Scrappy Irishman Too Old To Fight

WINNIPEG, Jan. 30 — (CP) — Cpl. Earl Foley of No. 35 Company of the Veterans' Guard of Canada, self-styled the "fightingest Irishman," has only one ambition left in life--to present Hitler with a hot-lead present on his (Adolf's) and his (Foley's) birthday.

Cpl. Foley was born on the same day of the same year as Hilter, but before Adolf was through paperhanging Foley had begun the scrapping career during which he fought his way in and out of nearly every country in the world.

Foley has fought in every war, major or bush-league, since 1908 and he travelled almost around the world to get into this one. From Chungking to Toronto went Foley to get into the present fight, only to find that the 55 years he had spent in the fray and out of it had made him fit only for the Veterans' Guard in the opinion of the Canadian military authorities.

Foley can out-medal Goering if it comes to a showdown. He has 20-odd decorations which he is entitled to pin on his chest--everything from the French Croix de Guerre to the Sun Yat Sen Medal--given him for valor in everything from the Philippine Insurrection to the Mexican Border Wars.

Flying-Officer C. W. Walker, of South Australia, was reported missing from air operations over Germany last December, and later presumed to have lost his life. Others who joined the Air Force were M. G. Waite, W. A. Brown and E. L. McCormick.

Those who went into the Army were Ben Barnett (now a prisoner in Japanese hands), Stan McCabe, Lindsay Hassett, E. S. White and Frank Ward.

REMEMBER WHEN

By The Canadian Press

Just seven years ago today Max Schmeling's chances of meeting Jimmy Braddock for the world's heavyweight boxing championship exploded when Braddock signed to meet Joe Louis. Braddock had contracted to meet Schmeling — victor over Louis—but an offer of $500,000 with an option of 50 per cent of the gate for the Louis bout changed his mind. Louis won the title.

Canadiens Whip Rangers 5-3 For 23rd N. H. L. Win

NEW YORK, Jan. 30 — (AP)— Montreal Canadiens settled down to playing hockey after a furious first period scrap tonight and whipped New York Rangers, 5 to 3. It was Montreal's 23rd victory of the National Hockey League season and their fifth over the last place Rangers, who absorbed their 25th defeat.

While the Rangers couldn't win, they entertained a crowd of 15,437, the season's second largest, with a livelier fight than most of the Friday night ring shows offer, plus a third period spurt that put them almost within striking distance of the league leaders.

When Ott Heller and Maurice Richard began swapping punches during the rough first session, Bob Dill and Mike McMahon immediately squared off while all the other players on the ice except goalie Bill Durnan of Montreal rushed in. Most of them apparently were undecided whether to pry the fighters apart or to land a helping hand on someone's jaw, so only the four principal combatants drew major penalties.

Drillon, who is 29 and married, joined the army in mid-1943.

Racetrack Jargon Fools Doughboys

SYDNEY, Australia, Jan 30 —(CP)— American service personnel who go to the races in Australia are throwing their money away because they do not understand the local patois.

In the United States, on the totalisator they bet for a win (first) place (first or second) or show (first, second or third). Here there is only a win (first) or place (first, second or third). So the visitors, backing a horse for a place, have been throwing their tickets away when their fancy came in third.

One racegoer in Sydney has been paying his admission and spending his time cashing discarded tickets.

Blind Wrestler "Hears" Rivals

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 30 —(CP)— One of the leading candidates for Yale's wrestling team is sandy-haired Bob Russell of Binghamton, N.Y., who depends on his ears to help him pin his opponents.

Russell's keen ears substitute for his eyes. He hasn't been able to see since he was five years old- -a kindergarten student- -when he was struck in the left eye by a croquet mallet. In a short time he lost the sight of both eyes.

Solidly-built, strong and determined, the 18-year-old Yale junior smiles as he explains, "You might think I'm trying to kid you, but really I'm sincere when I tell you I can hear my opponents. In this way I can almost tell their every move. For that matter I can actually hear a tree."

Russell received his secondary education at the New York Institute for the Blind and was a student for two years at Hamilton College before he transferred to Yale last fall. When Eddie O'Donnell, Eli mat coach, issued his call for wrestlers, Bob was among the first to report.

O'Donnell has been impressed by the 165-pound Russell's grappling talents, so much that the mentor believes Bob is a potential intercollegiate champ. Bob has his work cut out because Gene Smith, team captain, wrestles at the same weight.

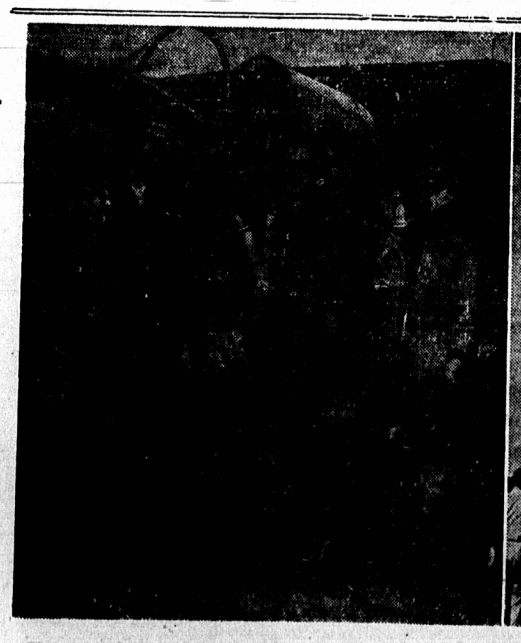
The photo and diagram shown here are of an Italian Caproni-Campini jet propelled plane that presumably operates on the same principle as the new, secret jet-propelled, propellerless plane whose perfection by U. S. and British engineers has just been announced. This Italian plane flew 168 miles in 2 1-2 hours on Dec. 1, 1941 The first successful flight of the British plane was made in May, 1941. The rocket or jet-propulsion method is basically simple. Air is drawn into the fuselage through large intake vent under the nose and compressed in a rotary blower. Fuel is added in the combustion chamber and the gases then pass through a turbine and are ejected at high velocity through a tail nozzle. The rearward force of this jet of gas thrusts the plane forward.

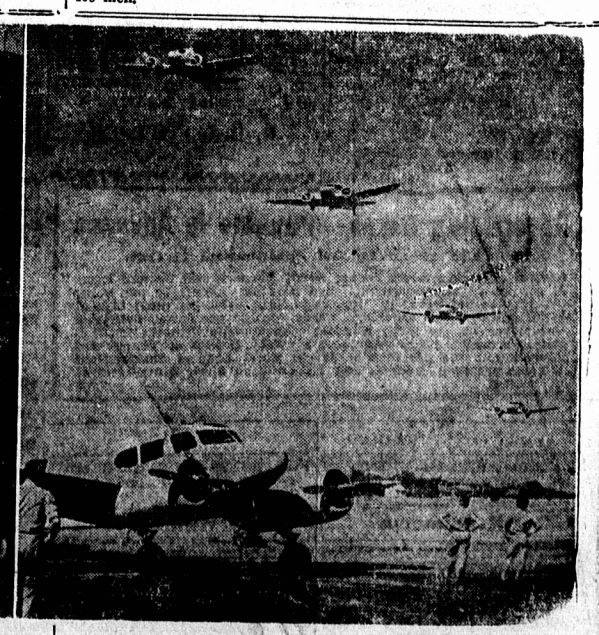
Rideau Health and Occupational Centre

The first of five health and occupational centres to be established by the Department of Pensions and National Health across Canada is shown in this architect's drawing. Tenders were opened this week for the construction of the Rideau Centre, located on the Rideau River in one of the most beautiful scenic sections of the Ottawa District.

Shown in the architect's sketch above is the central administration wing, which includes kitchen and dining room, and some of the eight bungalows which will provide residence for 200 ex-service personnel requiring specialized assistance in becoming re-established. Each of the bungalows contains a common room and verandah, for use in the summer; the Canadian Red Cross has offered to construct on the property a building to house a gymnasium, pool, and auditorium for floor games. Mechanical games are planned to develop the functions of partly-disabled men.

The four other centres will be at Toronto, Montreal, London and Vancouver, with those in Toronto and Montreal to accommodate 400 men.





The story of the flying instructor is one of constant yearning for action, but his flying ability and his skill at imparting knowledge to others confine his action to the "circuit-and-bump" routine of R.C.A.F. flying fields in Canada. Backbone of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan, instructors turn out crack pilots and send them out to win glory and distinction in every theatre of war. In the picture at left, an R.C.A.F. instructor chats with two of his students in the shadow of their training plane. Such aircraft are slow, and instructors itch for the controls of modern high-speed warplanes. At right, a flight of Cessna Cranes passes across a Canadian training field. These twin-engined machines are used extensively in educating pilots to handle heavier bombers. In the monotony of their job instructors can find two sources of satisfaction. One is the quality of the airmen they train, unexcelled in the world's air forces. The other is the fact that after a tour of training duty, many of them can count on eventually getting overseas and into action against the enemy. (R.C.A.F. Photos)
