ENCOUNTER.
Spring and Winter met on the road. Winter was chill and surly; "Go back," he said, "to the other side of the hill, you are far too early."
But Spring advanced with a slow, sure step. Amused at his silly warning, she tossed him a spray of dogwood blooms. And bid him a curt "Good morning."
—Carolyn Sloat in the New York Sun.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS
Do you wear glasses and do they get hazy when you enter a warm room from the cold outdoors, or when you're overheated?
Try smearing them with soap on both sides and then rubbing them clean with a doeskin cloth.

These Simple Hints Bring Success in Love

Attract the Man of Your Dreams
Do men ignore you now? Don't imperil your future happiness by deciding you're "different" from your more popular friends.
Examine your personality honestly. Every woman has the power to captivate—and you, too, can learn the winsome ways that inspire love.
Perhaps you hide behind a mask of indifference that repels the new men you meet. How quickly you can break down this barrier by remembering that the average man—no matter how self-sufficient he seems—is secretly unsure of himself. He craves the sympathy, understanding, and admiration only a woman can give.
Or you may seem too eager for attention. Be gay and friendly with a new beau, but never invent excuses to see him. Assume your time and company are precious and he'll go out of his way to win a share of them.

Large cakes which contain fruit should be of a stiff consistency, otherwise the fruit will sink during baking. Plain and small cakes should be softer to prevent them from being too dry when baked.
Never cool too quickly, and keep it away from drafts. Do not attempt to store it until it is quite cold, then wrap it in grease-proof paper in an airtight tin.
An easy way to cream butter and sugar, when butter is hard, is by warming the sugar slightly.

FASHION GUIDES FOR THE HOME DRESSMAKER

With spring in view... step out smartly right now in this black and pink printed crepe silk. It has a soft becoming draped neck... sheathes the figure in slenderizing lines... outrageously flattering to young or mature figures. Black silk marisette is stunning for the formal length for dinner or dance "dates." The skirt has plenty of swing, wickedly split open at the front. What a joy to sew... moves out in one with the shoulders. Complete diagrammed sewing instructions included makes the pattern so easy to follow.

Style No. 3426 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44-inches bust. Size 36 requires 3 5/8 yards of 36-inch material with 1-4 yard of 27-inch contrasting for street length dress.

Who Dies In Your Home? Dorothy Dix Many Parents Bessed by Kids

Chicken-Pecked Parents Are About the Most-to-Be-Pitied Creatures in the World, and Yet They Have Nobody to Blame But Themselves

The rooster-pecked wife and the henpecked husband are indeed worthy of our compassion, but they make no such pull upon our sympathies as do the chicken-pecked parents who are one of the saddest by-products of our modern civilization.

Heaven knows it is bad enough to see a poor, cowering woman who has been so brow-beaten by her husband that she dares not call her soul her own. It is worse to see a lying wife that he jumps whenever she speaks, answers meekly "yes ma'am," and lets her tell him where he gets on and gets off. But the most pathetic sight in the world is that of the parents who have been so subjugated by their children that they live in terror of doing something that will offend their august masters.

Yet this is a common spectacle, and the only thing that keeps us from bursting into tears when we behold it is because we have become so used to it that we have become hardened to it. Otherwise we would be parents to rebellious against their oppressors, perhaps. Or, at any rate, pass a few resolutions expressing our condolences. Or something.

Of course, fathers and mothers no more admit to being chicken-pecked than husbands admit to being henpecked, but the fact remains that it is done just the same. There is hardly a household where the children do not rule the roost and where the parents do not obey the children instead of the parents being in authority, as was the custom in the days when the quaint idea prevailed that an adult had better judgment and more knowledge of the world than a teething infant.

But that archaic idea is now obsolete. In his cradle little Johnny begins asserting his autocratic powers and bringing his parents into serfdom. He sets his tiny foot upon their necks and they never even dream of trying to wriggle out from under it. They become slaves who spend the balance of their lives toiling to provide him with luxuries. So how do they sink that in many cases they cease to have any individuality and are only known as Johnny's or Mary's papa and mama.

It is the children who get all the fine clothes while their parents go shabby. It is the children who decide where and how the family shall live. Nothing is more common than to hear a man say: "It is awfully inconvenient for me to live so far away from my business, but the children like it in the country." And we have all been to houses where the food would have anything on the table to eat that wasn't good for the juvenile tummy and that the children couldn't eat.

Of course, having been taught from their infancy that they were superior to their parents; that their fathers and mothers were provided by nature to wait on them and give them fine clothes and cars and things, you can't wonder that the youngsters look down upon their underlings and feel it only a kindness to rule the poor sumps for their own good.

As soon as he gets home from college, John begins to tell Father how inefficiently he manages his business; to point out his mistakes to him; to criticize his staff and to puncture Father's little pink balloon of pride in his success. Mary moves Mother out of the comfortable old home she has lived in for twenty years into a little two-by-four apartment in a smart neighborhood, and makes her give up her old friends for people who don't want to know her. She drags Mother to the beauty shop and has her done up until she is ashamed to look herself in the face. She corrects her grammar and pronunciation, the way she sits and stands and eats until she makes life a burden to her.

Ninety per cent of the parents you know are scared to death of their children. If you don't believe this, watch 'em. When John and Mary are around they are nervous, ill at ease, self-conscious. It is only when they are out from under their children's watchful eyes that they bloom into being themselves.

Of course, if parents will permit themselves to be chicken-pecked, they have only themselves to blame, but none the less there is a cruel fate that entitles them to wear both a fool's cap and a martyr's crown.

Start Seeds Indoors and Out In Seedboxes

MEAT LOAF I.
2 lbs. minced beef
1 cup cracker or fine bread crumbs
1-2 cup milk
1 egg, beaten
1 onion minced
2 teaspoon chopped parsley
1 teaspoon summer savory
salt and pepper
1 teaspoon Worcestershire Sauce.
Mix all thoroughly and form into loaf. Sprinkle the outside with flour and put it into a well greased bread or loaf cake tin and dot with suet or bacon dripping. Cook in a hot oven to brown the top quickly, then more slowly for 1 1/2 hours. It will also almost equally well hot or cold and is excellent served with a tin of unminced tomato soup heated and poured over it.

MEAT LOAF II.
1 lb. minced beef
1 1/2 lb. minced fresh pork off the butt
1-2 lb. sausage meat
1 egg
1 can tomato soup or 1-2 bottle Tomato Catsup
salt and pepper.
Mix all these thoroughly, put strips of bacon in the bottom of the loaf cake pan, form the mixture into a loaf, sprinkle the top with flour and bake it in a medium hot oven until the top is brown. It takes about two hours. Any special pickle is very good with this, particularly the kind of chopped up what-have-you called variously chow chow, tomato butter or "home style" pickles.

plants may grow as sturdy as possible before they are moved. With the coarser seeds, sow thinly in rows 2 inches apart and when the seedlings appear, thin out so that each stands alone without crowding. With the finer seeds, it will help to broadcast the seeds rather than sowing in rows. Take a separate flat for each variety and scatter the seeds over the whole box. They will have more room to grow this way.

Transplanting may be done as soon as plants have made true leaves. This means the second pair of leaves to appear. If they are left in the box longer than this, they should be thinned out, if necessary, and allowed to develop without restraint from crowding.
Slow germinating subjects are usually best handled in a flat or flower pot, which can be given regular care until the seedlings appear.

A Morning Smile

There was a loud knock at the door, and the doctor, who had just settled down for a nap, got up indignantly.
"What is it?" he asked a little boy standing outside.
"I've been bitten by a dog," the lad answered.
"Well, don't you know that my surgery hours are from three to seven?" asked the doctor, crossly.
"Yes," replied the boy sadly. "But the dog didn't."
