The demand was now being renewed and horse breeding should again come into its own.

TO DISCUSS THE CINDERELAS OF MEDICINE

LONDON, April 26—(C. P.) Social and professional status of midwives, hitherto "the Cinderellas of medicine" will be discussed at the sixth congress of the International Midwives Union here May 25-29. Miss G. B. Garter described it as a burning question. "We must change it by attracting to midwifery the very best type entering the nursing profession," she said. The midwife in the United Kingdom at present is not a salaried person. She may have only 20 pence and she may have 200 cases a year. "We hope at the congress to go very thoroughly into the matter of training," she said. "This country gives a shorter period of training than any other in the world. Holland gives three years, we give from six months to a year." It is announced the Duchess of York will attend the opening meeting.

FAITH THE MAINSTAY OF BLIND WOMEN

TORONTO, April 26—(C. P.) Miss Mary Ayers of Toronto, graduate of Toronto Western Hospital in 1928, has been totally blind for six years but does not let that interfere with her bright outlook on life. She manages a news and tobacco stand at the hospital and manages it as well as people realize. "I am blind," Miss Ayers can tell the denomination of a money bill by the texture except when the money is badly crinkled. "You sighted folk" she says, "haven't enough faith in mankind and that is the result mainly of your visual imagination." Miss Ayers was night supervisor at the Brantford General Hospital until stricken with illness that left her blind.

Students Should See Well Every pupil whose studies require the daily use of his eyes for close work should learn if he strains his eyes. This must more than be a question of eye welfare. Defective eyes often cause lack of concentration—careless application—failure. Thus a modern eye service is a recognized aid to success, even in youth.

HEALTH

A HEALTH SERVICE OF THE CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION THROUGH THE INSURANCE COMPANIES IN CANADA

GOOD COMPLEXIONS

To say that beauty is only skin deep is not true, because beauty comes from within and the skin cannot be healthier than the body it covers. The healthy skin is a beautiful skin. It is fair, clear complexion which every one admires and which many try to imitate by artificial means. Faulty habits of living lead to the loss of health which the skin reveals in pallor, flabbiness, blotches, pimples or other such blemishes.

The skin is made up of two layers; the outer, a covering or protection, and the inner, or true skin, containing the glands, blood vessels and nerves.

The healthy skin is slightly moist, soft and pliable. Dry or oily skin is an indication that the glands are not functioning properly. There are two sets of glands in the skin, one for perspiration and the other for oil. If these glands are overactive, the skin is moist and oily; if they are underactive, the skin is too dry. There is only one proper way to treat an abnormal skin condition, and that is by correcting the underlying cause. Local applications will not make a healthy skin; the person who fails to secure sufficient rest or to eat a proper diet. All parts of the body are nourished by the blood stream. There is no food for the skin, either external or internal, any more than there is for the rest of the body. Eat a proper diet, and the skin, along with all the parts of the body will receive all the food it requires.

The skin must be kept clean. There is a quaint idea that soap and water are not good for the complexion, and that grease, in the comparatively expensive form of a facial cream, should be used. The fact that men, as a group, have better complexions than women would seem sufficient evidence to indicate that the daily lathering of the face with soap and water is rather to be recommended than avoided.

Regular bathing is enjoyed by most people. It is desirable because it overcomes bodily odours, gives a sense of well-being, and keeps the skin clean. The daily bath is not essential to health; it is rather a desirable privilege. We would advise those who have good complexions to remember that continued attention to the general health will preserve their healthy skins. Those who have not good complexions are reminded that the skin cannot be healthier than the body within, and, in this connection, they should think of the habits of living.

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

Wild Horses In the West

CRAIG, Col., April 26—Wild horses still may be had for the catching in northwestern Colorado, but it is a lot harder than it was in the days of the government guide. Mr. Jenkins, government guide, said he believed as many as 1,500 of the animals are roving the cedar brakes and sand washes in region eighty-five miles northwest of Craig. The open country, with its rolling hills, is strewn with mesas and canyons, with creeks draining into Little Snake River. The vermilion bluffs bound it on the south and the bad lands of the Red Desert in Wyoming on the north.

Mr. Jenkins said he saw one herd of wild horses after another. Each numbering ten or twelve head, almost as rugged and unnamed as when the first ranchers guided their teams to new homes.

His companion on many of his travels was "Blim" Hartman, Graystone, Col., ranchman, who attempts to catch the horses in much the same manner as he does coyotes. "The sets snares made of rawhide lariats to which iron hooks have been fastened. The idea is that the horse will catch a leg in the leather loop, and as it starts to run, the hook will grip a tree or rock, stopping the animal," Mr. Jenkins said. "Sometimes works but more often doesn't."

Insects Will Destroy Man LONDON, April 26—Man will eventually be wiped out by the insect world. This is the startling view of A. Moore Hogarth, chairman of the College of Pathology, who has made a life study of insects. In his research laboratory in London are thousands of bugs from all parts of the world.

In the opinion of Professor Hogarth the end of the world will not be caused by a calamity such as an earthquake or flood, but by the ascendancy of the insect world over man. "The trouble is that men in their ignorance take no organized steps to fight the insect menace, and they don't realize that insects have brains," he declared. Insects would one day conquer man, he said, because they have no main object in life—to satisfy hunger—while man's brain was distributed in various other interests. He pointed out that before the war mosquitoes were unknown in England, while now almost every one had been bitten by one or more.

Victoria

THE PRINCE AND THE CENTENARY

Prince George of Great Britain will leave Portsmouth for Australia on 31st August, and will arrive in Melbourne on 18th October. His visit is due mainly to Victoria's Centenary celebrations, but he will also travel to each of the other States, where preparations are being made for a royal joyful welcome. The invitations to the Centenary include men and women of distinction from many countries—statesmen, scientists, authors, artists, and those of achievement in other fields. The Marchese Marconi and his wife are amongst the early acceptors. An effort is being made to promote social festivities of rare distinction, attractive to travellers from both hemispheres.

AIR RACE ACROSS THE WORLD

As previously recorded, one of the great events of the Centenary will be an air race from England to Australia for rich prizes, including one of £15,000. According to the cables the following will be definite entrants:— AUSTRALIA—Air-Commodore Sir Charles Kingsford Smith. GREAT BRITAIN—Mr. and Mrs. James Molison, Captain Edgar Percival, Mr. Neville Stack and Lieut. Cathcart Jones and Miss Marcondale Nelson.

UNITED STATES—Captain Jimmy Doolittle, Colonel Roscoe Turner, Messrs. James Weddel, James Halpin and Wiley Post. INDIA—Aspi Engineer. A more modest entrant is secretly building a monoplane in the cellar of a grocer's shop at Sydney, near Sydney. The builder is said to be a man of exceptional daring and ingenuity. Discussions regarding the most suitable machine to win the Centenary Air Race reveal opposing schools of thought. One school argues that the ideal is a machine with terrific speed and of medium range, and the other prefers a long range machine with a crew of at least two, combined with a reasonably high cruising speed.

Mr. Granville Miller, of the de Lacker Company, has announced that he will construct two machines for the race—one to suit each theory. One will have a cruising speed of 200 m.p.h. with a maximum of 230 m.p.h., and range of 16 hours. The other will be a single seater, 625 h.p., with a cruising speed of 250 m.p.h., a maximum speed of 285 m.p.h., and a range of 1850 miles.

WOOL AND THE EXPORT TRADE

In the seven months of the financial year to January 31, Victoria exported wool valued at £3,156,072, compared with £4,610,122 for the corresponding period of 1932-33. The gain of £3,579,560 this year is more than twice the aggregate of decreases shown in the export values of bullion and specie, wheat, butter, mutton and lamb and tallow. Mr. Kingsford Smith and Colonel Roscoe Turner are the present favorites for the race.

IMPORTS DOWN, EXPORTS UP

Total imports for the seven months of the current financial year (from 30th June, 1933, to 30th June, 1934) are valued in sterling at $2,941,801, compared with $13,186,229 for the 1932-33 period, and a similar comparison for exports shows, in Australian currency, $1,698,781 for the year against $16,784,810 for the seven months of 1932-33. Imports have decreased by $225,828 and exports are up by $1,933,998.

ADVANCED HOME ARCHITECTURE

The most discussed piece of domestic architecture carried out in Victoria in recent years is the modern reinforced concrete house just built on a hilltop in the Dandenong Ranges—the high points of Melbourne's scenic grandeur—25 miles from Melbourne. It is set in the midst of 100 acres of beautiful hill country, and as it commands an exceptionally striking view, it is liberally windowed and provided with not only ample balconies but a flat roof on which is an observatory, a long range radio and two huge floodlights that take the place of the moon on dark nights. The house has been built to the order of Mr. A. M. Nicholas, who, with his wife and two children, is making it his country home. He has unlimited water, unlimited electricity and unlimited resources in general.

RUSS-BRITISH FACT TOLD

The new trade agreement between Russia and Great Britain, contrary to those made with other countries does not deal with particular commodities, and contains no provision for guarantee of loans. Russia's purchases in Britain last year amounted to £31,250,000, while Great Britain bought from Russia nearly $87,500,000, a proportion of four to one. The agreement stipulates that the Soviet payments in Britain shall bear to the proceeds of the Soviet in the United Kingdom the following proportions: Year ending December 31, 1934—1 to 1; Year ending December 31, 1935—1 to 1; Year ending December 31, 1936—1 to 1; Year ending December 31, 1937—1 to 1.2. Thereafter an approximate balance of payments measured by the ratio 1 to 1 is to be maintained.
