CANADA'S NEED.

AS expounded by the Montreal Herald, a Liberal newspaper Canada's great need is capital, not immigration. It admits that "Canada can do with immigration and lots of it, but Canada specially needs millions of investing capital to open up manufacture and export her material resources."

The earnestness with which he is heard wherever he goes indicates very clearly that public opinion in Canada is steadily turning towards a stable Canadian policy and is as steadily refusing to believe in a make-shift policy whose obvious purpose is to secure the support of those who are ready to believe that tariff reduction means a reduction in the cost of living and in taxation.

THE POLITICAL SITUATION.

THE British Columbia victory by the Conservative party has created something like panic in Liberal circles. The Government of Saskatchewan, under Premier Gardiner had prepared for an election immediately after the expected Liberal victory in British Columbia.

ORGANS.

AN organ is a mechanical instrument so fashioned as to do mechanically whatever it is designed to do. Certain newspapers find it necessary to designate as organs newspapers expressing views different from their own.

Party newspapers in Canada are not the mechanical mouthpieces of their respective parties or at least they should not be. The history of Canada during the past sixty years is sufficiently full to provide reasons for party newspapers.

The National Policy which built up Canadian industries is the only policy which can consistently be expected to continue the building process. Stability and instability are now on trial and the people know how both have worked out.

VARIETY.

EQUALITY of income is a doctrine which is today receiving considerable attention, largely because of a recent publication by G. Bernard Shaw, one of the cleverest and also one of the most erratic of British writers.

We are as we are, made so by nature and our feeble attempts at uniformity or equality will avail nothing. Incomes depend very largely upon earnings. There may be injustices and hardships, but they will not be benefited by an artificial uniformity.

Notes by the Way

THIS week promises to be one of the most important and interesting, not only of the year, but of the past decade. On Wednesday we shall have with us the "Young Ambassadors of Empire," a host of young literary and educational people from the Mother Land who, as the result of essay competition had won travelling scholarships, or an educational tour, through Canada.

They have been designated the "Young Ambassadors of Empire" and a happier description could not have been bestowed upon them, for these youths and maidens will serve to convey to us what the Empire means to them at the centre, and will carry back with them how we look upon the Empire and consider its importance in this great Dominion, "daughter in her Mother's House, and mistress in her own."

The visit of the young Ambassadors will be brief, and it is all the more important that the most should be made of it by those of our citizens who may be privileged to meet them. The "glad hand" should be given them by everyone, and on every occasion. The friendly hand-grasp often means more than the spoken word and a few questions about the young people's home town and their ambitions will put us on a pleasant footing with them without delay.

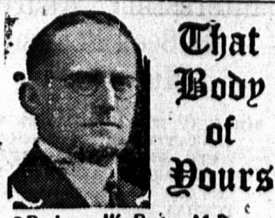

Next day the "Apostle of Home Industries," Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett arrives, and a sorrowful scene will meet his eyes en route, for he will see the first contingent of harvest excursionists en route for the West per C. P. R., and should he remain overnight at Borden he will see the second contingent leave per C. N. R. on the morning of the 10th.

It is not every day a new leader of a great party visits our shores, and therefore we ought to make the most of the present occasion. Moreover, Mr. Bennett is not only a new, and a chosen, leader, but a leader who has already earned his spurs in Parliament, and in the campaign throughout Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia he has already carried through. Everywhere Mr. Bennett has spoken he has left a most favorable impression.

According to a writer in the London "Daily Sketch," "people experienced in public speaking tell me that the greatest test of success is the still silence of an audience. If the audience rocks with laughter or is cheering every other sentence, depend upon it that the effect of the speech will not be permanent."

Miss Bennett is playing an important part in the present political campaign, and has been received with enthusiasm wherever she has spoken. Perhaps it may be news to most of our readers, though it is no fault of Mr. Bennett's that he is not accompanied by a Prince Edward Island lady as his wife. A few years ago, before he ever dreamt of becoming Liberal-Conservative leader, Mr. Bennett laid siege at the heart of a brilliant young Royal Victoria Hospital nurse, who happened to be an Islander. Alas, for Mr. Bennett's success the young lady had already lost her heart to a wealthy Nova Scotia mine owner, to whom she has now been happily married for some years.

The late Sir Louis Davies never travelled without his travelling flask and did not hesitate to have recourse to it on the train when he so desired. Sir Louis never sought to hide his personal opinion upon this search of personal luggage as being ultra vires, and it is certain if ever an appeal case on the point had reached the Supreme Court of Canada it would have got its quetus. In Ontario an attempt was made to enforce it for a time, but the public indignation was so great, and the disastrous effects upon railway traffic from Quebec and Manitoba so enormous that it was speedily abandoned. When will the Saunders Government profit by such experience?

NEARLY CRAZY

Someone has said that everybody is really crazy, but that if you are not too crazy you can get along all right and will not be placed in a mental hospital.

Dr. C. M. Hincks tells us that folks that really do the big things in life, folks that are interesting because they are different, are often near the borderline of insanity.

The insane person is born normal and becomes insane, but he is unable by some flaw of mind or disposition, or nervous system, to adapt himself to circumstances of living.

Now all of us have likes and dislikes but in our everyday life as we come in contact with other folks we learn to control these likes and dislikes.

In the school playground he learns to take his place in the game, and must stand on his feet; no one to take his part. He'll be treated fairly, but must learn also to treat the other youngster fairly.

This should prevent any flaw of mind or disposition, or nervous system, to get any chance to develop. Schools and playgrounds then are a great investment for any community.

The present one-man Prohibition Commission seems greatly concerned over the revelation about hold-ups of passengers at Borden and its effects upon tourist traffic.

But the question at issue between the Tourist Association and the Prohibition Commission is not the punishment or otherwise of parties bringing in wine or other alcoholic liquid in their valises, but the effect of train searches by Prohibition officers on the tourist traffic which it is the prime object of the Tourist Association to encourage and develop.

The late Sir Louis Davies never travelled without his travelling flask and did not hesitate to have recourse to it on the train when he so desired. Sir Louis never sought to hide his personal opinion upon this search of personal luggage as being ultra vires, and it is certain if ever an appeal case on the point had reached the Supreme Court of Canada it would have got its quetus.

THE SOCIAL MENACE OF THE SPEAK-EASY

(From the Literary Digest, Aug. 4, 1928.)

Speak-easies, night clubs, and dance halls are said in the annual report of New York's Committee of Fourteen, a non-partisan organization composed of Jews, Catholics, and Protestants, to have evolved an American counterpart of the Geisha girl, and to have developed vice conditions worse than those which existed under the old Raines law, which the Committee was organized to reform.

The survey cites 7,500 cases, and goes into detail of the activities of the trained investigators, some of whom were turned over to the Committee by the American Social Hygiene Association. The main body of the report was written by Mr. Worthington, and Dr. James Pedersen, Chairman of the Committee, contributes an introduction.

Warren, "for the courageous manner in which he is dealing with the many difficult problems that come to his department for solution in this complex city."

In its rather appalling description of New York's modern dens of nocturnal trysting and illicit drinking, the report describes the hostess of the night club and speak-easy as "the American counterpart of the Geisha girl, and we read on: "She is employed for the main purpose of increasing the sales of"
