Writer Praises Canadian Immigrants

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 17. In a letter to the Providence Sunday Journal a writer signing himself "L.A.K." praises the quality of Canadian immigration into the United States and particularly New England.

"While the present exodus from Canada's eastern provinces," the letter says, "is causing a great deal of agitation in the Dominion and may, it is said, result in certain radical changes in its immigration policy, the situation is one of primary interest to New England industries, it was not long ago that the Northeastern States had good reason to be alarmed over the large number of their population which flocked southward and westward in search of opportunity. Now this condition seems to be offset in a measure by the influx of Canadians who see greater opportunities in New England than at home."

"According to a recent estimate $3,903 Canadians were admitted to the United States in the 10 month interval between July, 1925 and May, 1926, most of them to New England, a large percentage to Boston and its suburbs. That the average Canadian makes a good citizen is a matter of common knowledge and New England may have good reason to congratulate itself on the quality of the immigrants from the provinces."

"The newcomers are seeking greater opportunities than they think they could have if they remained at home. I believe that the immigration of Canadians is desirable from New England's standpoint and that it should be encouraged. By that I mean that the new arrivals should be made welcome. They should be welcomed as individuals, as workers and as citizens. Unless they are they certainly will not remain here very long."

"Some have relatives in this country to whom they will go for advice and guidance. Others are not so fortunate. It would be desirable if an office was maintained in Boston at which new arrivals from the provinces might secure information regarding current opportunities in different industries. This would not be an employment bureau, rather a source of information which would aid immigrants in finding their place in New England activities."

You've probably heard of this famous home-made cough syrup. But have you ever used it? Thousands of families feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will soon earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a 10-oz. bottle, pour 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the bottle. Or, if desired, use clarified honey, instead of sugar syrup. Haddock Becoming Leading Fish

PORTLAND, Me., Jan. 17. - Skippers of a dozen fishing craft at Central Wharf assert that haddock is displacing cod as the staple produce of the New England fisheries.

"It's our best seller," said a wholesale and retail fish dealer on Portland Pier.

A shrewd Chebeague Island boat fisherman has this to say about it: "The haddock is going to save the New England Fisheries for many a day. You can catch 'em in all seasons, they're generally plentiful, they're easy caught and easy handled. Yes, sir, the haddock is going to make our fisheries more important and valuable than the cod ever did."

To back up this opinion Bureau of Fisheries officials give figures of haddock in the Gulf of Maine, showing that the total yearly catch inshore and offshore grounds, is at least 85,000,000 pounds. This represents more than 15,000,000 fish and considerably surpasses the catch of cod both in weight and number.

Of course the haddock averages smaller than the cod, but its great numbers make up for this.

"I'd say," said a local fish cutter, "that haddock will run on the average from 24 to 28 inches long and weigh five to eight pounds. Of course there are a lot smaller and a lot bigger."

The largest haddock on record is said to have weighed 37 inches long and to have weighed 24 1/2 pounds. Like the cod, the haddock roams from place to place in search of food, and where there is good fishing today there may be none tomorrow. The fish is very prolific and the supply seems inexhaustible. The fish shows its age on its scales, almost as clearly as does the herring and it is said that the largest haddock in Maine waters are from 12 to 15 years old.

Boston and replacing it with the most favored haddock." CHAPLIN'S FORTUNE IS NOW IN CUSTODY LOS ANGELES, Jan. 17. - A substantial portion of the estimated $16,000,000 fortune which Charles Spencer Chaplin, gathered together with a trick cane, a big derby hat, and a pair of floppy pants tonight was in the hands of receivers appointed to handle the comedian's property pending trial of the divorce action instituted by Lita Grey Chaplin. W. D. Gilbert, who, with Herman Spitzell, was appointed receiver, what of a mystery. His studio man today sent detectives to the film actor's palatial Beverly Hills home to take possession, and notified the office of Lyndol Young, chief counsel for Mrs. Chaplin, that the comedian had left here by aeroplane, but a check at aviation fields failed to confirm it. The financial accounts of the comedian, including his income, expenditures, and private and business upkeep, were seized late in the afternoon by Spitzell. A most enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Cantello, Belfast, on Thursday, the 6th of January, 1927 when a large crowd gathered to do honor to their son, John and his bride, who were married about two months ago. The evening was spent in dancing, after all had gathered an address was read by Mr. Cameron McPhee, and the presentation of a handsome gas lamp by Mr. William McRae was presented to Mr. and Mrs. John D. Cantello who was formerly Miss Pearl Simons of St. Peter's Bay. Mr. Cantello although taken by surprise in a few well chosen words on behalf of Mrs. Cantello thanked the friends and neighbors for their kindness. After ice cream and cake were served they all departed to their homes feeling they had enjoyed a most pleasant evening and wishing Mr. Cantello and his bride a most happy wedded life. The following is the address. Dear Mr. and Mrs. Cantello: We, your friends and neighbors have met here tonight to extend to you our good wishes and to welcome Mrs. Cantello to our district. We have spent a very enjoyable evening with you in your home and hope to spend many more with you in our community. We extend to Mrs. Cantello a hearty welcome to our community and to Mr. and Mrs. Cantello our sincere good wishes that they may enjoy for many years a happy wedded life.
