De We Need Diplomats?

This question is asked by Hamilton Fyfe in "Today and Tomorrow," and his answer is rather in the negative.

"We no longer care," he says, "to support expensive establishments in order that our royal family may receive family intelligence such as that which was sent through the Foreign Office on one occasion to Queen Victoria about the Crown Princes of Sweeden's baby—H.R.H is as well as can be expected but H. R. H. is suffering a little internally, and it is thought that this is due to the milk of the wet-nurse having been slightly scur.

"The value of the old diplomats will vanish, it seems to me, with the vanishing of the old diplomacy. We might keep a few of them in museums, but we should not let them any longer confront the twentieth century with the mummeries and futilities of the sixteenth. They have already outlived their day."

Salt In Ecuador.

Salt in Ecuador is obtained from the saltiness in the province of Guayas, Manabi, and El Toro. The works consist of blocks of land whose surface has been lowered a few feet, into which sea water is permitted to seep. The water is slowly evaporated by the sun, precipitating crystals and thus forming a considerable layer of salt, which is broken into pieces for distribution. It is estmated that the average quantity of salt consumed by each individual in Ecuador is thirteen pounds per annaum.

PREVENT RUSH TO SELL CATTLE THIS FALL

The fall of 1921 will prove a delicate, if not a critical, time in the Canadian cattle trade. If, due to panic, there is then a rush to sell cattle, it will demoralize the markets and do the very worst thing for farmers. At the same time it will load the refrigerators of the packing plants with a huge quantity of meat, probably from this cattle that packers do not want and will not be able to dispose of to the best advantage of the live-stock industry. As a precautionary measure, therefore, producers should carefully guard against a heavy rush to market in the fall months.

The state of the packing trade is very much like that which faces farmers themselves—labor costs, upkeep and all other charges still comparatively high yet with a declining market for the output.

A glut in the freezers this fall would inevitably bring about that which packers are as anxious as farmers are to avoid. i.e., a disastrous slump in prices. The basis of agricultural prosperity in Canada is the livestock industry, and a slump could not do other than injure producer, manufacturer and consumer.

Alone, packers cannot prevent this; with the co-operation of farmer-producers, much may be done to steady live stock market prices this fall. Farmers would be wise to get together and by co-operation with all organizations plan to spread their cattle shipments cautiously over the late summer and fall months and to hold all cattle on the farms that are not well finished.

What, from a business standpoint appeals to the packer is that the comparatively low prices at which feeders will probably be available this fall should be attractive to every farmer who has winter feed While no one can positively foretell market conditions next spring and early summer the history of past price depressions and advances makes packers believe that, if faced with the same condition in their own business, they would be justified in taking what risk there is and holding their stocks for the better conditions of next spring if it were feasible. But packers cannot hold fresh beef in the coolers long enough to protect the farmer in the market. If loaded heavily this fall, they would have to freeze the meat, adding expensive holding charges and bringing this into competition with fresh meat next spring.

It is probable that both railroad and ocean freight rates next spring will be much more favorable

TWO IMMEDIATE MARKET DEMANDS IN CANADA.

HOGS OF THE RIGHT TYPE.

A return to normal market conditions in Canadian bacon makes it imperative for packers again to discriminate in price against heavy and light and short and thick market hogs. The reaction in the export market especially agaisnt light weight and heavy weight products is very severe, and seriously affects the domestic trade.

During war the demand for all fats and most strikingly for pork almost "evened up" the price between select hogs and lights and heavies. The difference between prics for the product of selects and of light and heavy hogs is, however, now (July, 1921) so great that packers are being forced to make a difference in prices of selects and light hogs of from $1 to $2 per hundredweight and in heavies from $2 to $3.50 per hundredweight. How much further this will be forced, time only will tell. At present the grading is being done on weight alone, but it must be only a matter of short time before quality is given equal consideration. It will, however, take a little time to create standards of quality. In the meantime anyone wishing to escape the loss due to the present differences in prices has only to market the right weights. But grading on quality must soon come.

Packers have always realized that this condition must return. During and since the war they repeatedly warned breeders not to be led astray by the temporary state of the market which permitted one price to be paid for nearly all classes of hogs. The man who maintained the well known standards and bred the hog for the Canadian Wiltshire side will now benefit. So, also, the man who became lax is going to suffer.

It is all-important that farmers who are now breeding types and breeds of hogs that do not make select Wiltshire sides should get rid of them and stock with the breeds and types that do.

Old English Pickles

A very old recipe for mustard pickles calls for four cups of diced cucumbers, four cups of midget cucumbers, four cups of diced green tomatoes, four cups of small white onions, four large green peppers diced and one large cauliflower broken into small pieces; do not chop the above but cut in even sized dice. Cover with a brine made of half a cup of salt to eight cups of water and let stand twenty four hours. After twenty four hours bring to a boil in the brine, and then drain off all the brine. Mix to a paste six tablespoons of dry mustard, one cup of flour, one tablespoon of turmeric, one cup of sugar and one cup of vinegar and mix smooth. Place on the stove seven cups of mild vinegar, stir in the the spice paste and cook until smooth, stiring constantly. Mix with the drained vegetables and place in clean jars, seal tight and store in a cool dark place.

Philadelphia Pepper Hash

Another old time cold meat relish is called pepper hash. To make, place in kettle one quart of finely chopper bell peppers, seeds and stems discarded, one quart of finely chopped white cabbage and cover with one pint of vinegar and one pin of water, let come to a boil. remove from the fire and drain off all the liquor. Place the peppers and cabbage back in the kettle and add enough strong vinegar to cover, one tablespoon of mustard seed, two tablespoons of celery seed, one tablespoon of salt, and half a cup of brown sugar. Bring to a boil and cook five minutes. Bottle and seal while hot.

IN MEMORIAM

CHARLES STEWART ..

On July 2nd., Mr. Charles. Stewart late of Union Road, Queens Co., passed to his heavenly rest, in the seventy third year of his age.

Mr. Stewart had been ill since the first of March, and ailing for some time before. On March 29th. he was taken to the P. E. I. Hospital where after nearly a month of careful and skilled treatment he was able to return home. He did not regain strength however and was confined to his bed though in a hopeful and very patient frame of mind. A few days before he died a serious turn made plain to himself and his loved ones with him that the end was near. Though greatly weakened and rapidly sinking Mr. Stewart faced his departure with a noble christian spirit of peace and trust and submission to the Divine will. Funeral services were conducted in his late home by his pastor Rev. T. A. Wilson, taking as a guiding text 2 Cor. 1 3 and 4 "Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies and the God of all comfort etc." A long funeral procession followed the remains to its last resting place in the Harrington Cemetery. The Pall bearers were Messrs. Thomas Prowse, Jas Essery, Geo. Abbot, Alexander Stewart (chtn.) Col. Geo Crockett, and Geo. Bearisto. Mr. Stewart was born on the homestead on Brackley Road still held by his brother Mr. Alexander Stewart. In 1876 he married Miss Janie Stewart and the next year moved to North River. In 1885 Mr. Stewart and his family moved to his late home on Union Road, where his energy and ability as a successful farmer are everywhere evident. Mrs. Stewart predeceased her husband by twenty two years. The surviving members of the family are Lemuel married in Battleford Sask. Major John Alex., still in England since the war where he served with distinction, Robert Bruce at home and two daughters Margaret Annie and Bessie Jane also at home Mr. Stewart is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Eliz. Rood of Milton and Mrs. Margaret Stewart of Cavendish and a brother Mr Alexander Stewart of Harrington.

The sympathy of the entire community goes out to the bereaved family.

Colonial Preserves

Ripe tomato preserves are delicious when made after this old recipe. Peel seven pounds of ripe tomatoes and cover with seven pounds of sugar and let stand over night and in the morning strain off the syrup and boil for twenty minutes. Remove the tomatoes with a perforated skimmer and place them in sterlized jars. Continue to boil the syrup thick, adding the strained juice of three lemons, boil slowly after adding the tomatoes in the jars and seal when cold.

Russia's Roads.

Russia is almost a roadless land. It is inconceivable to the foreign visitor who has ever left the beaten track of the railways in Russia how a great empire can have subsisted so long and so successfully without even a pretence at road. The secret lies in the fact that for five or six months in the year nature herself provides roads over the greater part of Russia—admirable, smooth, glossy roadways over hard-worn snow. The traffic is further cheapened over these roads by the substitution of a sledge-runner for the wheel and axle. This brings the cost of land carriage as near the cheapness of water borne freight as possible, and it is the principal reason why Russia in the twentieth century is still a roadless land.
