides of the boundary, would benefit the Canadian farmer and harm no one. Mr. Robb when he was in Charlottetown took some pains to show that on some articles of farm production—a few only—the U. S. duties are no higher than the Canadian. What he did not state was the fact that in other lines they are two or three times the Canadian rate. Let them be levelled up. That would be but fair all round and nobody would have cause to complain. It would mean millions of dollars in the pockets of Canadian farmers, and no small benefit to the farmers of Prince Edward Island. Is it not worth trying?

human thought was freer and clearer because they had lived and worked. They took little from the world and left it much. They did not get; they gave; and, in the giving, gained eternal influence."

Canada has had many striking agriculture developments in the last decade, says the Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior, but none has been more surprising than the growth of the dairy farming in the prairie provinces in the last few years. Not only has very substantial dairy production been obtained, but the quality of the products marketed has commanded immediate recognition at home and abroad. At the Dairy Show held in London, England, an Edmonton dairy won first prize in the salted butter class and the second award went to the Shoal Lake, Manitoba, creamery. In the unsalted class a Regina creamery won the premier award.

Corns Soften In Foot Bath

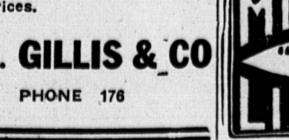

Hot water extraction of corns and callouses offers the only perfect way to rid yourself of these painful troubles. Take just a minute or two and spread a few drops of Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor over the sensitive surface of the corn or callous, and the pain is stopped at once. Then you will forget your corns, because they will not pain. Later you use a hot foot bath for five or ten minutes. Corns crumple up and drop off. It is a grand and glorious feeling that you get from Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor. It costs but little, and is sold by all druggists.

Well-known Rates Expert Retires

W. B. Lanigan, general freight traffic manager, Canadian Pacific Railway, has retired from his position in the company after forty-two years continuous service. Mr. Lanigan is recognized as one of the outstanding authorities on rail rates on this continent and was handling these questions long before the Board of Railway Commissioners came into existence. His wide experience will still be at the disposal of the C.P.R., since he is retained in the company's service for occasions when his expert knowledge may be required. Otherwise, he will be living in Victoria, B.C., where he will devote himself to his favorite hobbies, playing golf and raising roses.
