RUSSO-JAPANESE WAR WAS UNIQUE

Conflict Raged For Eighteen Months on Neutral Territory Shedding Torrents of Blood—Japan Successes and Russian Reverses Surprised Everyone—Predicts That His Country Will Now Go to Work to Improve Conditions At Home

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Sept. 5.—Mr. Martens, having been requested by the Associated Press to express his views on the treaty, said in part: "If my opinion can, even in a small degree, enlighten the political situation and assist in a right and impartial appreciation of the treaty of Portsmouth, I am ready to say what I think. I have not the intention of condemning or praising anything and will limit myself to some rudimentary elements which may help in the formation of a just and enlightened public opinion.

"The last war between Russia and Japan has no precedent in the annals of international wars, it is 'unique and original' in its exploits as well as in the conditions of the struggle. Russia sustained reverses and misfortunes which nobody expected, Japan obtained successes which surprised even the Japanese patriots. When it is asked: 'Where was the theatre of war?' it is answered: 'It was in neutral territory. It must be admitted that such a war during eighteen months on the territory of a neutral state is an absolutely new condition in the annals of international relations. Considering these unique and extraordinary circumstances it is only too natural that the clauses of the treaty of peace signed today regard not the neutral states, Korea and China, but the territorial possessions of the two belligerent powers. It was only at the last moment, and at the opening of the peace conference that the territory of a part of the island of Sakhalin was occupied by the Japanese.

"On account of this situation the present treaty of peace between Russia and Japan will always attract the attention of jurists and diplomats. They will be astonished in seeing that after a terrible struggle during eighteen months between two great military powers, after having shed torrents of human blood, a treaty of peace was concluded the clauses of which regard almost exclusively Korea and Manchuria. The surprise of the future impartial historian will increase with the knowledge that before the war the Japanese predominance in Korea was already formally recognized and that Russia never intended to oppose the principle of the 'open door' in Manchuria so solemnly proclaimed by the treaty of Portsmouth.

"That is why Russia could not admit the Japanese pretension of a reimbursement for the cost of the war. A belligerent country the territory of which is intact and not occupied by the enemy is not vanquished and cannot pay war tributes. That is why Russia for love of peace sacrificed the southern part of Sakhalin. However all the other clauses of the treaty of peace regard Korea and Manchuria and show the incontestable fact that Russia, for the moment, abandoned the direction of distant and uncertain fields of the Far East. Personally I am convinced that after having known the clauses of the treaty of peace the Russian nation will not fret but will gather together all her forces for a new great struggle, not on the battlefield but on the field of productive work and of social and political progress. That is why, according to my deep and unshakable conviction, all the recrimination and reciprocal accusations provoked in my country by the disasters of war should cease. The moment of the gathering of all our forces, the moment of working conscientiously regardless of class or social position, has begun."

RAILWAY QUARREL CARRIED TO LONDON

C. P. R. and Great Northern Having a Fight to the Finish.

VANCOUVER, Sept. 5.—The latest move in the fight between the Canadian Pacific and the Great Northern Railways has taken place in London, England. For some weeks W. H. Aldridge, assistant manager of C. P. R. smelter at Trail, has been in London, where he has succeeded in having Anthon J. McMillan, managing director of the Leroi, turned out in favor of his own nominee, F. W. Holt. McMillan was the man who stood in the way of Leroi joining the big Rossland mines and the people who subsequently formed a merger of War Eagle, Centre Star and St. Eugene, the latter being southeast of Kootenay and a mine vastly different to the Red Mountain properties. Aldridge who has been in front of the deal, is now about to lay before the Leroi shareholders proposals for amalgamation which it is claimed will carry, seeing that McMillan is removed. If Aldridge gets his way the Leroi smelter at Northport will be closed down and all Rossland ore will be smelted at the Trail institution. Of course this will mean that the branch of the Great Northern from Rossland to Northport will lose its chief source of supply. Friends of the C. P. R. say this will be a very fair Roland for J. J. Hillis Oliver in feeding the grey smelter with fuel over an American road. It is claimed the saving to the Leroi will be one dollar a ton, or $300,000 a year in smelting charges.

HOW CONSUMPTION STARTS

Tired When You Wake—Languid All Day—Nerves Worn Out—Snap All Gone.

Your limbs feel "dreggy" and excessively weak. A night's sleep seldom brings satisfying rest. Continuous headaches, exhaustion and nervous sensations destroy your health. See every spark of vitality is used up. Then you catch tuberculosis.
