A very enjoyable evening was spent and refreshments served. The following address was tendered and a well filled purse presented to Mr. and Mrs. McPhail. The address was read by Mr. P. J. McDonald.

Dear Mrs. McPhail: It seems hardly necessary to tell you how deeply we regret the departure of yourself, your husband and family from our midst.

We will all miss you, and those of us who have known you longest will miss you most, for we have found in you a friend true and tried. The following lines are well exemplified in your case:

"Sweet as fragrant roses 'Tis to have a friend One whom in joy and sorrow We know we can depend"

Your words of love and cheer to those in need of consolation, your many acts of kindness given without ostentation, the practical help which you have so often and so freely bestowed upon the sick and suffering, will not soon be forgotten.

Our best wishes go forth to you and the family. We hope and pray that Dr. Archibald, assisted by Dr. Simpson, Summerside and Dr. Johnston, Tignish, also by Nurses Wilson, Mill, Zink and Sharp. We are pleased to say that every patient is now well again and enjoying proper breathing once more, thanks to the good Red Cross that is always anxious to help along the children to better health. The Doctors and Nurses in charge of the Clinic wish to express their gratitude to the Sisters of Notre Dame for the many kindnesses extended, also to Dr. Johnston who attended to all the details in connection with this very successful Clinic.

Ship Surgery Marvel

(By British United Press.) LONDON, Aug. 24. - Details of a feat of surgery off Cape Horn, carried out under almost incredible conditions with scissors, a safety-pin, bent spoons, clothes-pegs, and meat-hooks as implements, but ending in success, were related by the officers and crew of the Commonwealth and Dominion Line steamer Port Auckland as she moved into dock at Woolwich.

The central figure is a young New Zealand surgeon who was on his way to England for the first time. He is Dr. A. S. Hetherington, just 25, who studied medicine at Dunedin University.

As the ship was about to round Cape Horn on June 28th this young surgeon found that a fireman, A. J. Merton, had appendicitis. Although he had no qualified assistants, Dr. Hetherington decided that an operation was imperative. In the rough sea the ship was rolling heavily, but the engines were stopped and the dining saloon was chosen as an operating theatre. Arc lights were brought and assistants called for.

Among the half-dozen passengers was an Englishwoman, Miss Swindell, the only woman on board, who during the war had had some experience as a V. A. D. She and two of the officers were the surgeon's assistants.

To administer the anaesthetic a tea strainer was covered with a towel, and this was placed over the patient's nose. Ether and chloroform were sprinkled from a bottle until the patient was unconscious and throughout the operation, which lasted from midnight till 3 a. m., the surgeon had to watch the eyes of his patient to see that he was not coming round, ordering more anaesthetic from time to time.

The cut was made with great difficulty with a small pair of scissors, the patient's tongue was fastened by means of a safety-pin stuck through it, and the wound was kept open by means of bent spoons. Clothes-pegs and meat-hooks were also employed.

Down below in the kitchen the cook kept his ovens at boiling heat for hours sterilising the instruments.

Miss Swindell nursed the patient day and night, back to health, and as one of the officers said, "she and the doctor undoubtedly saved his life."

Ends Hygienic Worry

for Women Wearing Thin, Summer Dresses

By ELLEN J. BUCKLAND Registered Nurse

THE lovely flowered chiffons and pastel crepes of this season - one loves their gay lightness, but sometimes fears to wear them. Kotex makes them safe. Filled with Cellucotton wadding, the world's super-absorbent, it ends the risk of old-time "sanitary pads" by being 5 times more absorbent! Deodorizes, too. Discards easily as tissue, no laundry or embarrassment. And thus ends most women's greatest hygienic worries. To 8 in 10 better-class women, Kotex means more than a mere sanitary pad - it means proved and positive scientific protection. See that you get the genuine. If in a moment of doubt, it is not on the box, don't accept it.
