Lindsey of the Veterans Guard of Canada who faced general court martial following escape of 28 German prisoners of war from a northwestern Ontario internment camp in April have been acquitted. The National Defence Department announced officially tonight.

The officers faced three charges of "neglect to the prejudice of good order and military discipline relating to the action and means taken by each . . . when acting as commandant of a prisoners of war internment camp for the detection of activities of the part of prisoners which might lead to their escape and for the prevention of escapes."

The semi-annual meeting of the women's auxiliary of the Anglican churches of P.E.I. was held in St. Mary's Parish hall, Summerside, yesterday with a very large attendance of members from all parts of the province. The day opened with corporate communion for the W. A. members at 10:30 in St. Mary's Church. Ven. Archbishop G. R. Harrison, rector, was the celebrant, assisted by Rev. Canon Malone, rector of St. Peter's Cathedral, Charlottetown, Rev. Ledrew Gardner, rector of St. Paul's Church, Charlottetown and Rev. Sidney J. Davies, St. Peter's Church, Alberton.

After routine business the teen aged girls of St. Paul's church presented a missionary pageant "In the spirit of the W. A." under the direction of Mrs. Gardner and was well received. Interesting reports were then given by the members of the board on their work.

This was followed by an address by Mrs. E. V. Bell, of Charlottetown, past president of the W. A. Mrs. Bell gave an interesting and informative account of the Bishop Horden Memorial School at Moose Factory in Ontario. She spoke of the development of the school and district since Bishop Horden commenced his work there about 100 years ago.

The meeting closed with prayers and God Save The King. Mrs. Wm. Strong, presided at the piano. Mrs. J. H. Pierce recording secretary took the minutes of the meeting. An innovation at this meeting was a basket lunch arranged and served by St. Mary's branch of the W. A.—S.

NEUTRALIZES POISON

Protection may be provided by washing hands and face and wiping legs with a five per cent solution of ferric chloride in a mixture of water and glycerine in equal parts. It neutralizes the poison. If applied immediately after exposure it will still be effective, but it is not useful as a cure.

Physicians can give desensitization treatments in case when people are particularly sensitive to the poison. The most immediate treatment when the Ivy poisoning infection is suspended is to scrub the skin with a strong laundry soap in tepid water—changing the water after each lathering—or preferably under running warm water to carry away the poison.

If this is done before the poison has a chance to penetrate the skin no other treatment is necessary. Washing with alcohol, kerosene or gasoline also helps to keep the poison from spreading.

Most widely recommended treatment is potassium permanganate. Once blisters have formed rubbing should be avoided. Baking soda, boracic acid solution are soothing. In the case of open sores no application should be made but such soothing lotions as calamine or lead acetate may be employed. Oily substances should never be used because they dissolve the vol-

Big Stars Fell Before Hubbell In '34 Classic

DETROIT, July 8—(CP)—Carl Hubbell has never been credited with winning one of baseball's annual All-Star games but he turned in perhaps the most spectacular exhibition produced in the mid-season classic's eight-year history.

Back in 1934 the Giant's screwball pitcher started for the Nationals. In the first inning, with two men on base, Hubbell struck out Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig and Jimmy Foxx. And in the second he fanned Al Simmons, Joe Cronin and Lefty Gomez. Six strikeouts in succession, five of them against the heaviest hitters in the game.

Hubbell had a 4-0 lead when he left the box but the Americans raged up on latter flingers and won, 9-7. Hubbell has done a pitching stint in five of the eight games without gaining official credit.

A Look In Time Saves Ivy Poison

OTTAWA, July 8—(CP)—Bugaboo of many a Canadian holiday is poison ivy. While there are cures for the little three-leaf plant's poison, the national health department suggests in its advice to vacationists that better than a cure is prevention. In other words learn to recognize the plant and give it a wide berth.

Poison ivy may appear as a low shrubby plant, bordering fences or as a climber like the Virginia creeper. But a little observation shows that it looks like no other plant.

The leaves are borne alternately on the stem and consist of three similar leaflets as in the strawberry. They are firm and quite smooth, even glossy. In the early part of the summer clusters of whitish flowers arise from the axils of the leaves and these are succeeded by round, dull white fruits about the size of a pea.

No other trifoliolate leaves at the same time, trifoliolate leaves and white fruits," is the information obtained at the department.

Poison ivy grows under a variety of conditions but is most commonly
